STEEL DISPUTE SETTLEMENT NEAR

Seventy-Third Congress Ends Labors Monday Night

MANY BILLS PASSED IN LAST DAYS

Doubt Expressed by Leaders Over Whether Grazing Bill is Acceptable

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(UP)—President Roosevelt turned today to the job of filling out the blank check of authority given him by the extraordinary 73rd session of congress which adjourned sine die last night.

A new house and one-third of the senate will have been to the voters for endorsement before congress meets again.

Critics of the administration complain the 73rd was a subservient congress. Administration spokesmen laud it as the most effective deliberative body which ever sat.

1. Purchase and coin silver until the metal currency reserve is 75 per cent gold and 25 per cent silver.

Tariff Privileges

2. Raise or lower the tariff by 50 per cent in furthering the reciprocal trade agreement policy.

3. Exercise tremendous control over agricultural and manufacturing prices.

4. Spend a sum estimated at more than $6,000,000,000 on relief and recovery.

5. Regulate the securities business in all respects.

6. Make loans to private industry; purchase and retire marginal lands; purchase factories for rehabilitation and use.

Holding over from the special session of a year ago are additional powers including unused authority to print $3,000,000,000 of funded paper currency to retire indebtedness or for emergency expenditure.

Authority Lapses

As congress departed there lapsed the most far reaching authority of all—the licensing provision of the National Industrial Recovery act. Under it for one year Mr. Roosevelt had the power to seize, operate or suppress any industry which refused to cooperate with the NRA code program. The licensing provision never was used.

Last through the legislative machine was the administration's $1,000,000,000 housing program designed to make available to the property owner funds with which he may renovate, modernize and improve his buildings.

HARLOW'S HUSBAND SUFFERS PARALYSIS

HOLLYWOOD, June 19.—(UP)—Hal Rosson, estranged husband of Jean Harlow, blonde screen siren, was stricken last week with infantile paralysis, friends revealed today.

The ace cameraman lost use of his arms after being stricken at a private swimming pool.

"Doctors have localized the disease in his arms and shoulders," a friend said. "They are very hopeful that he will respond to treatment and recover the use of his arms."

Rosson and Miss Harlow separated several weeks ago. A divorce is considered likely.

PRESIDENT TO GET DEGREE FROM YALE

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 19.—(UP)—Adjournment of congress has made it possible for President Franklin D. Roosevelt to attend Yale's 233rd commencement exercises tomorrow and receive an honorary degree of doctor of laws.

It will be the second time a president in office has personally and publicly accepted academic honors at the country's second oldest institution of learning.

SALACIOUS DANCES, GAMBLING FEATURE ANAHEIM AFFAIR

FRED ROWLAND APPOINTED TO CITY COUNCIL

Resident of City for 24 Years Named to Succeed Witmer as Trustee

FRED ROWLAND, 810 South McClay street, a resident of Santa Ana for the past 24 years and a prominent Mason and insurance man, was appointed as a member of the city council last night to succeed Paul Witmer, who resigned last week.

The naming of Rowland followed a lengthy discussion by the councilmen, in which A. F. LeGaye urged that recommendations of Witmer be followed to leave the post vacant until August 28 and then let the voters elect a new councilman.

LeGaye even went further and advocated that all the appointees to the council resign and place themselves up for reelection in August to give voters and taxpayers an opportunity to reject or approve the policies being followed by the board, since only one of the councilmen remained of the original five elected in 1931.

William Penn, E. G. Warner and Plummer Bruns, however, demanded that the empty position be filled at once. LeGaye, following flat rejection of Witmer's proposal, then asked that sufficient time be given to the selection of a new man so that the councilmen could make the acquaintance of the candidates in the field and make the wisest choice. This suggestion was also overruled.

Rowland Nominated

Penn nominated Rowland to fill the vacancy and Warner immediately seconded it. LeGaye urged that Witmer be given a chance to give his views, since a precedent had been established whereby the outgoing councilman should have the privilege of naming his successor.

Witmer was not present at the meeting but had sent a letter to the council by City Attorney Clyde Downing. Witmer stated that despite the established precedent, he did not feel justified in choosing his successor, nor did he think that one should be named by any group, clique or political group.

He pointed out that with the 1915 improvement bond act delinquencies, decreased assessed valuations and the inability of citizens to pay taxes, extreme care should be taken in the selection of a new councilman and that it should be a matter for the city to decide, not the council.

Penn queried Downing as the legality of such a procedure and was informed that although the law stipulates that a successor shall be named by the council within 30 days after a resignation or vacancy, the election could be held to guide the council in its acts.

Penn said he favored following the strict regulations of the law.

Urges Election

LeGaye countered by saying that Witmer was not trying to name a successor, or evade the law. He said that the councilmen, as a group or individually, had been receiving criticism and that an election would clarify their actions. He said that he was willing to resign and go up for election

STRIKING DOCKMEN ISSUE ULTIMATUM

SAN FRANCISCO, June 19.—(UP)—Labor has reached the point in the Pacific Coast Longshoremens' strike where it demands "peace for all, or none," Mayor Angelo Rossi was informed today by a joint marine strike committee.

The committeemen invited the waterfront employers' union to negotiate with them.

"This is united action," Harry Bridges, chairman of the Longshoremens' local strike committee, said. Previous to the visit to the mayor's office Bridges had been named as chairman of the joint committee, representing 10 maritime unions.

MANY PROBES ARE PLANNED THIS SUMMER

Thirteen Different Investigations to Keep Many Congressmen Busy

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(UP)—Congress was over today but for most of the 435 members of the house the fight was just beginning.

The bulk of the membership is working for re-election, and for those not too worried about the home bailiwicks there are 13 different investigations, some promising sensational revelations.

On the political side of the picture predictions were what might be expected.

"The Republicans will be lucky if they gain one seat," said Speaker Henry T. Rainey, as he rubbed his right hand, calloused from five months of gavel pounding.

"That's amusing," retorted Rep. Chester C. Bolton, R., O., chairman of the National Republican Congressional committee. "It looks like the Republicans will get more than 50 Democratic seats."

Probes To Come

Most newsworthy of the interim congressional inquiries are expected to be those into foreign propaganda, bondholders protective committees and war department purchases. The army investigation, in particular, has been predicted as likely to be productive of sensational results.

ORANGE COUNTY MAY GET DROUGHT RELIEF

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(UP)—Ten "emergency" and four "secondary" California counties were added today to drought territory—the first in that state to be so classified.

Eight counties in Colorado, New Mexico and Wyoming were placed in the "emergency" group. Six of these were transferred from previously announced "secondary" lists.

In addition, 34 counties in Colorado, Idaho, Nebraska and Wyoming were designated "secondary" areas, bringing the total counties in that classification to 548. The "emergency" list now embraces 310 counties.

New "emergency designation:"

California—Fresno, Kern, Kings, Los Angeles, Riverside, San Bernardino, San Diego, San Luis Obispo, Santa Barbara and Tulare.

"Secondary" counties included:

NORTH DAKOTA GOVERNORSHIP FIGHT SIZZLES

Governor Olson, Convicted on Felony Charge, Refuses Give Up Seat

BISMARCK, N. D., June 19.—(UP)—North Dakota politics became as giddy as a whirling dervish today, with the state uncertain whether it had one governor, two governors, or none.

Federal soldiers guarded a federal judge and deputy sheriffs patrolled entrances to the executive offices of the capitol, while Gov. William H. Langer and Lieut. Gov. Ole Olson wrangled over rights to the gubernatorial office.

Olson, contending that conviction of the governor Sunday on a federal felony charge automatically vacated his position, declared himself the new governor, took the oath of office and demanded that the attorney general take steps to oust his rival.

At the same time he announced plans for a whirlwind finish to his campaign for renomination on the Republican ticket in the primary election next Tuesday. His attorneys yesterday filed notice of an appeal from his conviction. Judge Andrew Miller granted a stay of sentence to June 29.

Langer and four political followers were found guilty of extorting political funds from federal relief employes. The maximum possible sentence is two years' imprisonment and a $10,000 fine.

DISCOVER BOMBS IN OIL TANKS FARMS

SAN PEDRO, Calif., June 19.—(UP)—Oil tank farms near here on which more than 30,000,000 barrels of crude oil are stored were under heavy guard today following discovery of eight bombs planted near a huge million gallon reservoir. Experts declared the explosives were powerful enough "to blow up a battleship."

Extra guards were ordered on duty after a watchman discovered the explosives covered with weeds a few feet from the huge tank. Two powerful chemicals, mixed with black powder, were found in a metal box, officers reported. The combination produced a dangerous explosive they declared.

One of the bombs, set off by police in a safe spot, blew a crater five feet deep and nine feet across.

U. S. SENATOR HALE WINS NOMINATION

PORTLAND, Maine, June 19.—(UP) — Incomplete returns in Maine's primary election today indicated U. S. Senator Frederick Hale, seeking a fourth term, has been renominated, defeating his opponent, Louis A. Jack, former legislator, by a three to one margin.

The vote from approximately one-third of the state's 632 precincts gave:

Hale, 14,401.
Jack, 4,176.

INSTRUCTOR HELD FOR CRIME

WASHINGTON, Pa., June 19.—(UP)—George H. Bartholomew, 48, director of physical education at Washington & Jefferson college, was in custody today in connection with the death of a Washington, Pa., youth.

The district attorney announced that Bartholomew signed a statement confessing that Thomas Manis, 23, was killed in a struggle between the two June 8.

Manis' body was found Saturday, partly concealed by brush and weeds in a field.

Raise Slush Fund To Aid Law Evaders

"Wide Open" Gambling, Lewd Dances of Nearly Naked Women Held

CHARACTERIZED by open gambling and lewd performances by nearly-naked women, a big "party" in open and flagrant violation of the law was staged at the Concordia club on West Broadway in Anaheim last night with the avowed purpose of raising money for a slush fund to cover expenses of members of the Dispensers' Compliance Association of Orange county who are caught in the evasion of liquor laws.

The affair, which started shortly after 8 p. m. and continued until after midnight, was "wide open," according to those present, and no pretense was made at covering up.

Five slot machines of the nickel and dime variety, paying off in cash, two stud poker tables, a chuck-a-luck table, blackjack and dice layouts were the highpoints of the gambling side of the entertainment.

During the evening the shouts of the customers mingled with the lewd gestures of the four burlesque dancers to create an atmosphere rivalling that of border hells and dives.

Crowd Applauds

The crowd roared its approval of the so-called act of a redheaded coon shouter with a simple but expressive routine. Her song sung, the "dance"consisted of stripping off her clothes, a piece at a time, till she was arrayed in a gauze brassiere, and spangled gee string. As an encore she wiggled her way to the footlights, kicked in the general direction of the audience, and unfastened the gee string, grabbing hastily and none too protectively at the covering, and disappeared.

Sister act to the strip show was the usual kootch dance, performed identically three different times, as three different dances. The "bald-headed" row, consisting last night of rollicking high school boys called the act back again and again, as the performer threw herself into her work.

"Kootch" Dance

The "kootch" dance, as performed last night, is a simple pantomime which is done best by unadorned ladies of somewhat generous proportions. The complete unadornment, however, was obviously best when accomplished by a too-high kick, or a backward flip of a protective feather, which gestures were indulged in lavishly by last night's lady, who evidently enjoyed her job.

It was dollar "buy in" night at the gambling tables. Cashiers stood behind each table, ready to change the suckers' money into dollar slips, which in turn bought dollar's worth of chips. Antes at the poker tables were a dime, with no limit in sight. Dice players could throw the ivories for four-bits, and work up as high as they wanted. Blackjack was limited to a quarter minimum bet, with the ceiling too high to reach.

GEN. JOHNSON LETS OUT NRA ASSISTANT

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(UP)—Gen. Hugh S. Johnson who has been fighting the battles of section 7A of the Recovery act ever since NRA came into being had a little 7-A trouble right in his own back yard today.

The fight centered around John Donovan, president of the Federal Employes union of NRA. Last night he was discharged by Johnson for "inefficiency, unauthorized absence from duty and insubordination."

Today the Washington Central labor union was protesting to the NRA labor advisory board and to President Roosevelt that the discharge was motiviated by Donovan's union activities and was in fact, just another violation of the famous section 7-A.

SCIENTISTS ESTABLISH CAUSE OF WHOOPING COUGH AND TRAP GERM, AFTER YEARS OF SEARCH

BERKELEY, June 19.—(UP)—Science has trapped and labelled another arch-enemy of childhood—H. Bacillus Pertussis, the cause of whooping cough.

Ending two years of search, two scientists definitely established H. bacillus pertussis as cause of whooping cough within the last year, Dr. John J. Miller, jr., National Research Council Fellow at the University of California, told members of the American association for the advancement of science today.

Innoculations of apes and human beings with pure cultures of the bacillus have produced whooping cough in the subjects treated—furnishing the final test in assigning the cause of this frequent disease.

A treatment for relief of whooping cough subsequently has been developed by Associate Professor A. P. Krueger at the University of California, Dr. Miller announced.

Termed pertussis endoantigen, the substance also may prove valuable for diagnosis of whooping cough cases. Injections of the preparation have led to local reactions in whooping cough cases, it was said.

Another method of diagnosing whooping cough has proved reliable in approximately 80 per cent of cases tested, R. Miller said.

Technical sessions of the American Association for the Advancement of Science were in full swing as the organization entered the second day of its 94th annual meeting.

Professor Vincent Du Vigneaud of George Washington School of Medicine, Washington, D. C., told members of the medical sciences group that science seems to be on the threshold of stimulating discoveries concerning the origin of hormones—mysterious secretions of endocrinous glands—and their relations to other body substances.

DELAY ACTION ON PRO-RATION OF SHIPMENTS

Grapefruit Stabilization Committee Yields to Florida Demands

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(UP)—Yielding to demands by the Florida delegation, the national grapefruit stabilization committee today deferred action on pro-ration of shipments until a time nearer the shipping season.

Seven citrus growers have the same representatives on both orange and grapefruit committees. Additional representation is assured by recent appointment of new committeemen. The present members said they were not prepared to commit themselves on the pro-ration question until the new members took office.

The Florida industry was said to be opposed to coordination of marketing agreements effective in Florida, California, Texas and Arizona so that a national shipment control plan could be put in operation. It was understood the pro-ration proposals would reduce Florida's shipment quota.

The citrus men prepared to elect a national coordinating officer at a proposed annual salary of $7500. Among nominees were W. G. Meal of the AAA and Dana King, of California.

Election of a coordinator was deferred late today pending further investigation, and the committees adjourned. They requested the AAA to continue collection and interpretation of economic and market data regarding both oranges and grapefruit.

The California-Arizona citrus control committee in charge of the marketing agreement for citrus fruit in that area, petitioned the national committees to consider market conditions with a view toward national proration control of oranges and grapefruit.

Advisability of a nation-wide proration program will be determined at a later date it was said.

LATE NEWS FLASHES

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(UP)—President Roosevelt today signed the labor disputes bill aimed at settling the steel strike and other industrial conflicts.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(UP)—The federal procedure bill, regarded by President Roosevelt as a distinct achievement in legal reform and in speeding the administration of justice, was signed today.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(UP)—Oil Administrator Harold L. Ickes today said he was prepared to sign an agreement compiled by California refiners as a substitute for the nullified Pacific coast cartel.

NEW YORK, June 19.—(UP)—Joseph W. Harriman, former president of the closed Harriman National Bank and Trust company, was found guilty today on all 16 counts of an indictment charging misaplication of bank funds. Harriman's co-defendant, Albert Murray Tustin, former executive vice president of the bank, was acquitted.

FLOOD CONTROL PROJECT HELD "NOT URGENT"

Santa Ana River Proposal Not Recommended for Early Consideration

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(UP)—Failure to include the Santa Ana river in California in projects recommended for immediate consideration in the water supply development program was considered here attributable to a belief by the cabinet committee, which drew up the report, that the work was not as urgent as some other projects.

The report recommended that $14,455,500 worth of work be done ultimately.

It found that the development was not needed for navigation although flood control called for some protection. The report noted that a flood similar to the last would probably cause more money damage than before.

A complete program as outlined in the report would call for $4,475,500 in the upper Santa Ana, $8,477,000 in the lower canyon and $2,308,000 in the lower basin. Of this work $800,000 has already been done, it was said.

JOHNSON SILENT ON GOVERNOR'S RACE

SAN FRANCISCO, June 19.—(UP)—U. S. Senator Hiram Johnson, California progressive Republican, kept himself clear of the state's gubernatorial primary fight today by announcing he will not enter into any political alliance with any candidate.

Johnson is expected to seek renomination for the senate post on the tickets of at least three parties—Republican, Democratic and Progressive. The Democratic group led by U. S. Senator W. G. McAdoo already has called on the party to make Johnson its candidate.

U. S. WARSHIPS AID IN PIRATE SEARCH

SHANGHAI, June 19.—(UP)—American warships joined today in the search for pirates who raided the British steamship Shuntien and seized two ship's officers and three British and one Japanese passenger.

The American minesweeper Bittern and the destroyer Pope were reported cooperating with British ships in the search at the mouth of the Yellow river.

The Japanese legation made vigorous representations to Chinese authorities and sent the cruiser Chefoo from Port Arthur "to protect Japanese lives and property" and aid in the search for the kidnaped Japanese.

COMPROMISE OFFERED BY UNION HEADS

Secretary of Labor Perkins and President to Confer Late Today on Proposals

LEADERS OPTIMISTIC

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(UP)—Settlement of the threatened steel strike was believed impending today.

Shortly after steel union leaders handed Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins a four-point compromise plan she announced she would lay it before President Roosevelt later today.

Miss Perkins and the union executive committee headed by Mike Tighe, Pittsburgh, appeared optomistic. Government observers also saw storm clouds lifting and expressed the belief a settlement was imminent.

It was conceded the strike would be called off in the Iron and Steel Institute, the operators' organization, accepted the union proposal.

Green Optimistic

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor and spokesman for the union executive committee, appeared enthusiastic. He said that even though the operators rejected the plan, they still would have to abide by the new federal setup.

Meantime it was reported the administration was negotiating secretly with operators' organization, the Iron and Steel Institute, in New York. The Institute was said to be considering the union's offer.

Recovery administrator Hugh S. Johnson expressed hope the operators would accept the plan. The Institute, 10 days ago, accepted a government mediation offer which was similar, but which the union turned down.

Letter to President

The union committee sent a letter to President Roosevelt, outlining the plan. They asked the White House to submit the proposal to the industry for "early acceptance and approval."

The offer, summarized, was as follows:

1. Presidential appointment of an impartial board of three, with authority to receive and adjust complaints of violations of the iron and steel code.

2. To mediate disputes between employers or employes under the code and to arrange collective bargaining with any employer when so requested by employes' representatives under the recovery act.

3. Board will have authority to order and hold elections and the organization selected by a majority of employes (whether company or labor union) to be recognized for the purpose of collective bargaining, thus exercising right of organization free from interference or intimidation.

4. All grievances regarding wages, hours and conditions of employment to be settled through management-workers negotiations and, this failing, through arbitration by the impartial board.

It was stipulated that if the proposal was accepted the strike would be called off.

Olson, contending that conviction of the governor Sunday on a federal felony charge automatically vacated his position, declared himself the new governor, took the oath of office and demanded that the attorney general take steps to oust his rival.

At the same time he announced plans for a whirlwind finish to his campaign for renomination on the Republican ticket in the primary election next Tuesday. His attorneys yesterday filed notice of an appeal from his conviction. Judge Andrew Miller granted a stay of sentence to June 29.

Langer and four political followers were found guilty of extorting political funds from federal relief employes. The maximum possible sentence is two years' imprisonment and a $10,000 fine.

DISCOVER BOMBS IN OIL TANKS FARMS

SAN PEDRO, Calif., June 19.—(UP)—Oil tank farms near here on which more than 30,000,000 barrels of crude oil are stored were under heavy guard today following discovery of eight bombs planted near a huge million gallon reservoir. Experts declared the explosives were powerful enough "to blow up a battleship."

Extra guards were ordered on duty after a watchman discovered the explosives covered with weeds a few feet from the huge tank. Two powerful chemicals, mixed with black powder, were found in a metal box, officers reported. The combination produced a dangerous explosive they declared.

One of the bombs, set off by police in a safe spot, blew a crater five feet deep and nine feet across.

U. S. SENATOR HALE WINS NOMINATION

PORTLAND, Maine, June 19.—(UP) — Incomplete returns in Maine's primary election today indicated U. S. Senator Frederick Hale, seeking a fourth term, has been renominated, defeating his opponent, Louis A. Jack, former legislator, by a three to one margin.

The vote from approximately one-third of the state's 632 precincts gave:

Jack, 4,176.

Manis' body was found Saturday, partly concealed by brush and weeds in a field.

Raise Slush Fund To Aid Law Evaders

CHARACTERIZED by open gambling and lewd performances by nearly-naked women, a big "party" in open and flagrant violation of the law was staged at the Concordia club on West Broadway in Anaheim last night with the avowed purpose of raising money for a slush fund to cover expenses of members of the Dispensers' Compliance Association of Orange county who are caught in the evasion of liquor laws.

The affair, which started shortly after 8 p. m. and continued until after midnight, was "wide open," according to those present, and no pretense was made at covering up.

Five slot machines of the nickel and dime variety, paying off in cash, two stud poker tables, a chuck-a-luck table, blackjack and dice layouts were the highpoints of the gambling side of the entertainment.

During the evening the shouts of the customers mingled with the lewd gestures of the four burlesque dancers to create an atmosphere rivalling that of border hells and dives.

Crowd Applauds

The crowd roared its approval of the so-called act of a redheaded coon shouter with a simple but expressive routine. Her song sung, the "dance" consisted of stripping off her clothes, a piece at a time, till she was arrayed in a gauze brassiere, and spangled gee string. As an encore she wiggled her way to the footlights, kicked in the general direction of the audience, and unfastened the gee string, grabbing hastily and none too protectively at the covering, and disappeared.

Sister act to the strip show was the usual kootch dance, performed identically three different times, as three different dances. The "bald-headed" row, consisting last night of rollicking high school boys called the act back again and again, as the performer threw herself into her work.

"Kootch" Dance

The "kootch" dance, as performed last night, is a simple pantomime which is done best by unadorned ladies of somewhat generous proportions. The complete unadornment, however, was obviously best when accomplished by a too-high kick, or a backward flip of a protective feather, which gestures were indulged in lavishly by last night's lady, who evidently enjoyed her job.

It was dollar "buy in" night at the gambling tables. Cashiers stood behind each table, ready to change the suckers' money into dollar slips, which in turn bought dollar's worth of chips. Antes at the poker tables were a dime, with no limit in sight. Dice players could throw the ivories for four-bits, and work up as high as they wanted. Blackjack was limited to a quarter minimum bet, with the ceiling too high to reach.

GEN. JOHNSON LETS OUT NRA ASSISTANT

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(UP)—Gen. Hugh S. Johnson who has been fighting the battles of section 7A of the Recovery act ever since NRA came into being had a little 7-A trouble right in his own back yard today.

The fight centered around John Donovan, president of the Federal Employes union of NRA. Last night he was discharged by Johnson for "inefficiency, unauthorized absence from duty and insubordination."

Today the Washington Central labor union was protesting to the NRA labor advisory board and to President Roosevelt that the discharge was motiviated by Donovan's union activities and was in fact, just another violation of the famous section 7-A.

SCIENTISTS ESTABLISH CAUSE OF WHOOPING COUGH AND TRAP GERM, AFTER YEARS OF SEARCH

BERKELEY, June 19.—(UP)—Science has trapped and labelled another arch-enemy of childhood—H. Bacillus Pertussis, the cause of whooping cough.

Ending two years of search, two scientists definitely established H. bacillus pertussis as cause of whooping cough within the last year, Dr. John J. Miller, jr., National Research Council Fellow at the University of California, told members of the American association for the advancement of science today.

Innoculations of apes and human beings with pure cultures of the bacillus have produced whooping cough in the subjects treated—furnishing the final test in assigning the cause of this frequent disease.

A treatment for relief of whooping cough subsequently has been developed by Associate Professor A. P. Krueger at the University of California, Dr. Miller announced.

Termed pertussis endoantigen, the substance also may prove valuable for diagnosis of whooping cough cases. Injections of the preparation have led to local reactions in whooping cough cases, it was said.

Another method of diagnosing whooping cough has proved reliable in approximately 80 per cent of cases tested, R. Miller said.

Technical sessions of the American Association for the Advancement of Science were in full swing as the organization entered the second day of its 94th annual meeting.

Professor Vincent Du Vigneaud of George Washington School of Medicine, Washington, D. C., told members of the medical sciences group that science seems to be on the threshold of stimulating discoveries concerning the origin of hormones—mysterious secretions of endocrinous glands—and their relations to other body substances.

DELAY ACTION ON PRO-RATION OF SHIPMENTS

Grapefruit Stabilization Committee Yields to Florida Demands

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(UP)—Yielding to demands by the Florida delegation, the national grapefruit stabilization committee today deferred action on pro-ration of shipments until a time nearer the shipping season.

Seven citrus growers have the same representatives on both orange and grapefruit committees. Additional representation is assured by recent appointment of new committeemen. The present members said they were not prepared to commit themselves on the pro-ration question until the new members took office.

The Florida industry was said to be opposed to coordination of marketing agreements effective in Florida, California, Texas and Arizona so that a national shipment control plan could be put in operation. It was understood the pro-ration proposals would reduce Florida's shipment quota.

The citrus men prepared to elect a national coordinating officer at a proposed annual salary of $7500. Among nominees were W. G. Meal of the AAA and Dana King, of California.

Election of a coordinator was deferred late today pending further investigation, and the committees adjourned. They requested the AAA to continue collection and interpretation of economic and market data regarding both oranges and grapefruit.

The California-Arizona citrus control committee in charge of the marketing agreement for citrus fruit in that area, petitioned the national committees to consider market conditions with a view toward national proration control of oranges and grapefruit.

Advisability of a nation-wide proration program will be determined at a later date it was said.

Santa Ana River Proposal Not Recommended for Early Consideration

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(UP)—Failure to include the Santa Ana river in California in projects recommended for immediate consideration in the water supply development program was considered here attributable to a belief by the cabinet committee, which drew up the report, that the work was not as urgent as some other projects.

The report recommended that $14,455,500 worth of work be done ultimately.

It found that the development was not needed for navigation although flood control called for some protection. The report noted that a flood similar to the last would probably cause more money damage than before.

A complete program as outlined in the report would call for $4,475,500 in the upper Santa Ana, $8,477,000 in the lower canyon and $2,308,000 in the lower basin. Of this work $800,000 has already been done, it was said.

JOHNSON SILENT ON GOVERNOR'S RACE

SAN FRANCISCO, June 19.—(UP)—U. S. Senator Hiram Johnson, California progressive Republican, kept himself clear of the state's gubernatorial primary fight today by announcing he will not enter into any political alliance with any candidate.

Johnson is expected to seek renomination for the senate post on the tickets of at least three parties—Republican, Democratic and Progressive. The Democratic group led by U. S. Senator W. G. McAdoo already has called on the party to make Johnson its candidate.

U. S. WARSHIPS AID IN PIRATE SEARCH

SHANGHAI, June 19.—(UP)—American warships joined today in the search for pirates who raided the British steamship Shuntien and seized two ship's officers and three British and one Japanese passenger.

The American minesweeper Bittern and the destroyer Pope were reported cooperating with British ships in the search at the mouth of the Yellow river.

The Japanese legation made vigorous representations to Chinese authorities and sent the cruiser Chefoo from Port Arthur "to protect Japanese lives and property" and aid in the search for the kidnaped Japanese.

COMPROMISE OFFERED BY UNION HEADS

LEADERS OPTIMISTIC

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(UP)—Settlement of the threatened steel strike was believed impending today.

Shortly after steel union leaders handed Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins a four-point compromise plan she announced she would lay it before President Roosevelt later today.

Miss Perkins and the union executive committee headed by Mike Tighe, Pittsburgh, appeared optomistic. Government observers also saw storm clouds lifting and expressed the belief a settlement was imminent.

It was conceded the strike would be called off in the Iron and Steel Institute, the operators' organization, accepted the union proposal.

Green Optimistic

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor and spokesman for the union executive committee, appeared enthusiastic. He said that even though the operators rejected the plan, they still would have to abide by the new federal setup.

Meantime it was reported the administration was negotiating secretly with operators' organization, the Iron and Steel Institute, in New York. The Institute was said to be considering the union's offer.

Recovery administrator Hugh S. Johnson expressed hope the operators would accept the plan. The Institute, 10 days ago, accepted a government mediation offer which was similar, but which the union turned down.

Letter to President

The union committee sent a letter to President Roosevelt, outlining the plan. They asked the White House to submit the proposal to the industry for "early acceptance and approval."

The offer, summarized, was as follows:

1. Presidential appointment of an impartial board of three, with authority to receive and adjust complaints of violations of the iron and steel code.

2. To mediate disputes between employers or employes under the code and to arrange collective bargaining with any employer when so requested by employes' representatives under the recovery act.

3. Board will have authority to order and hold elections and the organization selected by a majority of employes (whether company or labor union) to be recognized for the purpose of collective bargaining, thus exercising right of organization free from interference or intimidation.

4. All grievances regarding wages, hours and conditions of employment to be settled through management-workers negotiations and, this failing, through arbitration by the impartial board.

It was stipulated that if the proposal was accepted the strike would be called off.

FRED ROWLAND APPOINTED TO CITY COUNCIL

and that the others should also, unless they were afraid to stand on their records.

LeGaye said that Witmer had been criticised for holding a federal and a city job at the same time, although he drew no city salary after his federal appointment, and had been forced off the council by private interests here. He said he had also heard criticisms of Penn for holding two jobs just the same as Witmer had done and felt there was no distinction between the two cases. Penn is employed in the county welfare department.

Asked point-blank by LeGaye if he were willing to let the taxpayers decide his fitness for office, Penn said he would follow the law in filling the vacancy.

Immediate Vote

When LeGaye asked delaying of the appointment so that the council could become acquainted with the nominee, Penn and Warner both said they had known Rowland for many years and wanted an immediate vote.

On the roll call vote, Warner and Penn voted in favor of Rowland and LeGaye against. Bruns first voted no, then changed his mind and said that so long as there were no other nominees, he would vote for Rowland.

HARBOR IMPROVEMENT STARTS

Expect Action Against Officer To Close Today

A motion asking for a directed jury verdict in favor of the defendant made today by Frank Drumm, attorney representing Sheriff Logan Jackson and Deputy Sheriff Herman Zabel in a damage suit for $150,000 filed by the plaintiff, Thomas Stimatz, was denied by Superior Judge G. K. Scovel.

District Attorney S. B. Kaufman, who also is representing the defendants in the suit which charges false arrest and malicious prosecution, began final arguments near noon today. It is expected to be in the hands of the jury this afternoon.

Kaufman recalled that Stimatz had spent 25 minutes late yesterday afternoon in "extolling his own virtues," but had not given the jury any points of law on which to base a verdict. He said Stimatz' arguments were the greatest display of egotism he had ever seen in a courtroom.

The plaintiff charges that he was wrongfully arrested and prosecuted by the sheriff's office. He was held in jail on a vagrancy charge while Zabel, identification expert in the sheriff's department, checked to see whether or not Stimatz was a Frank Miller wanted on a felony charge, testimony revealed.

CONGRESS ENDS WORK: SOLONS OFF FOR HOME

president in the congressional recess is the signing of some 200 or 300 bills, many of small importance, passed Saturday and Monday.

Mr. Roosevelt indicated that the important bills dealing with housing, labor and other matters would require several days' study before he took action upon them.

He was scheduled to approve the silver bill at 8:45 tonight.

On the Taylor grazing bill the president indicated there were several highly technical questions involving water rights that would have to be studied before he took action.

UNITED STATES HAS POWER TO SEIZE CREDITS

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(UP)—The United States has ample powers under the 1933 foreign exchange act to seize German credits in this country as a retaliatory measure against the moratorium on exchange declared by Germany, it was stated in high authoritative circles today.

Shortly before congress adjourned President Roosevelt inquired whether specific legislation would be required to give the administration power to take such retaliatory measures, it was learned. He was informed by the attorney general that such power already existed in the exchange act.

For the present the administration is not contemplating credit seizure action such as England and France have threatened, it was indicated. The president's inquiry, it was indicated, was merely to ascertain whether sufficient authority existed if seizure action eventually was decided upon.

State department officials have said it would be impractical, at least for the present, to attempt seizure of German credits here, inasmuch as the United States exports more goods to Germany than it buys from Germany and consequently this country has greater credits in Germany than Germany has in the United States. Furthermore German officials have intimated that reprisals would be taken immediately in Germany if such action were exercised here.

URBAN RELIEF LOAD DECLINES SLIGHTLY

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(UP)—The urban relief load decreased less than one-half of one per cent between April and May, according to a survey of 141 cities and urban counties submitted today to Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins.

Increase in relief standards, coupled with rising prices caused a 12 per cent increase ,however, in obligations for unemployment relief.

Hopkins said federal and local relief funds were benefitting about 4,000,000 families in the drought area. It was estimated that 300,000 heads of families have received employment.

Changes in major cities between April and May included:

Los Angeles, Calif., load increased 9 per cent, costs, 28 per cent; San Francisco, Calif., 5 per cent, and 25 per cent.

RAISE SLUSH FUND TO AID LAW EVADERS

Nothing Concealed

No attempt was made to conceal the procedure. There was a slight formality apparent in getting chips, and again for cashing them in, if there were any left to cash, but the main thing was the money, and things weren't made too difficult for the players. The accepted method was to hand the cashier a dollar, receive a dollar token slip, and get chips for that. However, if a cashier happened not to be present, a dollar or two always bought chips from a dealer.

Tables were of the regular professional green-baize topped varieties, and the dealers were men who knew the ropes, tight-lipped gamblers who left the barking to their cashiers. Hoarse-voiced come-on men extolled the virtues of the respective games, and cashiers added a steady yip to the entreaties to "get it now, men! Bet and pick up your chips! Dollar buy in poker, boys!"

There was no attempt made to mask the nature of the evening. Cars lined the street for several blocks outside the hall, and the front door stood open all evening to those with "membership" cards, which had been distributed in wholesale quantities throughout the county. These "membership" cards were not necessary to gain admittance, however, as the open sesame of the evening was a mere "I'm O. K."

Oil workers, bank tellers and college youths, contributed variously to the association's fund through the gaming tables and beer bar during the night, while members of the association itself circulated among the guests urging their participation in the games.

Where Money Goes

One member of the group, when questioned about the purpose of the evening said: "We've got to hire lawyers and bondsmen who will get members out of pail when they get pinched for not closing or for violating liquor laws. They won't let us stay open long enough around here to make any money and if we can raise enough money we can fight the ordinance in court."

The noisy crowd, some drunk or half-drunk, and other cursing their losses at the gaming tables, whistled and stamped feet as the vicious dances proceeded, shouts and ribaldry increasing as the crowd clamored for a nude display of the entertainers.

Sawdust floors muffled the stamps of disgruntled gamblers as excited groups of men surged about the tables, the white lights over the tables bringing the customers' flushed faces into sharp relief. Beer fumes mingled with tobacco smoke to create a favorable atmosphere for vicious pursuits of the evening. The rattle of chips and the chirp of rustled card decks sounded through the din among the players.

Plan Next Party

Guests were encouraged to attend the next party to be given by the association for the swelling of their fund.

It was asserted that all of the proceeds of the party were added to a central co-operative fund of the group upon which members could draw in the event of their apprehension in liquor and beer violations. It was apparent that no sort of license or restriction governed the processes of last night's orgy at the Concordia club, and guests came and went freely during the evening.

No initial admission was charged, and cards of admittance were distributed through various channels and cafes operated by the members of the association.

SHIPSTEAD, OLSON WIN IN MINNESOTA

ST. PAUL, June 19.—(UP)—Farmer-Labor party leadership of Gov. Floyd B. Olson and the veteran Senator Henrik Shipstead apparently had won a striking vindication today as partial returns of yesterday's primary election rolled up huge majorities for both.

Shipstead, for 12 years the party's lone exponent of the Senate floor, led nose-punching Rep. F. H. Shoemaker with a three to one majority.

Farmer-Labor gubernatorial: Olson 75,082; John Lind 4,257.

Republican: Martin A. Nelson, 30,963.

WILL ROGERS says:

HOLLYWOOD, June 19.—(To the Editor of The Register:) I just give up reading murders. You no more than get a few details of one murder than the afternoon paper brings you news of another. The best read man in the country couldn't tell you who killed who last week. The papers ought to list 'em by numbers, "Murder Case No. 211" went to court this morning in order to make way for case 212. Cases 211 is one of the A Class (that is where the wife kills husband.) Case 212 is one of the B Class, husband kills wife. Killings of the C Class include all promiscuous other killings not embraced in A or B Class.

Yours for brevity,
WILL ROGERS.

SHERIFF CLEARED BY JURY VERDICT

Sheriff Logan Jackson and Deputy Herman Zabel, defendants in a damage suit for $150,000, filed by Thomas Stimatz, charging false arrest and malicious prosecution, were cleared in short order by a jury in superior court this afternoon.

The verdict for the defendants was brought in just 12 minutes after the jury had retired to organize and determine the question of guilt and amount of damages to be awarded, if any.

ommended removal of Maj. Gen. Benjamin D. Foulois as chief of the army aircorps will head the main house investigation. Rogers' committee is on the track of an alleged "far reaching scandal" involving army officers and army purchases.

"A more rotten condition than could be surmised has been uncovered," said Rogers. Other committee members hinted of the evidence of "cancelled checks" already uncovered.

To Visit Cities

Many larger cities of the nation will have house committees as guests during the next few months. A veterans' affairs subcommittee is expected to go out to Marion, Ind., shortly to inquire into an alleged racket in guardianship funds of mentally ill veterans. Members of the special Sabath committee inquiring into methods of bondholders protective committees probably will hold hearings in New York, Detroit, Philadelphia and Los Angeles.

Other committees will investigate such matters as the petroleum industry, post office expenditures, revenue laws, wild animal life, bankruptcies and campaign expenditures.

$10,000 DIVIDEND PAID FOR KINDNESS

DENISON, Texas, June 19. —(UP)—Arthur Ashmore's investment in kindness paid a $10,000 dividend today.

Ashmore, a salesman, gave an elderly hitch hiker a lift last week. 9s they rode along Ashmore told the old man, who said he was Ed Johnson, he would give him money for a shave, a meal and lodging when they got to Malvern, Ark.

At Malvern the old man got out. Ashmore handed him the change. The old man handed Ashmore a piece of paper. Then he walked away. Ashmore found the paper was a check for $10,000. Today his banker informed him the check was good.

He said he had also heard criticisms of Penn for holding two jobs just the same as Witmer had done and felt there was no distinction between the two cases. Penn is employed in the county welfare department.

Asked point-blank by LeGaye if he were willing to let the taxpayers decide his fitness for office, Penn said he would follow the law in filling the vacancy.

Immediate Vote

When LeGaye asked delaying of the appointment so that the council could become acquainted with the nominee, Penn and Warner both said they had known Rowland for many years and wanted an immediate vote.

On the roll call vote, Warner and Penn voted in favor of Rowland and LeGaye against. Bruns first voted no, then changed his mind and said that so long as there were no other nominees, he would vote for Rowland.

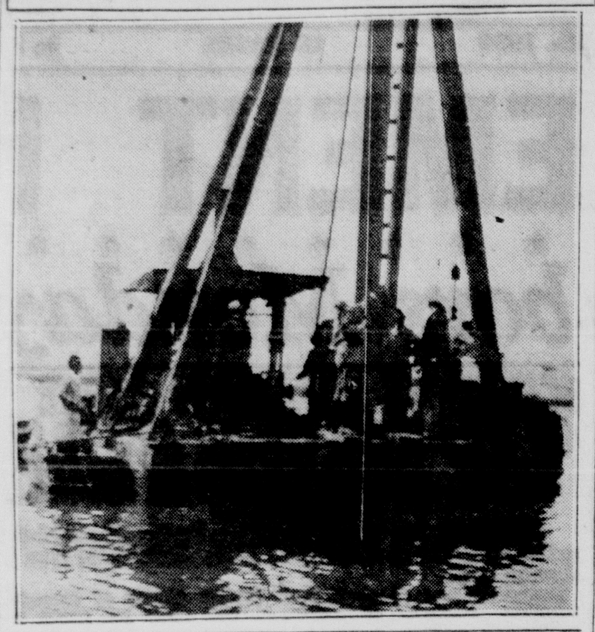
HARBOR IMPROVEMENT STARTS

Actual work on the Newport Harbor Development has started as shown in this picture taken as the first test boring was made yesterday in the upper bay near Lido Isle.



Expect Action Against Officer To Close Today

A motion asking for a directed jury verdict in favor of the defendant made today by Frank Drumm, attorney representing Sheriff Logan Jackson and Deputy Sheriff Herman Zabel in a damage suit for $150,000 filed by the plaintiff, Thomas Stimatz, was denied by Superior Judge G. K. Scovel.

District Attorney S. B. Kaufman, who also is representing the defendants in the suit which charges false arrest and malicious prosecution, began final arguments near noon today. It is expected to be in the hands of the jury this afternoon.

Kaufman recalled that Stimatz had spent 25 minutes late yesterday afternoon in "extolling his own virtues," but had not given the jury any points of law on which to base a verdict. He said Stimatz' arguments were the greatest display of egotism he had ever seen in a courtroom.

The plaintiff charges that he was wrongfully arrested and prosecuted by the sheriff's office. He was held in jail on a vagrancy charge while Zabel, identification expert in the sheriff's department, checked to see whether or not Stimatz was a Frank Miller wanted on a felony charge, testimony revealed.

president in the congressional recess is the signing of some 200 or 300 bills, many of small importance, passed Saturday and Monday.

Mr. Roosevelt indicated that the important bills dealing with housing, labor and other matters would require several days' study before he took action upon them.

He was scheduled to approve the silver bill at 8:45 tonight.

On the Taylor grazing bill the president indicated there were several highly technical questions involving water rights that would have to be studied before he took action.

UNITED STATES HAS POWER TO SEIZE CREDITS

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(UP)—The United States has ample powers under the 1933 foreign exchange act to seize German credits in this country as a retaliatory measure against the moratorium on exchange declared by Germany, it was stated in high authoritative circles today.

Shortly before congress adjourned President Roosevelt inquired whether specific legislation would be required to give the administration power to take such retaliatory measures, it was learned. He was informed by the attorney general that such power already existed in the exchange act.

For the present the administration is not contemplating credit seizure action such as England and France have threatened, it was indicated. The president's inquiry, it was indicated, was merely to ascertain whether sufficient authority existed if seizure action eventually was decided upon.

State department officials have said it would be impractical, at least for the present, to attempt seizure of German credits here, inasmuch as the United States exports more goods to Germany than it buys from Germany and consequently this country has greater credits in Germany than Germany has in the United States. Furthermore German officials have intimated that reprisals would be taken immediately in Germany if such action were exercised here.

URBAN RELIEF LOAD DECLINES SLIGHTLY

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(UP)—The urban relief load decreased less than one-half of one per cent between April and May, according to a survey of 141 cities and urban counties submitted today to Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins.

Increase in relief standards, coupled with rising prices caused a 12 per cent increase, however, in obligations for unemployment relief.

Hopkins said federal and local relief funds were benefitting about 4,000,000 families in the drought area. It was estimated that 300,000 heads of families have received employment.

Changes in major cities between April and May included:

Los Angeles, Calif., load increased 9 per cent, costs, 28 per cent; San Francisco, Calif., 5 per cent, and 25 per cent.

RAISE SLUSH FUND TO AID LAW EVADERS

No attempt was made to conceal the procedure. There was a slight formality apparent in getting chips, and again for cashing them in, if there were any left to cash, but the main thing was the money, and things weren't made too difficult for the players. The accepted method was to hand the cashier a dollar, receive a dollar token slip, and get chips for that. However, if a cashier happened not to be present, a dollar or two always bought chips from a dealer.

Tables were of the regular professional green-baize topped varieties, and the dealers were men who knew the ropes, tight-lipped gamblers who left the barking to their cashiers. Hoarse-voiced come-on men extolled the virtues of the respective games, and cashiers added a steady yip to the entreaties to "get it now, men! Bet and pick up your chips! Dollar buy in poker, boys!"

There was no attempt made to mask the nature of the evening. Cars lined the street for several blocks outside the hall, and the front door stood open all evening to those with "membership" cards, which had been distributed in wholesale quantities throughout the county. These "membership" cards were not necessary to gain admittance, however, as the open sesame of the evening was a mere "I'm O. K."

Oil workers, bank tellers and college youths, contributed variously to the association's fund through the gaming tables and beer bar during the night, while members of the association itself circulated among the guests urging their participation in the games.

Where Money Goes

One member of the group, when questioned about the purpose of the evening said: "We've got to hire lawyers and bondsmen who will get members out of pail when they get pinched for not closing or for violating liquor laws. They won't let us stay open long enough around here to make any money and if we can raise enough money we can fight the ordinance in court."

The noisy crowd, some drunk or half-drunk, and other cursing their losses at the gaming tables, whistled and stamped feet as the vicious dances proceeded, shouts and ribaldry increasing as the crowd clamored for a nude display of the entertainers.

Sawdust floors muffled the stamps of disgruntled gamblers as excited groups of men surged about the tables, the white lights over the tables bringing the customers' flushed faces into sharp relief. Beer fumes mingled with tobacco smoke to create a favorable atmosphere for vicious pursuits of the evening. The rattle of chips and the chirp of rustled card decks sounded through the din among the players.

Plan Next Party

Guests were encouraged to attend the next party to be given by the association for the swelling of their fund.

It was asserted that all of the proceeds of the party were added to a central co-operative fund of the group upon which members could draw in the event of their apprehension in liquor and beer violations. It was apparent that no sort of license or restriction governed the processes of last night's orgy at the Concordia club, and guests came and went freely during the evening.

No initial admission was charged, and cards of admittance were distributed through various channels and cafes operated by the members of the association.

SHIPSTEAD, OLSON WIN IN MINNESOTA

ST. PAUL, June 19.—(UP)—Farmer-Labor party leadership of Gov. Floyd B. Olson and the veteran Senator Henrik Shipstead apparently had won a striking vindication today as partial returns of yesterday's primary election rolled up huge majorities for both.

Shipstead, for 12 years the party's lone exponent of the Senate floor, led nose-punching Rep. F. H. Shoemaker with a three to one majority.

Farmer-Labor gubernatorial: Olson 75,082; John Lind 4,257.

Republican: Martin A. Nelson, 30,963.

WILL ROGERS says:

HOLLYWOOD, June 19.—(To the Editor of The Register:) I just give up reading murders. You no more than get a few details of one murder than the afternoon paper brings you news of another. The best read man in the country couldn't tell you who killed who last week. The papers ought to list 'em by numbers, "Murder Case No. 211" went to court this morning in order to make way for case 212. Cases 211 is one of the A Class (that is where the wife kills husband.) Case 212 is one of the B Class, husband kills wife. Killings of the C Class include all promiscuous other killings not embraced in A or B Class.

Yours for brevity,
WILL ROGERS.

SHERIFF CLEARED BY JURY VERDICT

Sheriff Logan Jackson and Deputy Herman Zabel, defendants in a damage suit for $150,000, filed by Thomas Stimatz, charging false arrest and malicious prosecution, were cleared in short order by a jury in superior court this afternoon.

The verdict for the defendants was brought in just 12 minutes after the jury had retired to organize and determine the question of guilt and amount of damages to be awarded, if any.

ommended removal of Maj. Gen. Benjamin D. Foulois as chief of the army aircorps will head the main house investigation. Rogers' committee is on the track of an alleged "far reaching scandal" involving army officers and army purchases.

"A more rotten condition than could be surmised has been uncovered," said Rogers. Other committee members hinted of the evidence of "cancelled checks" already uncovered.

To Visit Cities

Many larger cities of the nation will have house committees as guests during the next few months. A veterans' affairs subcommittee is expected to go out to Marion, Ind., shortly to inquire into an alleged racket in guardianship funds of mentally ill veterans. Members of the special Sabath committee inquiring into methods of bondholders protective committees probably will hold hearings in New York, Detroit, Philadelphia and Los Angeles.

Other committees will investigate such matters as the petroleum industry, post office expenditures, revenue laws, wild animal life, bankruptcies and campaign expenditures.

At Malvern the old man got out. Ashmore handed him the change. The old man handed Ashmore a piece of paper. Then he walked away. Ashmore found the paper was a check for $10,000. Today his banker informed him the check was good.

PEST CONTROL PLAN PROVIDES LABOR FOR 100

A county-wide SERA project calling for a total expenditure of $77,391.40 and which would give 100 men 134,400 hours of employment was approved by the board of supervisors today.

At the morning session D. W. Tubbs, county agricultural commissioner, submitted the project to the board of supervisors for control and elimination of agricultural pests.

The project is a combined one, with all of the similar projects which were not completed in the CWA program included, Tubbs said.

It is planned to eradicate ground squirrels, pocket gophers, Johnson grass, grasshoppers, hosts of plant diseases, insect pests and other pests in the county project. Tubbs will supervise the project.

The SERA is asked for $67,200 for labor costs, while the state contribution is expected to amount to $6673.60. The county of Orange will contribute $3517.80 for materials. The state contribution is to be from the agricultural department.

Men employed on the project would be paid an average of 50 cents an hour. The project must get the approval of the local committee, then go on to state SERA headquarters for final approval.

This morning the supervisors adopted a resolution authorizing Chairman Willard Smith to sign county SERA projects.

The board canvassed the election return from the Garden Grove water district election last week when about 260 acres of land was annexed to the district. Seventeen votes in favor of annexation and none in opposition were cast.

Supervisor W. C. Jerome received the consent of the board to authorize an expenditure of around $800 to place Celetex on the ceiling of the county auditor's office to quiet the noise in the room.

WHEELER HEARING CONTINUED TODAY

Subsequent to presentation of detailed testimony offered to show relative values of four parts in the 40-acre orange grove which is the basis for dispute of the case, trial of the lawsuit in which Sheldon Wheeler seeks to obtain redistribution of the estate of his deceased mother, Louise Wheeler, was continued today until Monday.

The case is being heard by Judge Lloyd Griffin in superior court.

E. E. Campbell of Orange, was on the witness stand yesterday afternoon as a witness for Sheldon Wheeler, who is suing his father, J. L. Wheeler, the First National bank in Santa Ana and the San Joaquin Fruit company, charging that mortgage payments were improperly made and that J. L. Wheeler received the better half of the 40-acre citrus land.

Although Campbell testified regarding the relative value of the four parcels of land which comprises the 40 acres, attorneys for the plaintiff were not able to quality Campbell as an expert and to have his testimony recorded.

ROOSEVELT PLANS PROGRAM UNDER PRESENT SYSTEM TO MEET NEEDS OF THE PEOPLE

President Roosevelt and the administration does not plan to follow an economic and social road which will lead the nation to the extreme radical left, nor does the government plan to develop a program so conservative the needs of the people cannot be met, and is tremendously interested in the problems of the people, including unemployment and old age pensions.

This message was brought to a crowd which filled the east lobby of the Y.M.C.A. building last night as J. F. Burke, who recently returned from Washington where he conferred with high governmental officials and members of congress, told of his impressions of the government's program.

The president is more concerned over the unemployment situation than anyone else, the publisher said, and is attempting through a definite program of legislation to correct the evils of the present system, rather than to try to change the social system.

The speaker told of his experience when he attended a press conference with President Roosevelt in Washington. President Roosevelt, he said, is dedidedly popular with newspapermen, because of his frank manner in answering questions. The president either tells the press that he cannot answer their questions, refers them to a member of his cabinet, or answers the questions at once, he said.

"Newspapermen," the publisher said, "like to know what is going on and to enjoy the confidence of officials. If there is something which should not be printed, newspapermen like to know the truth, take the information to their publisher and act on the wisest course. One of the questions asked of the president at the conference was why he did not treat the newspaper boys like himself at a press reception the night before. I learned later that the newspapermen were dressed in full evening dress, with their wives attired in evening gowns, while President Roosevelt attended the event in a business suit which looked like it had not been pressed for several days."

Both President Roosevelt and his wife are sympathetic to the needs of the people and are human in their thoughts and relationships he declared.

Sees Labor Secretary

His conference with Secretary of Labor Perkins which lasted for several hours on a Saturday afternoon proved most interesting, the speaker said.

"I had watched Miss Perkins' life," he said, "and was most glad and surprised when she was appointed secretary of labor. It is certain she is not a politician, but is deeply interested in the welfare of the wage earner, in men's and women's wages and child labor problems.

"Strikes in Toledo and Minneapolis were at their height when Miss Perkins granted me an interview. I began to apologize for taking her time, when she told me that if I was interested in labor I was not taking her time any more than she was taking mine. She was at work on Saturday afternoon when most offices are closed.

"Darrow had just made his first criticism of NRA, and Miss Perkins wanted to learn the reaction to his criticism. I was in her office when Charles Taft, son of former President Taft, who is a prominent Y.M.C.A. worker that I knew, called her. She is a wonderfully informed and able woman.

"We discussed Darrow's criticism that big men have been helped to the harm of the smaller man under NRA, which, we agreed, was true in some codes, but which is natural in some cases because the bigger interests, like Goodyear, are able to have representatives in Washington when the codes are made. It's just a case of where the man on the job gets more than others.

Social Change Not Necessary

"Miss Perkins is not inclined to agree with Darrow's criticisms at many points. Nor does she believe a change in the social system is necessary as she has seen shorter hours for labor, increased wages and abolishment of child labor come about under the present system.

"I suggested to her that the employe class might be just as indignant with control as anyone else. Communists would not be satisfied any more than others, so the president would lose both the right and left wings and would not be able to accomplish what he has set out to do, I said. She said the reasoning was right, but the premises wrong in this, because there are not so many extremists on both sides.

"Miss Perkins said that what the administration wants done, it desires shall be done under the present social system, and that the middle portion of the people is much larger than either extreme group."

The speaker told of his talks with Mr. Wilson, who is in charge of the administration of the program for making loans on homes to supplement people's incomes, with Senator Borah, Senator McAdoo, Senator Johnson and others.

Referring again to the administration program, the publisher declared that President Roosevelt is aware of the conditions of the unemployed and aged who have lost everything in the depression and were utterly ruined through no fault of their own. Now they are planning to develop work, as far as it can be, among the number of people prepared to do that work. Those that are not able to work, the government plans to care for through government aid.

Discussing old age pension plans, the speaker declared that it is his opinion that the Townsend Old Age Revolving Pension plan would have an impossible task to raise $400 a couple a month. It would make the proposed sales tax to support the plan out of all reason, he declared.

Marshaling his points, the speaker declared that the administration, in his opinion, is attempting to correct the evils of the present system with legislation, with the knowledge that the first charge of every producer is necessity of the means of life for those who do the producing.

HELD FOR TRIAL

Merriweather Davis, 70, charged with a statutory offense, was bound over to the superior court today by Judge Kenneth Morrison, who set bail at $2500.

HEAVY BAIL SET ON SUSPECT IN KIDNAPING CASE

Held in jail under $25,000 bail set by Judge Kenneth Morrison, Billy Griffin, 49, Santa Ana dishwasher, is awaiting his preliminary hearing on June 27 on charges of kidnaping and a statutory offense, allegedly committed against a 6-year-old girl Sunday night.

Griffin was arrested early yesterday morning after he released little Velva Cowden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Cowden, 520 West Third street. The child said she had been kept by Griffin all night in his room and an examination at the Orange County hospital revealed that she had been criminally attacked, according to police records.

Griffin was arraigned in justice court late yesterday by police. He had previously admitted taking the girl to his room, after finding her near Birch park at 6 o'clock Sunday night, and said he had been drinking beer and bay rum.

The girl was found after an all night search by her parents and police. Officers Roy Hantsbarger and W. E. B. Sherwood saw the child just as she was returning to her home and she then led them to the home of Griffin, who was renting a room at 410 West Second street.

He has been in Santa Ana three weeks and was employed part of that time as a dishwasher in a local cafe, he said.

DEMANDS $5182 IN DAMAGE COMPLAINT

Charging careless and negligent driving of an automobile, Freeman Kinney, 17, through his guardian, S. A. Kinney, today filed suit in superior court against James Standlee and Mollie Standlee, seeking court action to obtain damages amounting to $5182.

P. B. Erwin and James Erwin also were named as defendants in the case. The complaint said that on April 9 of this year the younger Kinney was a passenger in a car driven by James Erwin and owned by P. B. Erwin when, on Cherry avenue in North Long Beach near the intersection of Orangethorpe road, Erwin's car collided with a car driven by James Standlee, which is owned by Mollie Standlee.

Freeman Kinney was thrown through the windshield in the crash, it was said, and suffered a broken lower jaw, broken teeth and cuts and bruises.

The boys were taken into custody by Deputy Sheriffs R. E. Steinberger, James Workman and R. R. Lutes. They had in their possession the ladies' wrist watch, knife, pencil, films and 11 cents taken from the Duckworth home and also admitted that they attempted to break into the Duckworth store the same evening.

PEST CONTROL PLAN PROVIDES LABOR FOR 100

A county-wide SERA project calling for a total expenditure of $77,391.40 and which would give 100 men 134,400 hours of employment was approved by the board of supervisors today.

At the morning session D. W. Tubbs, county agricultural commissioner, submitted the project to the board of supervisors for control and elimination of agricultural pests.

The project is a combined one, with all of the similar projects which were not completed in the CWA program included, Tubbs said.

It is planned to eradicate ground squirrels, pocket gophers, Johnson grass, grasshoppers, hosts of plant diseases, insect pests and other pests in the county project. Tubbs will supervise the project.

The SERA is asked for $67,200 for labor costs, while the state contribution is expected to amount to $6673.60. The county of Orange will contribute $3517.80 for materials. The state contribution is to be from the agricultural department.

Men employed on the project would be paid an average of 50 cents an hour. The project must get the approval of the local committee, then go on to state SERA headquarters for final approval.

This morning the supervisors adopted a resolution authorizing Chairman Willard Smith to sign county SERA projects.

The board canvassed the election return from the Garden Grove water district election last week when about 260 acres of land was annexed to the district. Seventeen votes in favor of annexation and none in opposition were cast.

Supervisor W. C. Jerome received the consent of the board to authorize an expenditure of around $800 to place Celetex on the ceiling of the county auditor's office to quiet the noise in the room.

WHEELER HEARING CONTINUED TODAY

The case is being heard by Judge Lloyd Griffin in superior court.

E. E. Campbell of Orange, was on the witness stand yesterday afternoon as a witness for Sheldon Wheeler, who is suing his father, J. L. Wheeler, the First National bank in Santa Ana and the San Joaquin Fruit company, charging that mortgage payments were improperly made and that J. L. Wheeler received the better half of the 40-acre citrus land.

Although Campbell testified regarding the relative value of the four parcels of land which comprises the 40 acres, attorneys for the plaintiff were not able to quality Campbell as an expert and to have his testimony recorded.

ROOSEVELT PLANS PROGRAM UNDER PRESENT SYSTEM TO MEET NEEDS OF THE PEOPLE

President Roosevelt and the administration does not plan to follow an economic and social road which will lead the nation to the extreme radical left, nor does the government plan to develop a program so conservative the needs of the people cannot be met, and is tremendously interested in the problems of the people, including unemployment and old age pensions.

This message was brought to a crowd which filled the east lobby of the Y.M.C.A. building last night as J. F. Burke, who recently returned from Washington where he conferred with high governmental officials and members of congress, told of his impressions of the government's program.

The president is more concerned over the unemployment situation than anyone else, the publisher said, and is attempting through a definite program of legislation to correct the evils of the present system, rather than to try to change the social system.

The speaker told of his experience when he attended a press conference with President Roosevelt in Washington. President Roosevelt, he said, is dededidly popular with newspapermen, because of his frank manner in answering questions. The president either tells the press that he cannot answer their questions, refers them to a member of his cabinet, or answers the questions at once, he said.

"Newspapermen," the publisher said, "like to know what is going on and to enjoy the confidence of officials. If there is something which should not be printed, newspapermen like to know the truth, take the information to their publisher and act on the wisest course. One of the questions asked of the president at the conference was why he did not treat the newspaper boys like himself at a press reception the night before. I learned later that the newspapermen were dressed in full evening dress, with their wives attired in evening gowns, while President Roosevelt attended the event in a business suit which looked like it had not been pressed for several days."

Both President Roosevelt and his wife are sympathetic to the needs of the people and are human in their thoughts and relationships he declared.

Sees Labor Secretary

His conference with Secretary of Labor Perkins which lasted for several hours on a Saturday afternoon proved most interesting, the speaker said.

"I had watched Miss Perkins' life," he said, "and was most glad and surprised when she was appointed secretary of labor. It is certain she is not a politician, but is deeply interested in the welfare of the wage earner, in men's and women's wages and child labor problems.

"Strikes in Toledo and Minneapolis were at their height when Miss Perkins granted me an interview. I began to apologize for taking her time, when she told me that if I was interested in labor I was not taking her time any more than she was taking mine. She was at work on Saturday afternoon when most offices are closed.

"Darrow had just made his first criticism of NRA, and Miss Perkins wanted to learn the reaction to his criticism. I was in her office when Charles Taft, son of former President Taft, who is a prominent Y.M.C.A. worker that I knew, called her. She is a wonderfully informed and able woman.

"We discussed Darrow's criticism that big men have been helped to the harm of the smaller man under NRA, which, we agreed, was true in some codes, but which is natural in some cases because the bigger interests, like Goodyear, are able to have representatives in Washington when the codes are made. It's just a case of where the man on the job gets more than others.

Social Change Not Necessary

"Miss Perkins is not inclined to agree with Darrow's criticisms at many points. Nor does she believe a change in the social system is necessary as she has seen shorter hours for labor, increased wages and abolishment of child labor come about under the present system.

"I suggested to her that the employe class might be just as indignant with control as anyone else. Communists would not be satisfied any more than others, so the president would lose both the right and left wings and would not be able to accomplish what he has set out to do, I said. She said the reasoning was right, but the premises wrong in this, because there are not so many extremists on both sides.

"Miss Perkins said that what the administration wants done, it desires shall be done under the present social system, and that the middle portion of the people is much larger than either extreme group."

The speaker told of his talks with Mr. Wilson, who is in charge of the administration of the program for making loans on homes to supplement people's incomes, with Senator Borah, Senator McAdoo, Senator Johnson and others.

Referring again to the administration program, the publisher declared that President Roosevelt is aware of the conditions of the unemployed and aged who have lost everything in the depression and were utterly ruined through no fault of their own. Now they are planning to develop work, as far as it can be, among the number of people prepared to do that work. Those that are not able to work, the government plans to care for through government aid.

Discussing old age pension plans, the speaker declared that it is his opinion that the Townsend Old Age Revolving Pension plan would have an impossible task to raise $400 a couple a month. It would make the proposed sales tax to support the plan out of all reason, he declared.

Marshaling his points, the speaker declared that the administration, in his opinion, is attempting to correct the evils of the present system with legislation, with the knowledge that the first charge of every producer is necessity of the means of life for those who do the producing.

HELD FOR TRIAL

Merriweather Davis, 70, charged with a statutory offense, was bound over to the superior court today by Judge Kenneth Morrison, who set bail at $2500.

HEAVY BAIL SET ON SUSPECT IN KIDNAPING CASE

Held in jail under $25,000 bail set by Judge Kenneth Morrison, Billy Griffin, 49, Santa Ana dishwasher, is awaiting his preliminary hearing on June 27 on charges of kidnaping and a statutory offense, allegedly committed against a 6-year-old girl Sunday night.

Griffin was arrested early yesterday morning after he released little Velva Cowden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Cowden, 520 West Third street. The child said she had been kept by Griffin all night in his room and an examination at the Orange County hospital revealed that she had been criminally attacked, according to police records.

Griffin was arraigned in justice court late yesterday by police. He had previously admitted taking the girl to his room, after finding her near Birch park at 6 o'clock Sunday night, and said he had been drinking beer and bay rum.

The girl was found after an all night search by her parents and police. Officers Roy Hantsbarger and W. E. B. Sherwood saw the child just as she was returning to her home and she then led them to the home of Griffin, who was renting a room at 410 West Second street.

He has been in Santa Ana three weeks and was employed part of that time as a dishwasher in a local cafe, he said.

MANSLAUGHTER CASE OPENS IN COURT TODAY

Charged with murder in connection with the fatal accident at Dana Point on March 11 in which liquor is believed to have been involved and when three persons met their death, Al Brunner, 40, Long Beach fishing boat captain, went on trial in Judge James L. Allen's department of superior court today.

Leo Friis represented the district attorney's office while L. W. Blodgett represented the defendant.

The charges were founded on the death of Mrs. Jennie Orenstine, 45, of Los Angeles; her daughter, Beverly Orenstine, 23, and Mrs. Mildred Beckman Devitt, 26, Los Angeles school teacher.

Mrs. Orenstein and her daughter were burned to death in a car driven by Max Devitt, of Los Angeles, after the car had been in a collision with a car by Brunner on the Coast Highway near Dana Point. The car was destroyed by the fire. Mrs. Devitt was taken to the Santa Ana Valley hospital, where she died about a week later from injuries received in the crash. Harry Orenstein, husband of Mrs. Orenstine, also was hurt in the wreck, as was their six-year-old daughter.

Reports said that Brunner had been to Tiajuana, Mexico, and that his car had swerved across the road, striking the other car involved in the accident.

The entire morning was taken up with questioning of prospective jury members.

EVANGELIST OPENS MEETINGS IN S. A.

T. W. Phillips, jr., of Detroit, Michigan, one of the outstanding evangelists of the Church of Christ, is speaking at the Broadway and Walnut church in Santa Ana for a two weeks meeting which started Sunday. Phillips began preaching at the age of 13 years and during the past 17 years his work has earned him a national reputation as a forceful and colorful speaker and carried him to many points of interest, according to members of the host church. This is his second engagement in Santa Ana.

As an introductory sermon, the evangelist spoke on the "Spirit of Christ." He said in part:

"The pages of history record no equal to the Christ. The simplicity and strength of His character reveal the divinity of the man of Nazareth and the humanity of the Son of God. His life was marked by purity of thought and deed; by obedience and the spirit of love for His fellows. Christianity and doctrine are valueless unless they lead to more correct living."

There will be services each afternoon at 3 and each evening at 7:30. Special music has been prepared.

He urged parents of children to cooperate with precautionary measures being taken and avoid public gatherings.

MUCH INTEREST REPORTED IN PUMPING TESTS

BY HAROLD WAHLBERG
Farm Adviser

Much interest is manifested in the series of pump test demonstrations that have been arranged for Orange county growers and pump operators next week.

With changing water levels and old equipment, many plants are running at low efficiency, according to findings of the Farm Bureau water committee. Many plants can, with some overhauling and changes effect satisfactory efficiency and materially reduce their pumping costs.

The pump test demonstrations scheduled for Tuesday, June 26 and Wednesday, June 27, will show methods of testing plant efficiency and how some plants have reduced their water costs by reducing power costs and increasing water output. The changes necessary to accomplish better efficiency will be pointed out at the meetings.

The demonstrations are sponsored by the Farm Bureau water committee and the agricultural extension service. Plant tests will be made by engineers of the electrical bureau and water measurements by W. M. Cory, assistant farm adviser; J. B. Brown, irrigation engineer; agricultural extension service, and O. E. Steward, chairman of the water committee, who will speak at the pump demonstrations.

Two demonstrations have been arranged as follows:

Tuesday, June 26, 9 a. m.—Fiscus estate plant, corner 101 State Highway and Vermont street, south of Anaheim.

Wednesday, June 27, 9 a. m.—J. W. Williams plant, Magnolia avenue, near La Palma street, about three miles west and south of Fullerton.

REQUEST S. A. BAND TAKE PART IN CELEBRATION

Assistance of the city council was asked last night by the Huntington Beach Chamber of Commerce in sending the Santa Ana Municipal band to the beach city to participate in a parade on July 4.

Will H. Gallienne, Dr. L. S. Whittaker and Clifford L. King, who signed the letter, said that they had been informed by Harry Hanson, manager of the band, that there were insufficient funds to finance the band trip. They urged a reconsideration of the proposal, feeling that the largest city in the county should be represented in the celebration, which is also the observance of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the beach city.

No action was taken by the council except to refer it back to Hanson.

McManus, 0.

In singles, Dr. George Sellon of the Kiwanis club played Leonard West of Rotary and won 3-0.

The match occurred immediately after the Kiwanis meeting at El Patio cafe, where John C. Tuffree showed pictures of the South Sea islands.

BRUNS ACTS AS MAYOR DURING COUNCIL MEET

Councilman Plummer Bruns acted as temporary mayor at the council meeting last night, but only after considerable argument and revoting on who should take the presiding chair left vacant by the resignation of former Mayor Paul Witmer.

When City Clerk Ed Vegely called for nominations for temporary chairman, A. F. LeGaye nominated E. G. Warner and Warner nominated Bruns. LeGaye explained his choice by saying that Warner was the only man left on the council who had been originally elected by the people. Warner, who was named temporary chairman when Witmer resigned last week, said he did not want the honor and preferred Bruns.

William Penn seconded the nomination for Bruns but Vegely, LeGaye and most of the audience misunderstood his second and thought he favored Warner, instead of Warner's motion. All voted yes on the motion and then Penn and Warner discovered the discrepancy in thought and asked for a revote.

When new nominations were called, Bruns nominated LeGaye, Warner nominated Bruns and Bruns was put into the office without the formality of an oral vote, since Warner and Penn could have outvoted LeGaye.

Crack 'Cycle Squad May Be Here For Big Motor Pageant

Former Mayor Paul Witmer's request to the Los Angeles police department to send its crack motorcycle squad to Santa Ana on June 27 in connection with the Mid-Summer Motor Pageant, is being considered and will probably receive favorable action, it was learned last night in a letter to the city council from Mayor L. A. Shaw.

The Los Angeles squad will be sent here unless there is unprecedented trouble in the harbor area, the letter stated. The stunts by the trick and stunt cycle riders would supplement the midget auto races, fashion show and motor car review planned for the evening.

COUNCIL NOTES

Four or five city officials will attend the meeting Thursday of the Los Angeles County League of Municipalities in Santa Monica, it was decided last night when an invitation was presented at the council meeting.

A letter was read from the publicity director for Senator Hiram Johnson, thanking the city council and Mayor Paul Witmer for the letter of appreciation sent Johnson for his aid in securing federal money for public works in this area.

SPECIAL POLICE TO BE NAMED NEXT MONDAY

Special police officers will be appointed by the city council next week, with the exception of F. C. Lockhart, who was named last night.

Lockhart asked that his commission be granted so that he would have more authority in his work of guarding business houses at night. Personnel Officer Lloyd Banks recommended him for appointment and a unanimous vote was taken.

Banks announced that 15 applications had been approved and three needed additional information. He will make his recommendations next week.

The new action follows the cancellation of all special officer commissions by the council. Detailed application forms must now be filled out by all applicants for the posts, which do not carry a salary.

GRANT REQUESTS FOR ZONE CHANGE

An application to change zoning near Fruit and Santiago streets and a request to build a service station at 1002 South Main street were approved by the city council last night, following the absence of protests at a joint meeting of the city council and planning commission.

Steele Finley, representing property owners of the Fruit street district, had asked for the zoning change from an apartment house district to light industrial. The change was wanted to permit the operation of a gasoline distributing plant.

H. C. Hood had asked for the service station permit. The property was posted for special use a week ago.

Both applications were referred to the city attorney after being approved by the council.

OFFERS TO TRADE ORGAN FOR JOB

If Santa Ana had a municipal auditorium, and a need for a pipe organ, and a further need for someone to play the instrument it could enter into negotiations to have an organ donated to the city.

This was learned last night at the city council meeting when a letter was read from Vernon Knaus of the Knaus School of Organ Playing, Penn., offering to donate a $25,000 Wurlitzer organ to a city which had a municipal auditorium and would hire him as organist for several years.

Although Santa Ana has no auditorium, or need for a city organist, the matter was referred for disposal to Harry Hanson, chairman of the music committee.

Put a REPAIRMAN to Work!

Constant repair is necessary to keep our highly mechanized homes in satisfactory running order.

All things seem to wear out eventually, and care is necessary in inspection and minor repairs to prevent more extensive repair jobs later on.

There are few homes but what need to put a repairman of some kind to work, for an hour, a day, or several days.

Our lawn mowers, radios; our washing machines, our sewing machines, vacuum cleaners, light cords; our ranges, automobiles; our furniture and everything else needs a repairman now and then.

There are "fixit men" who specialize in all kinds of odd jobs. Others grind scissors and sharpen knives, which is a feature of household maintenance.

Nearly every sales organization maintains a repair department, for the successful maintenance of their products, and the wages these men receive help greatly to build a profitable volume of business in the community.

Put a repairman to work—when you need him—and it may save a complete replacement. At least, it will tend to greater efficiency and greater satisfaction in the operation of the home.

For no machine, and no appliance, can render the best service if parts are worn and if it is in need of cleaning, adjustment, and repair.

If you can get a new car, or refrigerator, or range, or washing machine, or sewing machine or any other new model to replace the old, do so, for the latest and best is none too good for you.

But if such replacement is impossible at this time, PUT A REPAIRMAN TO WORK to fix the old, and maintain it in good, serviceable, and satisfactory order, to do you until you can make such desired replacement.

MUCH INTEREST REPORTED IN PUMPING TESTS

BY HAROLD WAHLBERG
Farm Adviser

Much interest is manifested in the series of pump test demonstrations that have been arranged for Orange county growers and pump operators next week.

With changing water levels and old equipment, many plants are running at low efficiency, according to findings of the Farm Bureau water committee. Many plants can, with some overhauling and changes effect satisfactory efficiency and materially reduce their pumping costs.

The pump test demonstrations scheduled for Tuesday, June 26 and Wednesday, June 27, will show methods of testing plant efficiency and how some plants have reduced their water costs by reducing power costs and increasing water output. The changes necessary to accomplish better efficiency will be pointed out at the meetings.

The demonstrations are sponsored by the Farm Bureau water committee and the agricultural extension service. Plant tests will be made by engineers of the electrical bureau and water measurements by W. M. Cory, assistant farm adviser; J. B. Brown, irrigation engineer; agricultural extension service, and O. E. Steward, chairman of the water committee, who will speak at the pump demonstrations.

Two demonstrations have been arranged as follows:

Tuesday, June 26, 9 a. m.—Fiscus estate plant, corner 101 State Highway and Vermont street, south of Anaheim.

Wednesday, June 27, 9 a. m.—J. W. Williams plant, Magnolia avenue, near La Palma street, about three miles west and south of Fullerton.

All persons interested in the pumping plant operation and water costs are invited to attend.

Gerhart is executive secretary for the 74th Assembly district in Orange county and is acting as campaign manager for the Sinclair forces in their assembly district.

Wilbur M. Case paid $8, Kenneth Ulrich paid $6 and Earl Horton paid $5 on speeding charges in police court yesterday.

REQUEST S. A. BAND TAKE PART IN CELEBRATION

Assistance of the city council was asked last night by the Huntington Beach Chamber of Commerce in sending the Santa Ana Municipal band to the beach city to participate in a parade on July 4.

Will H. Gallienne, Dr. L. S. Whittaker and Clifford L. King, who signed the letter, said that they had been informed by Harry Hanson, manager of the band, that there were insufficient funds to finance the band trip. They urged a reconsideration of the proposal, feeling that the largest city in the county should be represented in the celebration, which is also the observance of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the beach city.

No action was taken by the council except to refer it back to Hanson.

WOMEN Behind the BIG GUNS of the NEW DEAL

By Flora G. Orr

"Feminine secretaries," says a Washington wise man, "are tight-lipped and loyal"---and that's why, back of every man of importance, you find a woman carrying on the details of office

"BACK of every important man," said one of the better-known New Dealers recently, "you will find some woman quietly doing most of the hard, detailed work of his office.

"She goes unadvertised and unsung, as a rule, but the man, if he is honest with himself, knows her worth and fully realizes that he would be lost without her."

The person who said this should know whereof she speaks, for she herself had been for months virtually a shadow and alter ego for one of the largest guns which the administration brought into action last summer, when NRA was but an infant and the Blue Eagle was only an egg in the incubator.

In other words, it was "Robbie," or Frances M. Robinson, long the private secretary or special administrative assistant, if you will, to Gen. Hugh S. ("Crack-Down") Johnson, who spoke the words of wisdom just quoted.

Although Miss Robinson herself, of course, has never, from first to last, been one of the "unknowns," there are at least 50 less-publicized women who have made themselves indispensable in Washington to senators, cabinet members, little-cabinet officials, and special emergency agency administrators.

The names of a few are slightly familiar to the general public. The vast majority crave no publicity, may even shrink from it, but if they should form a union and all go on strike at one time, it is no exaggeration to say that the nation would immediately know that something had gone amiss in the halls of authority.

The tempers of the Washington big shots would snap. There would be quarrels and resignations galore. Perhaps even dueling would once more come into fashion.

Although her chief at the moment is Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, former governor of Wyoming and vice chairman of the Democratic National Committee, Miss O'Reilly has actually run that factory known as the United States Mint for many years. It is so much her job that some mornings she must not be able to recall, until she is thoroughly awake, whether it is the Democrats or the Republicans who are in power just now.

For, as Calvin Coolidge once remarked about the occupants of the White House, who don't actually live there, "but just come and go," directors of the Mint change, but Miss O'Reilly does not. She has worked up in the ranks until she is an expert in her line; is known as an authority on coinage all over the world.

So quietly and modestly does Miss O'Reilly sit working in her office among some of the lovely antiques she has collected in Virginia and her own New England that she might be able to deceive you as to the extent of her power and prestige. But if China or Timbuctu is going to make new plans for coining hard money, it is Miss O'Reilly's suggestions which are sought in this country. She has attended more than one international monetary conference as an expert and her views have been used as the base of guidance at others.

Perhaps it is Mister Big Man's private secretary, however, whose place as caretaker of the Big Shots is most interesting. It is easy to see, if you look carefully, what a powerful influence she wields on public affairs from the White House on down the line.

FROM a tiny private office in the Executive Wing of the White House, Miss Marguerite LeHand, or "Missy," as President Roosevelt calls her, conducts the most important personal-secretarial work for the Big Boss.

She it is who goes over his semi-private and personal correspondence, selects the proper moment to approach this busiest of men with items and letters which must be brought to his attention. Often, of course, she will have answers to such letters already written before the president sees the original letter.

Gen. Hugh S. Johnson's confidential assistant is Miss Frances Robinson, who's shown here discussing something with him while the waiter hands out some food at a big soup-and-fish dinner in New York.

Miss LeHand has been with President Roosevelt so long—more than 13 years—knows him so well, idolizes him as the perfect private secretary must always do if she is to be happy in her work—that she plays a part most important in the United States today.

When she goes to take dictation and talk personal business with F. D. R. immediately after he has had his breakfast, she knows what little jokes will set him in good humor—probably she will have some special clippings and humorous comments to show him. She can judge letters which will particularly appeal and which she knows he will wish to answer with a personal word.

A small boy in an obscure town in Wisconsin the other day received a hand-written letter from the president. The lad is ill with some curious disease which has baffled his physicians. He had written to F. D. R. about it. It was because of "Missy" LeHand's knowledge of "F. D.," as she calls him, that this letter was placed before the Chief Executive and a reply note was written.

MISS LeHAND pours tea or sits as hostess at the dinner table, plays games or goes riding with Roosevelt, when neither Mrs. Roosevelt nor Mrs. Dall are at home.

Roosevelt seldom travels without "Missy." He needs her help constantly, would be the first to say that he could not do without her.

A similar role, in many respects, to that played for Roosevelt by Miss LeHand, is the one enacted by Mrs. Henrietta Klotz for her boss, Henry Morgenthau, Jr., Secretary of the United States Treasury, excepting for the fact that Mrs. Klotz deals with important business and Treasury as well as personal matters.

Unlike Miss LeHand's office, that of Mrs. Klotz is a spacious, imposing room in the building over which the spirit of Alexander Hamilton presides. Her big, polished, mahogany desk, always in perfect order, looks all the more dignified because Mrs. Klotz herself is so tiny. Known as the best-dressed supersecretary in Washington, Mrs. Klotz must shop for her dresses in the juniors' department.

Scarcely an important move has Mr. Morgenthau made for the last 12 years without consulting the keen brain of little Mrs. Klotz. She sits beside him at press conferences, even as "Robbie" used to do with General Johnson, during the first nine months of the life of the NRA.

She has managed his business affairs for him in private life, has attended to the management of his huge farm in New York State, selected investments for his money. When Mr. Morgenthau was Conservation Commissioner of New York State, Mrs. Klotz remained in New York City to act in his stead as publisher of the American Agriculturist.

MISS MARY HUSS is private secretary to Secretary of Agriculture Wallace—she swears by his sincerity and his ability and his clear head.

Assistant Secretary Rexford G. Tugwell, and has no patience with his critics; Secretary of Commerce Roper entrusts secrets to Margie G. Renn; Secretary of War Dern gives confidential dictation to Martha E. McPherson.

Assistant Secretary of the Navy Henry L. Roosevelt pushes a button to summon Helen G. O'Neill when he wants the benefit of the perfect secretary's advice; Charlotte Smith probably knows as much about subsistence homesteads as does her boss, M. L. Wilson, who's running that particular sideshow in the New Deal circus. Budget Director Lew Douglas has with him as secretary Miss Marie A. Johnston, to whom budget directors are a familiar species—she has served three of them.

Everybody knows how Frances Jurkowitz guards the portals to the inner shrine where Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor, sits managing her statistical bureaus, her immigration authorities, her employment agencies. "Miss Jay" has been with her employer a long time, is no longer classified as a private secretary, but as something more imposing (because that means more money in the government).

She is not particularly diplomatic in handling callers, but Miss Perkins depends upon her and the two of them understand each other. Ed McGrady, one of Miss Perkins' Assistant Secretaries of Labor, is private secretaried by Anna V. Moynihan.

Mrs. Kathryn Godwin, wife of a Washington newspaperman, has been connected with federal relief work ever since this was begun back in the Hoover administration under the auspices of the RFC. Today she is right-hand man for Harry L. Hopkins, Emergency Relief Administrator, and she holds the office of Secretary of the Surplus Relief Corporation. She is also a Kentucky colonel.

Leaving out of consideration Mrs. Jack Garner, wife and secretary of the vice president; and Mrs. Rainey, wife and secretary of the Speaker of the House, women secretaries are rather a new institution on the Hill.

Only during the last 15 years have they become sufficiently commonplace to excite no comment. Senators used to think that a man secretary, who was also something of a politician, was a necessity in the office.

Miss Cora Rubin, secretary to Senator Borah, was probably one of the first women in the Senate Office Building to attain the title and honor. She says that her work with the senator is the only job she has ever held.

She has been a worker in the office since 1908; secretary since 1920. Although Senator Borah will never travel abroad, Miss Rubin sometimes does. Particularly notable was a 6000-mile trip through Russia which she took in 1931. It goes without saying that Senator Borah was an interested listener when Miss Rubin came back home and reported upon her journey. Miss Rubin never tries to plan Senator Borah's day for him. He is too independent to be treated in any such fashion. "I just attend to various chores while the senator does the brain work of the office." Thus Miss Rubin describes her work.

Other notable "assistant senators" are Sarah Orr Williams, secretary to Senator George of Georgia; Mary A. Connor, secretary to Senator Hiram Johnson of California; Mrs. Margaret L. Welsh, in the office of Senator Fess of Ohio; Ruth Kalthoff, secretary to Senator Dietrich of Illinois; Helen K. Kiefer, office manager for Senator McNary of Oregon; Minna L. Ruppert, contact secretary for Senator Wagner of New York; Grace McEldowney, secretary to New York's Senator Copeland.

WOMEN Behind the BIG GUNS of the NEW DEAL

By Flora G. Orr

"Feminine secretaries," says a Washington wise man, "are tight-lipped and loyal"---and that's why, back of every man of importance, you find a woman carrying on the details of office

"BACK of every important man," said one of the better-known New Dealers recently, "you will find some woman quietly doing most of the hard, detailed work of his office.

"She goes unadvertised and unsung, as a rule, but the man, if he is honest with himself, knows her worth and fully realizes that he would be lost without her."

The person who said this should know whereof she speaks, for she herself had been for months virtually a shadow and alter ego for one of the largest guns which the administration brought into action last summer, when NRA was but an infant and the Blue Eagle was only an egg in the incubator.

In other words, it was "Robbie," or Frances M. Robinson, long the private secretary or special administrative assistant, if you will, to Gen. Hugh S. ("Crack-Down") Johnson, who spoke the words of wisdom just quoted.

Although Miss Robinson herself, of course, has never, from first to last, been one of the "unknowns," there are at least 50 less-publicized women who have made themselves indispensable in Washington to senators, cabinet members, little-cabinet officials, and special emergency agency administrators.

The names of a few are slightly familiar to the general public. The vast majority crave no publicity, may even shrink from it, but if they should form a union and all go on strike at one time, it is no exaggeration to say that the nation would immediately know that something had gone amiss in the halls of authority.

The tempers of the Washington big shots would snap. There would be quarrels and resignations galore. Perhaps even dueling would once more come into fashion.

Although her chief at the moment is Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, former governor of Wyoming and vice chairman of the Democratic National Committee, Miss O'Reilly has actually run that factory known as the United States Mint for many years. It is so much her job that some mornings she must not be able to recall, until she is thoroughly awake, whether it is the Democrats or the Republicans who are in power just now.

For, as Calvin Coolidge once remarked about the occupants of the White House, who don't actually live there, "but just come and go," directors of the Mint change, but Miss O'Reilly does not. She has worked up in the ranks until she is an expert in her line; is known as an authority on coinage all over the world.

So quietly and modestly does Miss O'Reilly sit working in her office among some of the lovely antiques she has collected in Virginia and her own New England that she might be able to deceive you as to the extent of her power and prestige. But if China or Timbuctu is going to make new plans for coining hard money, it is Miss O'Reilly's suggestions which are sought in this country. She has attended more than one international monetary conference as an expert and her views have been used as the base of guidance at others.

Perhaps it is Mister Big Man's private secretary, however, whose place as caretaker of the Big Shots is most interesting. It is easy to see, if you look carefully, what a powerful influence she wields on public affairs from the White House on down the line.

FROM a tiny private office in the Executive Wing of the White House, Miss Marguerite LeHand, or "Missy," as President Roosevelt calls her, conducts the most important personal-secretarial work for the Big Boss.

She it is who goes over his semi-private and personal correspondence, selects the proper moment to approach this busiest of men with items and letters which must be brought to his attention. Often, of course, she will have answers to such letters already written before the president sees the original letter.

Miss LeHand has been with President Roosevelt so long—more than 13 years—knows him so well, idolizes him as the perfect private secretary must always do if she is to be happy in her work—that she plays a part most important in the United States today.

When she goes to take dictation and talk personal business with F. D. R. immediately after he has had his breakfast, she knows what little jokes will set him in good humor—probably she will have some special clippings and humorous comments to show him. She can judge letters which will particularly appeal and which she knows he will wish to answer with a personal word.

A small boy in an obscure town in Wisconsin the other day received a hand-written letter from the president. The lad is ill with some curious disease which has baffled his physicians. He had written to F. D. R. about it. It was because of "Missy" LeHand's knowledge of "F. D." as she calls him, that this letter was placed before the Chief Executive and a reply note was written.

MISS LeHAND pours tea or sits as hostess at the dinner table, plays games or goes riding with Roosevelt, when neither Mrs. Roosevelt nor Mrs. Dall are at home.

Roosevelt seldom travels without "Missy." He needs her help constantly, would be the first to say that he could not do without her.

A similar role, in many respects, to that played for Roosevelt by Miss LeHand, is the one enacted by Mrs. Henrietta Klotz for her boss, Henry Morgenthau, Jr., Secretary of the United States Treasury, excepting for the fact that Mrs. Klotz deals with important business and Treasury as well as personal matters.

Unlike Miss LeHand's office, that of Mrs. Klotz is a spacious, imposing room in the building over which the spirit of Alexander Hamilton presides. Her big, polished, mahogany desk, always in perfect order, looks all the more dignified because Mrs. Klotz herself is so tiny. Known as the best-dressed super-secretary in Washington, Mrs. Klotz must shop for her dresses in the juniors' department.

Scarcely an important move has Mr. Morgenthau made for the last 12 years without consulting the keen brain of little Mrs. Klotz. She sits beside him at press conferences, even as "Robbie" used to do with General Johnson, during the first nine months of the life of the NRA.

She has managed his business affairs for him in private life, has attended to the management of his huge farm in New York State, selected investments for his money. When Mr. Morgenthau was Conservation Commissioner of New York State, Mrs. Klotz remained in New York City to act in his stead as publisher of the American Agriculturist.

MISS MARY HUSS is private secretary to Secretary of Agriculture Wallace—she swears by his sincerity and his ability and his clear head.

Asks $5400 For Crash Damages

An action for $5400 damages has been filed in superior court by A. C. Merrick against Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Douglass and their son, Earl, for injuries received by Merrick in an automobile crash at Main and Sycamore streets, Orange, March 8.

Merrick claims that he suffered concussion of the brain, a crushed chest and sundry bruises when his car collided with the Douglass car, driven by Earl Douglass. The other driver was responsible for the wreck, Merrick asserted.

WASHINGTON
By Paul Mallon

BUSINESS

Those who know the inside of business feel a little better now.

The adjournment of Congress, President Roosevelt's attitude (he is so confident he is going away for a six weeks' vacation), the softening of NRA policy and a number of other factors are removing the glum looks from those who have been sour because they did not get a better spring improvement.

That is why the stock market has been stronger recently. There will be a July recession. There always is. It will be no shock to sentiment. Prospects for fall are fairly good. You can expect increased activity beginning September and carrying through probably until November.

The spring peak may be exceeded, but not by a very great margin.

EXPENDITURES

The main thing is Mr. Roosevelt's pockets are bulging with money, the sum he has is so vast that it cannot be accurately calculated, but it is somewhere near ten billions. This includes the five billions he can use out of the RFC, the remainder of the public works funds, drought relief, AAA funds, etc.

He will not spend all this money unless an unexpected emergency arises, but his economic calculators are figuring now on putting out more than two billions before the first of the year. How much they spend will, of course, depend on economic requirements.

At any rate, he is well fortified to meet any possible demands.

GAME

Mr. Roosevelt is playing the John Maynard Keynes game. That is, he has quietly accumulated from Congress this session authority to spend these very great sums with a view to using them to balance the business situation. He calls it "priming the pump."

Unquestionably, his rate of expenditure will increase during July and August. His treasury is in good shape. His only worry will be to balance the budget during the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1935. His prospects of doing that are not very good, but that is a long way off.

There is no prospect at all that he will have to inflate for money to carry his expenditures during the next six months.

• • •

HOUSING

No one in authority expects very much out of the home repair and modernization plan this year. Insiders are not saying so publicly, but they have their eyes set on stimulating new construction next year, using this means to supplant the public works program, which will then be about played out.

Prices of manufactured goods generally will probably ease off in relation to other prices, which may help to spread a larger volume of consumption.

There will be labor troubles, and plenty of them, but no more than we are now having.

• • •

WAR DEBTS

The President is really serious about getting the war debts paid in goods. His advisers on that subject privately believe that is the only way they can be paid. They have a scheme already worked out, but it cannot be offered now in view of the British attitude.

This scheme would have the debtor governments purchase from their own producers or manufacturers such goods as rubber, tin, potash, perfumes. These goods would then be shipped to the United States government, which, in turn would sell them to American importers and credit the money received to the debtor's account. No cash would be involved.

There will be much jockeying back and forth during the next six months on this subject, but, in the end, you may see a final agreement along these lines.

• • •

DISARMAMENT

Instead of admitting they could not get anywhere, they appointed committees to "study the situation." The principal ministers then went home and left the committees to subordinates.

There will not be any disarmament any time soon. The world is not ready for it.

• • •

POLITICS

The Democrats are arranging to make big use of Mr. Roosevelt's message on social trends for the fall campaign. They admit frankly that it was a Congressional campaign document and was so intended.

The Republican political strategy is to bear down heavily on Mr. Roosevelt's expenditures. They know it is a hard issue to get over to the people. The average man pays very little attention to government figures, even when he pays his income tax.

NOTES

The general supposition among the political master minds is that the Republicans will gain about 50 House seats, but they really know nothing about it. They cannot until they find out what the prices of hogs and wheat are along about two weeks before election.

• • •

Mr. Roosevelt's policies were far more popular in the House this session than in the Senate. The reason is that the House is distinctly more left wing than the Senate.

• • •

The reason Mr. Roosevelt is making that radio speech is to encourage business confidence, which has been somewhat upset while the recent Congressional reforms were being enacted.

NEW YORK
By James McMullin

LOANS

The age of miracles isn't over. One ore more large New York banks will soon be making direct first mortgage loans on local real estate again.

The loans won't be lavish. Mostly they will be for such purposes as renovation of property to produce better income, for payment of back taxes to enable an owner to clear his title or to provide modest working capital. The lenders will adhere strictly to the rule that full repayment must be assured in from three to five years. The banks haven't shed their conservatism.

But any real estate loans by commercial banks—after years of shunning such business as they would the plague—are significant of a thaw in credit that should have far-reaching results.

The bankers who conceived the project hope their gesture will stir a live current in the real estate Sargasso and will also shut off the perennial criticism that they're too Scotch with credit. Then there's a neat angle of sliding from under a distasteful alternative.

• • •

NIFTY

Governor Lehman hasn't said so publicly but the forthcoming special session of the New York legislature was planned in part to revive and pass the Alger-Cook bill. This bill was designed to relieve the distressed holders of defaulted mortgage certificates by lending them money. The measure contemplates supplying part of the necessary funds from the New York banks in the form of capital for a lending corporation.

This idea never appealed to the bankers at all. They couldn't see that certificate holders would be relieved by going into hock. Also they seriously doubted that the bulk of advances they might be compelled to make would ever be repaid. But the Governor was strong for the bill and so were real estate interests and it looked as if banking wishes would be overruled.

Now they believe they can persuade the Governor that their direct loan plan will do more good all around. They've already sold the real estate leaders—who are abandoning the Alger-Cook bill for the bankers' project en masse. One bank alone is willing to put up as much for the new type of loan as all the local banks combined would have had to shell out under the Alger-Cook system.

It's a nifty. By volunteering sound and profitable credit expansion to help solve a critical problem the banks stand a swell chance of sidetracking a menace permanently.

REHEARSAL

The 3 to 5 year aspect of the proposed loans is worth stressing. They represent the first real break in the super-liquidity dike. Insiders consider the move a dress rehearsal for a much broader extension of intermediate credit which would go far to relieve continued stagnation of industrial activity in many lines. Now that prejudice against real estate collateral has been cracked prejudice against normal business risks will follow.

• • •

MORGENTHAU

The informed learn that Treasury Secretary Morgenthau plans to spend the month of July in New York. Office accommodations are being prepared for him in the Custom House.

Shrewd observers say his visit has more than a casual connection with the promotion of intermediate credit through normal banking channels.

He can do more to develop contacts and machinery for work along that line as Johnny-on-the-spot where the big banks are than he could in Washington. Experts believe there's a good chance for effective mobilization of credit forces before the summer is over.

• • •

HARRIMAN

The local banks which have agreed to pay their share of the Harriman's losses include all those whose officers participated in the Clearing House pledge that was never fulfilled. Their offer holds good only if the government and 90 per cent of the Harriman's depositors release them from any further claims. Settlement on those terms is cheap. An adverse court decision might easily have cost them more.

• • •

Local insiders get confidential figures on the effects of the German boycott by Jews the world over. German experts last month reached the lowest point since the end of the war—$30,000,000 less than for the same month last year when the boycott first began to show results.

South Africa has responded handsomely to the Jewish demand for German punishment. All the department stores there but two are controlled by Jewish firms. Strong Jewish influence is also reported in Western Canada. It's estimated that about 75 per cent of the decline in Germany's foreign trade traces to the boycott.

• • •

FARLEY

Jim Farley's subtle methods of persuasion are beginning to click. Rival New York Democratic factions are coming to realize he's the boss whether they like it or not. In particular he's outsmarting Jimmy Hines—unofficial Tammany chief pro tem.

His method is simplicity itself. He just continues to hold back on federal patronage instead of dishing it out in deals. That annoys the job cravers plenty—but as long as he doesn't appoint their rivals either, they still cherish hopes—and must perforce behave. Keen observers predict this technique will gain him the Tammany leader he wants within a few months.

• • •

SCOOPS

The Whirligig takes pleasure in having informed its readers of the terms of the Harriman Bank settlement and which leading banks would settle, and of the impending withdrawal of the New York savings banks from FDIC on May 28. Those developments were featured as national news on June 12 and 13.

WASHINGTON
By Paul Mallon

BUSINESS

Those who know the inside of business feel a little better now.

The adjournment of Congress, President Roosevelt's attitude (he is so confident he is going away for a six weeks' vacation), the softening of NRA policy and a number of other factors are removing the glum looks from those who have been sour because they did not get a better spring improvement.

That is why the stock market has been stronger recently. There will be a July recession. There always is. It will be no shock to sentiment. Prospects for fall are fairly good. You can expect increased activity beginning September and carrying through probably until November.

The spring peak may be exceeded, but not by a very great margin.

EXPENDITURES

The main thing is Mr. Roosevelt's pockets are bulging with money, the sum he has is so vast that it cannot be accurately calculated, but it is somewhere near ten billions. This includes the five billions he can use out of the RFC, the remainder of the public works funds, drought relief, AAA funds, etc.

He will not spend all this money unless an unexpected emergency arises, but his economic calculators are figuring now on putting out more than two billions before the first of the year. How much they spend will, of course, depend on economic requirements.

At any rate, he is well fortified to meet any possible demands.

GAME

Mr. Roosevelt is playing the John Maynard Keynes game. That is, he has quietly accumulated from Congress this session authority to spend these very great sums with a view to using them to balance the business situation. He calls it "priming the pump."

Unquestionably, his rate of expenditure will increase during July and August. His treasury is in good shape. His only worry will be to balance the budget during the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1935. His prospects of doing that are not very good, but that is a long way off.

There is no prospect at all that he will have to inflate for money to carry his expenditures during the next six months.

* * *

HOUSING

No one in authority expects very much out of the home repair and modernization plan this year. Insiders are not saying so publicly, but they have their eyes set on stimulating new construction next year, using this means to supplant the public works program, which will then be about played out.

Prices of manufactured goods generally will probably ease off in relation to other prices, which may help to spread a larger volume of consumption.

There will be labor troubles, and plenty of them, but no more than we are now having.

* * *

WAR DEBTS

The President is really serious about getting the war debts paid in goods. His advisers on that subject privately believe that is the only way they can be paid. They have a scheme already worked out, but it cannot be offered now in view of the British attitude.

This scheme would have the debtor governments purchase from their own producers or manufacturers such goods as rubber, tin, potash, perfumes. These goods would then be shipped to the United States government, which, in turn would sell them to American importers and credit the money received to the debtor's account. No cash would be involved.

There will be much jockeying back and forth during the next six months on this subject, but, in the end, you may see a final agreement along these lines.

* * *

DISARMAMENT

Instead of admitting they could not get anywhere, they appointed committees to "study the situation." The principal ministers then went home and left the committees to subordinates.

There will not be any disarmament any time soon. The world is not ready for it.

* * *

POLITICS

The Democrats are arranging to make big use of Mr. Roosevelt's message on social trends for the fall campaign. They admit frankly that it was a Congressional campaign document and was so intended.

The Republican political strategy is to bear down heavily on Mr. Roosevelt's expenditures. They know it is a hard issue to get over to the people. The average man pays very little attention to government figures, even when he pays his income tax.

NOTES

The general supposition among the political master minds is that the Republicans will gain about 50 House seats, but they really know nothing about it. They cannot until they find out what the prices of hogs and wheat are along about two weeks before election.

* * *

Mr. Roosevelt's policies were far more popular in the House this session than in the Senate. The reason is that the House is distinctly more left wing than the Senate.

* * *

The reason Mr. Roosevelt is making that radio speech is to encourage business confidence, which has been somewhat upset while the recent Congressional reforms were being enacted.

NEW YORK
By James McMullin

LOANS

The age of miracles isn't over. One ore more large New York banks will soon be making direct first mortgage loans on local real estate again.

The loans won't be lavish. Mostly they will be for such purposes as renovation of property to produce better income, for payment of back taxes to enable an owner to clear his title or to provide modest working capital. The lenders will adhere strictly to the rule that full repayment must be assured in from three to five years. The banks haven't shed their conservatism.

But any real estate loans by commercial banks—after years of shunning such business as they would the plague—are significant of a thaw in credit that should have far-reaching results.

The bankers who conceived the project hope their gesture will stir a live current in the real estate Sargasso and will also shut off the perennial criticism that they're too Scotch with credit. Then there's a neat angle of sliding from under a distasteful alternative.

* * *

NIFTY

Governor Lehman hasn't said so publicly but the forthcoming special session of the New York legislature was planned in part to revive and pass the Alger-Cook bill. This bill was designed to relieve the distressed holders of defaulted mortgage certificates by lending them money. The measure contemplates supplying part of the necessary funds from the New York banks in the form of capital for a lending corporation.

This idea never appealed to the bankers at all. They couldn't see that certificate holders would be relieved by going into hock. Also they seriously doubted that the bulk of advances they might be compelled to make would ever be repaid. But the Governor was strong for the bill and so were real estate interests and it looked as if banking wishes would be overruled.

Now they believe they can persuade the Governor that their direct loan plan will do more good all around. They've already sold the real estate leaders—who are abandoning the Alger-Cook bill for the bankers' project en masse. One bank alone is willing to put up as much for the new type of loan as all the local banks combined would have had to shell out under the Alger-Cook system.

It's a nifty. By volunteering sound and profitable credit expansion to help solve a critical problem the banks stand a swell chance of sidetracking a menace permanently.

REHEARSAL

The 3 to 5 year aspect of the proposed loans is worth stressing. They represent the first real break in the super-liquidity dike. Insiders consider the move a dress rehearsal for a much broader extension of intermediate credit which would go far to relieve continued stagnation of industrial activity in many lines. Now that prejudice against real estate collateral has been cracked prejudice against normal business risks will follow.

* * *

MORGENTHAU

The informed learn that Treasury Secretary Morgenthau plans to spend the month of July in New York. Office accommodations are being prepared for him in the Custom House.

Shrewd observers say his visit has more than a casual connection with the promotion of intermediate credit through normal banking channels.

He can do more to develop contacts and machinery for work along that line as Johnny-on-the-spot where the big banks are than he could in Washington. Experts believe there's a good chance for effective mobilization of credit forces before the summer is over.

* * *

HARRIMAN

The local banks which have agreed to pay their share of the Harriman's losses include all those whose officers participated in the Clearing House pledge that was never fulfilled. Their offer holds good only if the government and 90 per cent of the Harriman's depositors release them from any further claims. Settlement on those terms is cheap. An adverse court decision might easily have cost them more.

* * *

BOYCOTT

Local insiders get confidential figures on the effects of the German boycott by Jews the world over. German experts last month reached the lowest point since the end of the war—$30,000,000 less than for the same month last year when the boycott first began to show results.

South Africa has responded handsomely to the Jewish demand for German punishment. All the department stores there but two are controlled by Jewish firms. Strong Jewish influence is also reported in Western Canada. It's estimated that about 75 per cent of the decline in Germany's foreign trade traces to the boycott.

* * *

FARLEY

Jim Farley's subtle methods of persuasion are beginning to click. Rival New York Democratic factions are coming to realize he's the boss whether they like it or not. In particular he's outsmarting Jimmy Hines—unofficial Tammany chief pro tem.

His method is simplicity itself. He just continues to hold back on federal patronage instead of dishing it out in deals. That annoys the job cravers plenty—but as long as he doesn't appoint their rivals either, they still cherish hopes—and must perforce behave. Keen observers predict this technique will gain him the Tammany leader he wants within a few months.

SCOOPS

The Whirligig takes pleasure in having informed its readers of the terms of the Harriman Bank settlement and which leading banks would settle, and of the impending withdrawal of the New York savings banks from FDIC on May 28. Those developments were featured as national news on June 12 and 13.

BURGLAR ESCAPES FOLLOWING FIGHT

A burglar who entered the room of Bernardino Aliprandini, 419 East Fourth street, was forced to take to sudden flight Saturday night when Aliprandini awakened and fought with him in the room, down the stairs and into the yard.

The intruder broke away near the sidewalk and escaped in a yellow brown car, believed to be a Plymouth. The victim was leaving for Italy in a few days and had money on his person, according to police reports.

Roy Nemo, a roomer in the same house, had $5 taken from a purse shortly before the intruder grappled with the Italian, it was learned.

Junior College Boys Leave For Summer Cruise

Three Santa Ana Junior college youths left San Pedro yesterday on the freighter, "Point Bonita," for a seven weeks cruise, having shipped on this coastwise vessel last week after they had been unable to secure berths for a voyage to the Orient.

The boys are Sammy Tucker, 616 North Shelton; Harold Woodard, 840 North Garnsey, and John Fairbarg, 1650 Durant street. They expect their ship to go as far north as Seattle and Vancouver, B. C., then return southward, pass through the Panama Canal, and on to New York.

IN WHICH MANY THINGS ABOUT SPORT ARE DISCUSSED

Nothing tried is nothing gained.... The Orange County Athletic club plans a program of amateur boxing the afternoon of July 4, which happens to come on a Wednesday. The highway arena will be "dark" the following evening, Thursday, the O. C. A. C.'s customary fight night. A lot of orange have been picked since Orange county saw its last afternoon boxing card. The experiment will be interesting, but probably not remunerative.

For the first time in history Santa Ana Hi will start a football season without a regularly elected captain. Coach Bill Foote is not sure he'll even call an election until the 1934 schedule has been completed.

Says Coach Foote: "We have several worthy veterans but none outstanding. To honor one might prove an injustice to others. I had rather expected spring practice to produce a candidate who would stand out over the rest, but such was not the case. Probably we shall appoint an acting captain prior to every game, name a permanent one for the record books at the close of the season. By then we shall know who is deserving."

* * *

Ernie Stewart, the U. S. C. ball player who couldn't make the grade with Santa Ana in night ball, broke in with the Portland Beavers as an outfielder last week, combed Hollywood pitchers for a number of timely baseHits. What do you make of that, Watson?

Remember Herb Bowe, the demon Julia Lathrop athlete for whom "Tex" Oliver genuinely mourned when Bowe moved to Red Bluff? Bowe later became the best halfback in Northern California preptom. He now has a St. Mary's scholarship, becomes a Moraga freshman in the fall.

Eddie Kienholz, the former Occidental strategist, may pep things up in the Coast Preparatory league next season. He's just received an appointment at Glendale as successor to Jack Gaines who was a good fellow but an unsuccessful coach.

Glendale won only one football game during Gaines' three-year rule, and the situation became so acute last fall that in mid-season Glendale employed Francis Tappaan, ex-Trojan All-American in a vain effort to help matters. Kienholz lost out at Occidental for a similar reason—he couldn't win—but his material was admittedly mediocre.

If experience counts for anything, Kienholz's coaching rivals—Messrs. Foote, Adams, Landreth, Thurman and Hobbs—best beware. After graduating at Washington State in '13, dynamic Kienholz coached at Yakima, Wash., returned to Washington State as assistant to "Lone Star" Dietz. A few years later he migrated to California, put out a string of championship teams at Long Beach Poly. Santa Clara university beckoned him next. From there Kienholz went to Manual Arts high school, then Occidental where he remained five years.

Somebody in the Santa Ana high school athletic department went to sleep, neglected to enter Saint Dor Kennedy in the Southern California prep golf championship tournament's qualifying round. Around par most of the time, young Kennedy would have been a real threat for the title.

Josephine Cruickshank lost in her first appearance on the famed Wimbledon tennis courts, which chanced to be during the Wightman Cup matches, but the Santa Anan will be remembered along with her American team sisters as the first to wear shorts on Britain's hallowed center courts.

Said prophetic Helen Jacobs before the Wightman Cup play:

"We certainly have a fifty-fifty chance. Our girls are definitely on top of their game. At first I thought Carolin Babcock and Josephine Cruickshank, who are making their debut abroad, would be thrown off stride by the new ball and turf courts, but they quickly acclimatized themselves and are playing better than they were at home.

"Of course, they may be nervous in their first appearance in the center court for I know from experience that a player starting there can be overwhelmed by the glamor and vastness."

"Tex" Harris, big all-Coast league end for Santa Ana Hi in its eventful '31 season, has enrolled at U. C. L. A. He will try out for quarterback, a position he learned to like at Urban last fall. Harris now weighs 205, says he is no bigger than a dozen other Bruin backs.

"We're goin' to town," drawled Harris. "We'll finish one-two-three this year, one-two in '35, first in '36 .... Jack Fredericks, captain of Santa Ana's jaysee eleven two years ago, also enters U. C. L. A. in September .... Once as good as on his way to Berkeley, blond Art Stranske is now a tentative Trojan freshman. So is Ray Brown, Anaheim's All-Southern prep tackle.

Jimmie Heffron and Ben Gelker have had more fun picking their all-National Night league lineup for Saturday's benefit contest at Anaheim, but I have a question that'll confound them. Who is going to umpire? If they discover an all-star umpire, one satisfactory to all eight clubs, they are instructed to click their heels, simultaneously raise their right eyebrows, and telegraph President George Peterkin, who, incidentally, is getting touchy about the criticism aimed at his guessers.

ART LASKY TO BE NEXT BAER RIVAL, BELIEF

By HARRY GRAYSON
(NEA Service Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, June 19.—The next Battle of the Century may be a larger edition of the Benny Leonard-Lew Tendler meetings of 1922 and 1923. If Ancil Hoffman, the manager of Max Baer, has his way, the next challenger for the heavyweight title will be Arthur Lakofsky, who like the new champion, has the six-point star of Jerusalem embroidered on his tights.

Art Lasky

Lakofsky, otherwise Lasky, is a tall young man from Minneapolis. He came to New York highly regarded, but failed to live up to all the nice things said about him in taking a decision from plodding Hans Birkie on March 31, 1933.

Toppled King Levinsky

Lasky, who had stirred up trouble for Primo Carnera a year before, went west, young man. In Los Angeles during the winter he established himself as one of the biggest cards ever to show in the Golden State, and reached his peak out there only the other night in decisively defeating King Yevinsky.

Baer is under contract to Madison Square Garden for one more fight. It was Hoffman's original intention to get this out of the way in September, and be free to do as he pleased. But much of Hoffman's antagonism toward Ringmaster Jimmy Johnston and the Garden disappeared when the crown was fitted on the curly black hair of Baer.

He now suggests that Lasky, Steve Hamas and Walter Neusel fight it out for the privilege of tackling Baer.

"Max will go to the post in September if they can show us any money," says Hoffman, "but, frankly, I don't believe he will be in there again until next summer.

Lasky Must Get Reputation

"We'd like Lasky. Neither Hamas nor Neusel mean much. Baer and Lasky are punchers—the kind who get the coin. But Lasky will have to get out of California and establish himself and that will take a few months.

Baer is the first Hebrew to hold the heavyweight leadership since Daniel Mendoza reigned in the 1790's. Mendoza, who scaled only 158 pounds, was heavyweight champion of England, which meant the world at the time. In all the years between Mendoza and Baer, only one Jewish heavyweight made any progress to speak of. He was the remarkable Joe Choynski, who at 178 pounds knocked out Jack Johnson and fought Jim Corbett five times.

Traynor New Leader Of Pittsburgh Pirates

PITTSBURGH, June 19.—(UP)—Harold J. ("Pie") Traynor was named manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates today, succeeding George Gibson in an unexpected shift ordered by President William Benswanger.

The change was effective with this afternoon's game.

Benswanger would not elaborate on the change. He issued no formal statement, but merely telephoned newspapers shortly after noon to inform baseball writers that Traynor, third baseman, would take over the helm.

"We've been doing rather badly lately," Benswanger said," and we felt the change would be advantageous."

LIFE OF THE NEW CHAMPION

Right or Wrong, Baer Had Individualistic Flair

CAMPBELL'S DEATH HURT HIM

(This is the second of a series of four articles about the life, public and private, of Max Baer, conqueror of the giant Primo Carnera.)

BY RONALD WAGONER
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SAN FRANCISCO, June 19.—In the early days of his pugilistic career, Max Adelbert Baer, the thirteenth heavyweight champion of the world, had a mind of his own. Whether he guessed right or wrong in affairs of the heart or the ring, even his severest critics were forced to admit that Maxie possessed an individualistic flair.

For example, let us take the matter of the cauliflower ear and his wretched battle against Paulino Uzcudun in Reno July 4, 1931, as exhibits to prove the point.

Wanted Cauliflower Ear

Max had plugged his way through a dozen or more indifferent bouts at the time of the cauliflower ear incident. He was convinced by this time that he was destined to be heavyweight champion. Few people believed him, but Maxie did not care. He was winning his share of fights and the money was starting to come in. But one thing worried him. He was too handsome. He thought he didn't look like a fighter. Baer decided to fix this. One day in an Oakland gymnasium, he walked up to Bob McCallister, his trainer.

"Give me a tin ear, Mac," said Max. "Every prize fighter should have one."

McAllister was amazed, but orders are orders and he smacked Max lustily on the ear. The member fairly blossomed and Max had his "tin ear." In later years he was regretful of his folly when his otherwise perfect camera face in Hollywood was marred by one normal ear and another larger than both of Clark Gable's put together.

The Uzcudun farce, in which Maxie was defeated ingloriously after 20 rounds, came at a time when he needed to make a reputation. Tommy Loughran and Ernie Schaff had beaten him in New York and Eastern critics had tabbed Max an exaggerated washout. Ancil Hoffman, Max's manager, and Jack Dempsey, the promoter, told him that he must beat Uzcudun to win a reputation. Max smiled and looked dreamily at Dorothy Dunbar—the reason for his legarthy against Paulino. Dorothy was beautiful and had been a movie actress.

For 16 rounds Baer pelted Uzcudun. It appeared that the Basque would be knocked out. But suddenly Max quit fighting. Paulino had caught him with several jabs in the face. Baer threw a guard about his face and allowed Paulino to hammer him—anywhere but the face. An infuriated Jack Dempsey, as referee, was forced to give Uzcudun the decision.

Max smilingly climbed from the ring, hurried to his shower bath, then dressed in immaculate attire and joined Miss Dunbar. The next day the couple married, only to divorce a year later.

"I couldn't let him spoil my face," was Baer's only explanation of his showing against the Basque. "A fellow can't get married with his nose out of shape and his eyes black."

Reno Fight Proved Setback

The Reno fight all but counted Baer out of the heavyweight picture. Max crossed up his critics, however. He defeated King Levinsky in 20 rounds under a hot Reno sun and repeated the victory later in a 10-round battle in Chicago. A rematch with Schaff in Chicago resulted in a knockout by Baer. Schaff was unconscious three hours.

Baer hates to have fans say that his knockout of Schaff may have paved the way for the latter's death after a bout with Primo Carnera.

The new champion knows that he packs death wallops in either of his fists. He gave up fighting for almost a year in 1930 after Frankie Campbell, a San Francisco heavyweight, died from head blows delivered by Baer. In fact, Max almost quit the game entirely.

Boxing fans call Baer a killer in the ring. His mother says her "honey boy" is big hearted and hates to knock out opponents. Take your choice. There is precedent for either decision.

'GAG RULE' OF ANZAC NETTERS IRKS M'LEMORE

BY HENRY McLEMORE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

EASTBOURNE, England, June 19.—The desk clerk said Mister Crawford was in the billiard room, so I went into the billiard room, and sure enough, there was the Wimbledon champion and captain of the Australian Davis Cup team making some very sweet three cushions.

Mister Crawford was very nice. Said yes, he remembered me well, but that it would be impossible for him to talk about tennis.

"You see," he said, "before the team left Australia all of us had to sign a contract with the Lawn Tennis association which said, among other things, that we promised not to talk to reporters on any subject whatsoever. I'll tell you what I'll do though.. I'll try and get Mister Youdale for you. He's the manager of the team, and the only one authorized to see the press."

Mr. Youdale Annoyed

Mister Youdale, after twice sending for my card and twice being told I didn't carry the things, barged into the billiard room looking very annoyed indeed.

"Yes," he said, in a voice that bore the same warmth as a tombstone, "Yes, what do you want?"

"I told him I'd like to get a story on the team. I said I had tried to interview Crawford but found he wasn't allowed to talk.

"Quite right. Quite right. He isn't. Nor any of the other players. They agreed to leave that to me before we left on tour. We can't have our players talking to reporters. It doesn't work. Takes their minds off the game. Spoils their concentration. I say all that's said. What is it you'd like to know?"

"That's one thing I never talk about. I don't know how we'll do. How could I know? Now what else?"

They're His Firm Friends

How did he think America would do with Vines a professional?

"I wouldn't like to talk about that. All your players are firm friends of mine, and I know they wouldn't appreciate my speaking of them one way or another. Is there anything else?

"Well, did he think Fred Perry had made great strides in the past year?

"Perry is a fine player. One of the best. Is there anything further you'd like to know before I go?"

No, there wasn't anything else. There really was, but I didn't ask him. I wanted to know who thought up this gag rule for Australian tennis players, and if he didn't think it made what is supposed to be a sport a bit too grim and business like. And I'd have liked to have told him that it was a tennis cup Australia was after, not the Holy Grail.

But I didn't. He looked so content. It would have been a shame to upset him. Besides, he looked like he might have a pretty good punch, and I'm a sucker for an uppercut.

Woman's Suit Against Baer Renewed

NEW YORK, June 19.—(UP)—Miss Shirley LaBelle staged a comeback today against world's champion Max Baer with her $50,000 damage suit and a claim that Maxie did not proffer her the fatherly advice she expected when she received him in a hotel room here December 20.

The suit, charging Baer's visit left Miss LaBelle "a physical and mental wreck," was bounced out of supreme court last month when the platinum blonde refused to tell Justice Aaron Levy her address.

Back for another bout, Miss LaBelle today won Levy's permission to continue the suit. She convinced him she was secretive about her address because Maxie's "hired sleuths" were always trailing her. She will not be compelled to disclose her address or even her telephone number.

Miss LaBelle sets forth in the suit that she was a good and trusting girl who thought Baer wanted to discuss her welfare. But she said he didn't.

M. E. South Seniors	0	5	.000

A typical Santa Ana City league baseball race, as open as Joe E. Brown's mouth, was on in earnest today, following the surprising downfall of the First National bank's team, which was executed by the lowly South Methodist Juniors at the Municipal Bowl last night, 10-7.

Previously undefeated, the Bankers lost what was supposed to be a set-up game when the Juniors rallied for three runs in the last inning. Bates walked and was forced by Cartwright. Boyd, McIntyre, Semnacher and Brooks followed with the hits that broke the Bankers' hearts. Previously, Bates, Cartwright and Boyd had blasted homers for the South Methodist youngsters. Gene Hitt, the First Nationals' star pitcher, abdicated after successive fifth inning honors by Cartwright and Boyd.

The Commercial Nationals knocked off the M. E. South Seniors as expected, 3-0, with Foltz holding the veterans to three hits. Stephens hit a home run for the Commercial Nationals.

COATES NAMED TO GO AGAINST TORRANCE CLUB

Led by their home-run hitting star, Louie Neva, and with most of the same old cast of sluggers in support, the Southern California champion night baseball team from Torrance makes its first appearance of the National league season here tonight at 8:15.

A champion is a champion until he's counted out, and "Spud" Murphy's Bluebirds descend into the Municipal Bowl still the reigning rulers of the Southland association. Last year Torrance won the first-half in a breeze, coasted through the second-half, and then trounced Huntington Beach in a six-game playoff. Rialto later fell before the National league's powerful representative in four out of five starts.

Torrance got away to a poor start this term, however, dropping extra inning conflicts to Westminster and Huntington Beach in its opening games. Since then, however, Murphy has had his men playing as well or better than anything in the circuit, and the team still has a fair chance of finishing in front.

Virtually out of the first-half race, Santa Ana's Stars will have plenty to say about what team eventually becomes champion for they play Torrance, Westminster and Huntington Beach in three of their four remaining engagements.

Jim Coates will toil for the Stars tonight. It will be the kid's first starting assignment against "The Great" Neva. Jim finished the first Santa Ana-Torrance tussle as a relief pitcher, losing a thrilling game in 13 innings, but showed enough that night to warrant an opinion that he can slow up Torrance's home-run machinery which has been operating overtime of late. Against Huntington Beach and Long Beach in the past ten days, the Bluebirds contributed no less than eight homers, two coming with the bases full.

Torrance's lineup hasn't been definitely announced but Neva will pitch and Campbell, a newcomer from Bakersfield, will catch instead of "Pancho" Fabregat. Marcel McClure, a southpaw, has replaced Walt Wolf at first base. Another new man, Metha, probably will be seen at second instead of "Red" Watson. Dan Leonard still holds forth at third. Outfielder "Red" Moon, formerly of Whittier, has been moved to short, Hal Forney, Paul Neva and either Vonderahe or Montgomery will be in the pastures.

"Eeny" Wilcox, Santa Ana's star catcher, will not be with his club tonight. He's on a vacation in the north. "Bomo" Koral will catch, and Joe Koral will be at first base. Otherwise, Manager Bill Cole plans to use his customary lineup.

MOSCRIP TO BOOT 'EM

PALO ALTO, June 19.—When Stanford lost Bill Corbus by graduation, the Indians were at loss for a place kicker of his caliber. But Jim Moscrip, handy left end, has come through in fine style in spring practice and he seems likely to fill Corbus' boots.

HARRY COOPER WINS WESTERN OPEN GOLF

PEORIA, Ill., June 19.—(UP)—"Lighthorse Harry" Cooper, was back among golf's champions today with a record beyond compare for 108 holes of play in major championship.

The temperamental shot-maker who first saw the light of day in old England, learned to play golf at Dallas and now competes for the Glen Oaks Country club, Chicago, beat Ky Laffoon, Denver professional who never was an amateur, by three strokes in a 36-hole playoff yesterday for the Western Open golf title.

It was the most remarkable playoff in major competition. They tied at the end of the regulation 72 holes of play, each with 274, 14 strokes under par, a score good enough to win with ease all but one of the previous 34 Western Open tournaments.

At the end of 18 holes, the specified distance of the playoff, they were all-even with 67, five strokes under par, another 18 holes were necessary for Cooper to conquer the straight-shooting Westerner who has been playing golf for 15 of his 25 years.

SPORTS BULLETINS

NEW YORK, June 19.—(UP)—Helen Hicks, of New York, former woman's golf champion, has turned professional, she announced today at a luncheon of the New York State Golf association.

Miss Hicks, who won the championship in 1931, and who was runner up to Virginia Van Wie of Chicago in 1933, became a professional when she accepted a position with the Wilson-Western sporting goods company as an advisor in their woman's golf department.

LONDON, June 19.—(UP)—Sidney Wood of New York moved into the third round of the Queen's club tennis tourney today by scoring a 6-2, 6-2 victory over Weimar Cross of England. Lester Stoefen of Los Angeles beat Hans Benker of Holland, 6-4, 6-2, while George Lott of Chicago was prevailing over an English player, C. Reed, 6-1, 4-6, 6-3.

NO. 13 IS LUCKY

SAN FRANCISCO, June 19. — Two managers in the Pacific Coast league think nothing of the superstition and ill luck supposed to surround No. 13. They are "Gabby" Street of the Missions and Earl McNeely of Sacramento. Both wear the numeral on their shirts.

ENTER NEW CAR IN LEGION AUTO RACES

Sport fans at the Legion midget auto races tomorrow night will have a new car to cheer with the first appearance of No. 59, a high-powered model sponsored by the Jackson Chevrolet company of La Habra.

Elmer Ross, an Orange county youth well known to race fans, will pilot the creation, which is powered with a four-cylinder Universal marine motor. It is expected that the car will challenge the supremacy of the favorites, perhaps set a track record following test trials in the Municipal Bowl.

Another feature of the card will be the presentation of the three leading candidates in the queen contest being conducted for the Mid-Summer Motor Pageant, to be held with the races June 27. The girl with the most votes during the past week will present the silver cup to the trophy dash winner. For every adult ticket purchased at the gate, 100 votes can be cast for some contestant.

LOPEZ, GUILLEN TO BATTLE WEDNESDAY

Paddy Guillen and Indian Leo Lopez, two of the most popular 112-pounders in amateur boxing, will meet in the feature main event at the Orange County Athletic club Thursday night, Matchmaker "Bud" Rutledge announced today.

Bill Wana, Westminster middleweight, and Paul Garcia of Compton, also are scheduled for part of a double main event.

Youth Dies When Hit By Foul Tip

BIG FELLERS COME INTO OWN

TORRANCE AND LYMAN CLASH

BY AL WESSON

LOS ANGELES, June 19.—Ordinarily the weight events at a track meet are quietly and unobtrusively conducted and are brought to light only when the loud speaker gets around to announcing their results. In the National Intercollegiate championships, sponsored by the University of Southern California here Friday and Saturday, however, they will be among the featured numbers on the program, for the rivalry between the big boys is intense, and a world's record is just as certain as death and taxes.

For the benefit of fans, Director of Athletics Willis Hunter, who is head man of the meet as chairman of the N. C. A. A. games committee, has taken the shot put ring from its obscure spot in the corner of the field and has placed it squarely in front of the stands, where the prodigious efforts of Jack Torrance, John Lyman, George Theodoratos, Gordon Dunn, Hueston Harper, Don Elser and other behemoths of iron-pushing may be clearly watched.

Torrance, Lyman, Clash

Torrance, six-foot-four, 287-pound giant from Louisiana State, who holds the unofficial world's record of 55 feet, 1½ inches, and Lyman, the unbeaten Stanford star, who has a mark of 54:1, are slated to stage the shot put battle of the century for first place, but even the other place winners in the event are doped to do some record-smashing of their own.

The official world's record at present is 52 feet, 7 7-18 inches, held by Z. Heljasz of Poland. If Heljasz were to compete in this meet and equal his best effort it is doubtful if he could score more than a point or two. Seeing the shoves of Torrance and Lyman go so far beyond his record would probably send the gentleman home talking to himself, for the young giants of Louisiana and Stanford have been consistently making his record heave look like a small boy's practice toss.

Torrance has an exhibition mark to his credit of 56:5 and his coach, Bernie Moore, who started training him when he was having difficulty beating 35 feet, believes he will one day hit the 60-foot mark. Torrance, however, is no cinch over Lyman, who is consistency itself. The Stanford star is practically a cinch to be over 54 feet, and Torrance will have to uncork one of his greatest record-smashing heaves to be ahead of him.

Theodoratos, the gigantic Greek football and track star of Washington State, who has hit 52:6, has an outside chance to uncork a wild heave that will beat both his famous rivals,as he is a powerful 250-pounder who is runner-up to Torrance for the honor of being the biggest man in college athletics. Harper of Southern California has hit 51 feet and holds a victory over Dunn of Stanford, who has put the ball 51:5 3-4 and was second to Lyman in the I. C. 4A. championships.

Elser, the big Notre Dame fullback, has a mark of 50:8. R. R. Moorman of the Army has done 50:7½, Boyce (Honk) Irwin, Kansas Relays champion, has done 50:4; Elwyn Dees of Kansas, Big Six champion, has a mark of 50:3½ and has done 50:10, while Dave Cook of Illinois is also in the 50-foot class with a mark of 50:3½.

Cannon Tops Discus Field

Added to this field will be Al Kamm of Illinois, Big Ten champion last year; Bill Freimuth of Minnesota, Big Ten indoor champion; Hal Dunker of Washington State, Northern division Coast conference champion last year; Dave Meek of California and W. H. Niblock of Bowdoin, who placed in the I. C. 4-A. meet this year.

Discus throwers will include most of the athletes also entered in the shot, although there will be several outstanding additions.

Threatening the supremacy of Dunn, I. C. 4-A. platter champion, will be Hugh Cannon of Brigham Young university, whose toss of 160 feet to win the Rocky Mountain championship is the world's longest throw this year; Chester Cruikshank of Colorado State, who has a mark of 157:8 1-4; John Healey of Harvard, who has done 156:3-4; Nolan Zori of North Carolina State, who is Southern Conference and Penn Relays champion and who has hit 165 in practice, and Kenneth Carpenter of Southern California, who recently won the Far Western A. A. U. meet at 154:11 1-2.

BURLINGAME DEBUT SPOILED BY ANAHEIM

Burlingame's barnstorming night ball team was in San Diego today, ready for its second exhibition contest in Southern California, after making only a fair showing against Anaheim at Anaheim last night.

Before a small turnout, the invaders lost to the National leaguers, 6-2, although Anaheim made no apparent effort to run up an impressive score after piling up five runs in the first inning. Three Anaheim pitchers, one an outfielder, stopped the San Francisco Peninsula league champions with two hits, one a scratch.

Burlingame plays at Fullerton Wednesday, at Huntington Beach Thursday and at Long Beach Saturday. The score:

Anaheim	6	11	2

MILLER, PAUL MEET AGAIN AT OLYMPIC

LOS ANGELES, June 19.—(UP)—Freddie Miller and Tommy Paul, featherweight champion and an ex-champion, clash tonight at the Olympic in a ten-round bout as the outstanding match of the week in the entire country.

The bout is a rematch between the two. Miller won the title from Paul in Chicago in 1933 on what Paul and his manager, Johnny Keyes, claim was a "raw" decision.

IN WHICH MANY THINGS ABOUT SPORT ARE DISCUSSED

Nothing tried is nothing gained.... The Orange County Athletic club plans a program of amateur boxing the afternoon of July 4, which happens to come on a Wednesday. The highway arena will be "dark" the following evening, Thursday, the O. C. A. C.'s customary fight night. A lot of oranges have been picked since Orange county saw its last afternoon boxing card. The experiment will be interesting, but probably not remunerative.

* * *

For the first time in history, Santa Ana Hi will start a football season without a regularly elected captain. Coach Bill Foote is not sure he'll even call an election until the 1934 schedule has been completed.

Says Coach Foote: "We have several worthy veterans but none outstanding. To honor one might prove an injustice to others. I had rather expected spring practice to produce a candidate who would stand out over the rest, but such was not the case. Probably we shall appoint an acting captain prior to every game, name a permanent one for the record books at the close of the season. By then we shall know who is deserving."

* * *

Ernie Stewart, the U. S. C. ball player who couldn't make the grade with Santa Ana in night ball, broke in with the Portland Beavers as an outfielder last week, combed Hollywood pitchers for a number of timely baseHits. What do you make of that, Watson?

Remember Herb Bowe, the demon Julia Lathrop athlete for whom "Tex" Oliver genuinely mourned when Bowe moved to Red Bluff? Bowe later became the best halfback in Northern California preptdom. He now has a St. Mary's scholarship, becomes a Moraga freshman in the fall.

Eddie Kienholz, the former Occidental strategist, may pep things up in the Coast Preparatory league next season. He's just received an appointment at Glendale as successor to Jack Gaines who was a good fellow but an unsuccessful coach.

Glendale won only one football game during Gaines' three-year rule, and the situation became so acute last fall that in mid-season Glendale employed Francis Tappaan, ex-Trojan All-American in a vain effort to help matters. Kienholz lost out at Occidental for a similar reason—he couldn't win—but his material was admittedly mediocre.

If experience counts for anything, Kienholz's coaching rivals—Messrs. Foote, Adams, Landreth, Thurman and Hobbs—best beware. After graduating at Washington State in '13, dynamic Kienholz coached at Yakima, Wash., returned to Washington State as assistant to "Lone Star" Dietz. A few years later he migrated to California, put out a string of championship teams at Long Beach Poly. Santa Clara university beckoned him next. From there Kienholz went to Manual Arts high school, then Occidental where he remained five years.

Somebody in the Santa Ana high school athletic department went to sleep, neglected to enter Saint Don Kennedy in the Southern California prep golf championship tournament's qualifying round. Around par most of the time, young Kennedy would have been a real threat for the title.

Josephine Cruickshank lost in her first appearance on the famed Wimbledon tennis courts, which chanced to be during the Wightman Cup matches, but the Santa Anan will be remembered along with her American team sisters as the first to wear shorts on Britain's hallowed center courts.

Said prophetic Helen Jacobs before the Wightman Cup play:

"We certainly have a fifty-fifty chance. Our girls are definitely on top of their game. At first I thought Carolin Babcock and Josephine Cruickshank, who are making their debut abroad, would be thrown off stride by the new ball and turf courts, but they quickly acclimatized themselves and are playing better than they were at home.

"Of course, they may be nervous in their first appearance in the center court for I know from experience that a player starting there can be overwhelmed by the glamor and vastness."

"Tex" Harris, big all-Coast league end for Santa Ana Hi in its eventful '31 season, has enrolled at U. C. L. A. He will try out for quarterback, a psition he learned to like at Urban last fall. Harris now weighs 205, says he is no bigger than a dozen other Bruin backs.

"We're goin' to town," drawled Harris. "We'll finish one-two-three this year, one-two in '35, first in '36 .... Jack Fredericks, captain of Santa Ana's jaysee eleven two years ago, also enters U. C. L. A. in September .... Once as good as on his way to Berkeley, blond Art Stranske is now a tentative Trojan freshman. So is Ray Brown, Anaheim's All-Southern prep tackle.

Jimmie Heffron and Ben Gelker have had more fun picking their all-National Night league lineup for Saturday's benefit contest at Anaheim, but I have a question that'll confound them. Who is going to umpire? If they discover an all-star umpire, one satisfactory to all eight clubs, they are instructed to click their heels, simultaneously raise their right eyebrows, and telegraph President George Peterkin, who, incidentally, is getting touchy about the criticism aimed at his guessers.

ART LASKY TO BE NEXT BAER RIVAL, BELIEF

By HARRY GRAYSON
(NEA Service Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, June 19.—The next Battle of the Century may be a larger edition of the Benny Leonard-Lew Tendler meetings of 1922 and 1923. If Ancil Hoffman, the manager of Max Baer, has his way, the next challenger for the heavyweight title will be Arthur Lakofsky, who like the new champion, has the six-point star of Jerusalem embroidered on his tights.

Art Lasky

Lakofsky, otherwise Lasky, is a tall young man from Minneapolis. He came to New York highly regarded, but failed to live up to all the nice things said about him in taking a decision from plodding Hans Birkie on March 31, 1933.

Toppled King Levinsky

Lasky, who had stirred up trouble for Primo Carnera a year before, went west, young man. In Los Angeles during the winter he established himself as one of the biggest cards ever to show in the Golden State, and reached his peak out there only the other night in decisively defeating King Yevinsky.

Baer is under contract to Madison Square Garden for one more fight. It was Hoffman's original intention to get this out of the way in September, and be free to do as he pleased. But much of Hoffman's antagonism toward Ringmaster Jimmy Johnston and the Garden disappeared when the crown was fitted on the curly black hair of Baer.

He now suggests that Lasky, Steve Hamas and Walter Neusel fight it out for the privilege of tackling Baer.

"Max will go to the post in September if they can show us any money," says Hoffman, "but, frankly, I don't believe he will be in there again until next summer.

Lasky Must Get Reputation

"We'd like Lasky. Neither Hamas nor Neusel mean much. Baer and Lasky are punchers—the kind who get the coin. But Lasky will have to get out of California and establish himself and that will take a few months.

Baer is the first Hebrew to hold the heavyweight leadership since Daniel Mendoza reigned in the 1790's. Mendoza, who scaled only 158 pounds, was heavyweight champion of England, which meant the world at the time. In all the years between Mendoza and Baer, only one Jewish heavyweight made any progress to speak of. He was the remarkable Joe Choynski, who at 178 pounds knocked out Jack Johnson and fought Jim Corbett five times.

Traynor New Leader Of Pittsburgh Pirates

PITTSBURGH, June 19.—(UP)—Harold J. ("Pie") Traynor was named manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates today, succeeding George Gibson in an unexpected shift ordered by President William Benswanger.

The change was effective with this afternoon's game.

Benswanger would not elaborate on the change. He issued no formal statement, but merely telephoned newspapers shortly after noon to inform baseball writers that Traynor, third baseman, would take over the helm.

"We've been doing rather badly lately," Benswanger said," and we felt the change would be advantageous."

LIFE OF THE NEW CHAMPION

CAMPBELL'S DEATH HURT HIM

(This is the second of a series of four articles about the life, public and private, of Max Baer, conqueror of the giant Primo Carnera.)

BY RONALD WAGONER
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SAN FRANCISCO, June 19.—In the early days of his pugilistic career, Max Adelbert Baer, the thirteenth heavyweight champion of the world, had a mind of his own. Whether he guessed right or wrong in affairs of the heart or the ring, even his severest critics were forced to admit that Maxie possessed an individualistic flair.

For example, let us take the matter of the cauliflower ear and his wretched battle against Paulino Uzcudun in Reno July 4, 1931, as exhibits to prove the point.

Wanted Cauliflower Ear

Max had plugged his way through a dozen or more indifferent bouts at the time of the cauliflower ear incident. He was convinced by this time that he was destined to be heavyweight champion. Few people believed him, but Maxie did not care. He was winning his share of fights and the money was starting to come in. But one thing worried him. He was too handsome. He thought he didn't look like a fighter. Baer decided to fix this. One day in an Oakland gymnasium, he walked up to Bob McCallister, his trainer.

"Give me a tin ear, Mac," said Max. "Every prize fighter should have one."

McAllister was amazed, but orders are orders and he smacked Max lustily on the ear. The member fairly blossomed and Max had his "tin ear." In later years he was regretful of his folly when his otherwise perfect camera face in Hollywood was marred by one normal ear and another larger than both of Clark Gable's put together.

The Uzcudun farce, in which Maxie was defeated ingloriously after 20 rounds, came at a time when he needed to make a reputation. Tommy Loughran and Ernie Schaff had beaten him in New York and Eastern critics had tabbed Max an exaggerated washout. Ancil Hoffman, Max's manager, and Jack Dempsey, the promoter, told him that he must beat Uzcudun to win a reputation. Max smiled and looked dreamily at Dorothy Dunbar—the reason for his legarthy against Paulino. Dorothy was beautiful and had been a movie actress.

For 16 rounds Baer pelted Uzcudun. It appeared that the Basque would be knocked out. But suddenly Max quit fighting. Paulino had caught him with several jabs in the face. Baer threw a guard about his face and allowed Paulino to hammer him—anywhere but the face. An infuriated Jack Dempsey, as referee, was forced to give Uzcudun the decision.

Max smilingly climbed from the ring, hurried to his shower bath, then dressed in immaculate attire and joined Miss Dunbar. The next day the couple married, only to divorce a year later.

"I couldn't let him spoil my face," was Baer's only explanation of his showing against the Basque. "A fellow can't get married with his nose out of shape and his eyes black."

Reno Fight Proved Setback

The Reno fight all but counted Baer out of the heavyweight picture. Max crossed up his critics, however. He defeated King Levinsky in 20 rounds under a hot Reno sun and repeated the victory later in a 10-round battle in Chicago. A rematch with Schaff in Chicago resulted in a knockout by Baer. Schaff was unconscious three hours.

Baer hates to have fans say that his knockout of Schaff may have paved the way for the latter's death after a bout with Primo Carnera.

The new champion knows that he packs death wallops in either of his fists. He gave up fighting for almost a year in 1930 after Frankie Campbell, a San Francisco heavyweight, died from head blows delivered by Baer. In fact, Max almost quit the game entirely.

Boxing fans call Baer a killer in the ring. His mother says her "honey boy" is big hearted and hates to knock out opponents. Take your choice. There is precedent for either decision.

'GAG RULE' OF ANZAC NETTERS IRKS M'LEMORE

BY HENRY McLEMORE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

EASTBOURNE, England, June 19.—The desk clerk said Mister Crawford was in the billiard room, so I went into the billiard room, and sure enough, there was the Wimbledon champion and captain of the Australian Davis Cup team making some very sweet three cushions.

Mister Crawford was very nice. Said yes, he remembered me well, but that it would be impossible for him to talk about tennis.

"You see," he said, "before the team left Australia all of us had to sign a contract with the Lawn Tennis association which said, among other things, that we promised not to talk to reporters on any subject whatsoever. I'll tell you what I'll do though.. I'll try and get Mister Youdale for you. He's the manager of the team, and the only one authorized to see the press."

Mr. Youdale Annoyed

Mister Youdale, after twice sending for my card and twice being told I didn't carry the things, barged into the billiard room looking very annoyed indeed.

"Yes," he said, in a voice that bore the same warmth as a tombstone, "Yes, what do you want?"

"I told him I'd like to get a story on the team. I said I had tried to interview Crawford but found he wasn't allowed to talk.

"Quite right. Quite right. He isn't. Nor any of the other players. They agreed to leave that to me before we left on tour. We can't have our players talking to reporters. It doesn't work. Takes their minds off the game. Spoils their concentration. I say all that's said. What is it you'd like to know?"

"That's one thing I never talk about. I don't know how we'll do. How could I know? Now what else?"

They're His Firm Friends

How did he think America would do with Vines a professional?

"I wouldn't like to talk about that. All your players are firm friends of mine, and I know they wouldn't appreciate my speaking of them one way or another. Is there anything else?

"Well, did he think Fred Perry had made great strides in the past year?

"Perry is a fine player. One of the best. Is there anything further you'd like to know before I go?"

No, there wasn't anything else. There really was, but I didn't ask him. I wanted to know who thought up this gag rule for Australian tennis players, and if he didn't think it made what is supposed to be a sport a bit too grim and business like. And I'd have liked to have told him that it was a tennis cup Australia was after, not the Holy Grail.

But I didn't. He looked so content. It would have been a shame to upset him. Besides, he looked like he might have a pretty good punch, and I'm a sucker for an uppercut.

Woman's Suit Against Baer Renewed

NEW YORK, June 19.—(UP)—Miss Shirley LaBelle staged a comeback today against world's champion Max Baer with her $50,000 damage suit and a claim that Maxie did not proffer her the fatherly advice she expected when she received him in a hotel room here December 20.

The suit, charging Baer's visit left Miss LaBelle "a physical and mental wreck," was bounced out of supreme court last month when the platinum blonde refused to tell Justice Aaron Levy her address.

Back for another bout, Miss LaBelle today won Levy's permission to continue the suit. She convinced him she was secretive about her address because Maxie's "hired sleuths" were always trailing her. She will not be compelled to disclose her address or even her telephone number.

Miss LaBelle sets forth in the suit that she was a good and trusting girl who thought Baer wanted to discuss her welfare. But she said he didn't.

A typical Santa Ana City league baseball race, as open as Joe E. Brown's mouth, was on in earnest today, following the surprising downfall of the First National bank's team, which was executed by the lowly South Methodist Juniors at the Municipal Bowl last night, 10-7.

Previously undefeated, the Bankers lost what was supposed to be a set-up game when the Juniors rallied for three runs in the last inning. Bates walked and was forced by Cartwright. Boyd, McIntyre, Semnacher and Brooks followed with the hits that broke the Bankers' hearts. Previously, Bates, Cartwright and Boyd had blasted homers for the South Methodist youngsters. Gene Hitt, the First Nationals' star pitcher, abdicated after successive fifth inning honors by Cartwright and Boyd.

The Commercial Nationals knocked off the M. E. South Seniors as expected, 3-0, with Foltz holding the veterans to three hits. Stephens hit a home run for the Commercial Nationals.

COATES NAMED TO GO AGAINST TORRANCE CLUB

Led by their home-run hitting star, Louie Neva, and with most of the same old cast of sluggers in support, the Southern California champion night baseball team from Torrance makes its first appearance of the National league season here tonight at 8:15.

A champion is a champion until he's counted out, and "Spud" Murphy's Bluebirds descend into the Municipal Bowl still the reigning rulers of the Southland association. Last year Torrance won the first-half in a breeze, coasted through the second-half, and then trounced Huntington Beach in a six-game playoff. Rialto later fell before the National league's powerful representative in four out of five starts.

Torrance got away to a poor start this term, however, dropping extra inning conflicts to Westminster and Huntington Beach in its opening games. Since then, however, Murphy has had his men playing as well or better than anything in the circuit, and the team still has a fair chance of finishing in front.

Virtually out of the first-half race, Santa Ana's Stars will have plenty to say about what team eventually becomes champion for they play Torrance, Westminster and Huntington Beach in three of their four remaining engagements.

Jim Coates will toil for the Stars tonight. It will be the kid's first starting assignment against "The Great" Neva. Jim finished the first Santa Ana-Torrance tussle as a relief pitcher, losing a thrilling game in 13 innings, but showed enough that night to warrant an opinion that he can slow up Torrance's home-run machinery which has been operating overtime of late. Against Huntington Beach and Long Beach in the past ten days, the Bluebirds contributed no less than eight homers, two coming with the bases full.

Torrance's lineup hasn't been definitely announced but Neva will pitch and Campbell, a newcomer from Bakersfield, will catch instead of "Pancho" Fabregat. Marcel McClure, a southpaw, has replaced Walt Wolf at first base. Another new man, Metha, probably will be seen at second instead of "Red" Watson. Dan Leonard still holds forth at third. Outfielder "Red" Moon, formerly of Whittier, has been moved to short. Hal Forney, Paul Neva and either Vonderahe or Montgomery will be in the pastures.

"Eeny" Wilcox, Santa Ana's star catcher, will not be with his club tonight. He's on a vacation in the north. "Bomo" Koral will catch, and Joe Koral will be at first base. Otherwise, Manager Bill Cole plans to use his customary lineup.

PALO ALTO, June 19.—When Stanford lost Bill Corbus by graduation, the Indians were at loss for a place kicker of his caliber. But Jim Moscrip, handy left end, has come through in fine style in spring practice and he seems likely to fill Corbus' boots.

HARRY COOPER WINS WESTERN OPEN GOLF

PEORIA, Ill., June 19.—(UP)—"Lighthorse Harry" Cooper, was back among golf's champions today with a record beyond compare for 108 holes of play in major championship.

The temperamental shot-maker who first saw the light of day in old England, learned to play golf at Dallas and now competes for the Glen Oaks Country club, Chicago, beat Ky Laffoon, Denver professional who never was an amateur, by three strokes in a 36-hole playoff yesterday for the Western Open golf title.

It was the most remarkable playoff in major competition. They tied at the end of the regulation 72 holes of play, each with 274, 14 strokes under par, a score good enough to win with ease all but one of the previous 34 Western Open tournaments.

At the end of 18 holes, the specified distance of the playoff, they were all-even with 67, five strokes under par, another 18 holes were necessary for Cooper to conquer the straight-shooting Westerner who has been playing golf for 15 of his 25 years.

SPORTS BULLETINS

NEW YORK, June 19.—(UP)—Helen Hicks, of New York, former woman's golf champion, has turned professional, she announced today at a luncheon of the New York State Golf association.

Miss Hicks, who won the championship in 1931, and who was runner up to Virginia Van Wie of Chicago in 1933, became a professional when she accepted a position with the Wilson-Western sporting goods company as an advisor in their woman's golf department.

LONDON, June 19.—(UP)—Sidney Wood of New York moved into the third round of the Queen's club tennis tourney today by scoring a 6-2, 6-2 victory over Weimar Cross of England. Lester Stoefen of Los Angeles beat Hans Benker of Holland, 6-4, 6-2, while George Lott of Chicago was prevailing over an English player, C. Reed, 6-1, 4-6, 6-3.

NO. 13 IS LUCKY

SAN FRANCISCO, June 19. — Two managers in the Pacific Coast league think nothing of the superstition and ill luck supposed to surround No. 13. They are "Gabby" Street of the Missions and Earl McNeely of Sacramento. Both wear the numeral on their shirts.

ENTER NEW CAR IN LEGION AUTO RACES

Sport fans at the Legion midget auto races tomorrow night will have a new car to cheer with the first appearance of No. 59, a high-powered model sponsored by the Jackson Chevrolet company of La Habra.

Elmer Ross, an Orange county youth well known to race fans, will pilot the creation, which is powered with a four-cylinder Universal marine motor. It is expected that the car will challenge the supremacy of the favorites, perhaps set a track record following test trials in the Municipal Bowl.

Another feature of the card will be the presentation of the three leading candidates in the queen contest being conducted for the Mid-Summer Motor Pageant, to be held with the races June 27. The girl with the most votes during the past week will present the silver cup to the trophy dash winner. For every adult ticket purchased at the gate, 100 votes can be cast for some contestant.

LOPEZ, GUILLEN TO BATTLE WEDNESDAY

BIG FELLERS COME INTO OWN

TORRANCE AND LYMAN CLASH

BY AL WESSON

LOS ANGELES, June 19.—Ordinarily the weight events at a track meet are quietly and unobtrusively conducted and are brought to light only when the loud speaker gets around to announcing their results. In the National Intercollegiate championships, sponsored by the University of Southern California here Friday and Saturday, however, they will be among the featured numbers on the program, for the rivalry between the big boys is intense, and a world's record is just as certain as death and taxes.

For the benefit of fans, Director of Athletics Willis Hunter, who is head man of the meet as chairman of the N. C. A. A. games committee, has taken the shot put ring from its obscure spot in the corner of the field and has placed it squarely in front of the stands, where the prodigious efforts of Jack Torrance, John Lyman, George Theodoratos, Gordon Dunn, Hueston Harper, Don Elser and other behemoths of iron-pushing may be clearly watched.

Torrance, Lyman, Clash

Torrance, six-foot-four, 287-pound giant from Louisiana State, who holds the unofficial world's record of 55 feet, 1½ inches, and Lyman, the unbeaten Stanford star, who has a mark of 54:1, are slated to stage the shot put battle of the century for first place, but even the other place winners in the event are doped to do some record-smashing of their own.

The official world's record at present is 52 feet, 7 7-18 inches, held by Z. Heljasz of Poland. If Heljasz were to compete in this meet and equal his best effort it is doubtful if he could score more than a point or two. Seeing the shoves of Torrance and Lyman go so far beyond his record would probably send the gentleman home talking to himself, for the young giants of Louisiana and Stanford have been consistently making his record heave look like a small boy's practice toss.

Torrance has an exhibition mark to his credit of 56:5 and his coach, Bernie Moore, who started training him when he was having difficulty beating 35 feet, believes he will one day hit the 60-foot mark. Torrance, however, is no cinch over Lyman, who is consistency itself. The Stanford star is practically a cinch to be over 54 feet, and Torrance will have to uncork one of his greatest record-smashing heaves to be ahead of him.

Theodoratos, the gigantic Greek football and track star of Washington State, who has hit 52:6, has an outside chance to uncork a wild heave that will beat both his famous rivals,as he is a powerful 250-pounder who is runner-up to Torrance for the honor of being the biggest man in college athletics. Harper of Southern California has hit 51 feet and holds a victory over Dunn of Stanford, who has put the ball 51:5 3-4 and was second to Lyman in the I. C. 4A. championships.

Elser, the big Notre Dame fullback, has a mark of 50:8. R. R. Moorman of the Army has done 50:7½, Boyce (Honk) Irwin, Kansas Relays champion, has done 50:4; Elwyn Dees of Kansas, Big Six champion, has a mark of 50:3½ and has done 50:10, while Dave Cook of Illinois is also in the 50-foot class with a mark of 50:3½.

Cannon Tops Discus Field

Added to this field will be Al Kamm of Illinois, Big Ten champion last year; Bill Freimuth of Minnesota, Big Ten indoor champion; Hal Dunker of Washington State, Northern division Coast conference champion last year; Dave Meek of California and W. H. Niblock of Bowdoin, who placed in the I. C. 4-A. meet this year.

Discus throwers will include most of the athletes also entered in the shot, although there will be several outstanding additions.

Threatening the supremacy of Dunn, I. C. 4-A. platter champion, will be Hugh Cannon of Brigham Young university, whose toss of 160 feet to win the Rocky Mountain championship is the world's longest throw this year; Chester Cruikshank of Colorado State, who has a mark of 157:8 1-4; John Healey of Harvard, who has done 156:3-4; Nolan Zori of North Carolina State, who is Southern Conference and Penn Relays champion and who has hit 165 in practice, and Kenneth Carpenter of Southern California, who recently won the Far Western A. A. U. meet at 154:11 1-2.

BURLINGAME DEBUT SPOILED BY ANAHEIM

Burlingame's barnstorming night ball team was in San Diego today, ready for its second exhibition contest in Southern California, after making only a fair showing against Anaheim at Anaheim last night.

Before a small turnout, the invaders lost to the National leaguers, 6-2, although Anaheim made no apparent effort to run up an impressive score after piling up five runs in the first inning. Three Anaheim pitchers, one an outfielder, stopped the San Francisco Peninsula league champions with two hits, one a scratch.

Burlingame plays at Fullerton Wednesday, at Huntington Beach Thursday and at Long Beach Saturday. The score:

Anaheim	6	11	2

MILLER, PAUL MEET AGAIN AT OLYMPIC

LOS ANGELES, June 19.—(UP)—Freddie Miller and Tommy Paul, featherweight champion and an ex-champion, clash tonight at the Olympic in a ten-round bout as the outstanding match of the week in the entire country.

The bout is a rematch between the two. Miller won the title from Paul in Chicago in 1933 on what Paul and his manager, Johnny Keyes, claim was a "raw" decision.

Chiropractors And Auxiliary Picnic In Trabuco Canyon

The science of chiropractic in California is threatened by two bills coming up for consideration this fall, and those who wish to maintain their freedom of choice in the matter of healing systems should be wholeheartedly against both bills, it was declared by Frank V. Kington, attorney of San Francisco, speaking Sunday at a picnic of the Chiropractic Auxiliary in Trabuco canyon.

The two bills which all friends of chiropractic must oppose are those known as the "Amendment bill," and the "Naturopathic bill," the speaker said. At a later period, he declared, there will come up for consideration a composite bill fostered by the Chiropractic society to protect it against future attacks.

Also on the picnic program were little Miss Lola Harmon, petite dancer of Santa Ana, the Moreno children of Whittier, formerly of San Juan Capistrano, in dance numbers, and Mr. and Mrs. Sid Babcock, accordion and vocal number. Dr. James Workman called the gathering to order and introduced the various program numbers.

The picnic, which attracted a group of 200, was held at the Fred Schwendeman place, near the CCC camp, with a barbecue dinner as the piece de resistance, prepared by Henry Pankey and Dan Adams.

ROBERTSONS BACK FROM TRIP EAST

Returning at the end of the past week to their home, 2325 Riverside drive, Mr. and Mrs. Orlyn B. Robertson completed an interesting trip to New York City to attend the annual conference of the Mutual Life Insurance company. Robertson was one of 200 salesmen from all sections of the United States, whose total of insurance sales during 1934 entitled them to membership in the $250,000 Field club with its attendant trip to headquarters office in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Robertson traveled by train to South Bend., Ind., stopping to see the exposition in Chicago, among other points visited. They also spent a few days in Marshfield, Mo., Robertson's birthplace and former home, and visited his grandmother, Mrs. J. W. Nelson, in Crane, Mo.

Continuing their trip by motor, at Buffalo, New York, Mr. and Mrs. Robertson saw Niagara Falls then crossed the famous Peace bridge into Canada as they continued to New York. Washington, D. C., and its varied interests commanded a few days of their time, and they were guests of Pomona college friends, Mr. and Mrs. Blackwell Smith. On their homeward journey they visited in Knoxville, Tenn., with Mrs. Robertson's relatives, and saw the remarkable Tennessee Valley development and the government-built city of Norris, christened in honor of Senator Norris.

Returning to the coast by way of El Paso, they visited in Tipton, Okla., with Mrs. Stokes, mother of Dr. Bessie Martell of this city. Other California friends encountered in their travels included Harry R. Nelson, a frequent visitors in Santa Ana in the home of his mother, Mrs. W. W. Nelson. His home is in Elizabeth, N. J.

CLAIMS $401 UNPAID FOR DRIVING MULES

Benjamin F. Horning, declaring that he was not paid all that was coming to him as a "chauffer for mules," has filed suit in superior court against his former employers, Martin Harbison and Rachael Harbison.

The plaintiff claimed that he went to work for the Harbisons on March 2, 1932 under an agreement which employed him "as a chauffeur for mules" at $2 a day. He said he worked until May 21, 1934, and that the defendants had agreed to pay him $1264 at Fullerton, but had only paid him $863. He is suing for the balance of $401.

Although Horning said in the complaint that he was a chauffer to mules, an answer filed by the Harbisons said he was employed to deliver horses and mules.

SUES RAILROAD FOR $21,579 DAMAGES

A suit for $21,579.20 against the Los Angeles and Salt Lake Railroad company has been filed in superior court by Leonard Norris, the train involved in the accident also were named in the suit, being designated as "John Does."

The engineer and conductor of the train involved in the suit also were named in the suit, being designated as "John Does."

In the complaint Norris charged that on October 26, 1933, he was working unloading a car on a sidetrack in Anaheim and that the engine of the train was operated so carelessly and negligently by the engineer and conductor so as to cause it to collide with the car in which Norris was working.

Norris said he was thrown about in the car, and received injuries for which he asks $20,000. The balance of the total sum sued for is for medical expenses and loss of wages. He suffered bruises, contusions and fracture of bones of the spine, he said.

The complaint said that Norris had released his claim against the railroad company for $75 after the accident, but that at that time he did not know how badly and permanently injured he was.

Chiropractors And Auxiliary Picnic In Trabuco Canyon

The science of chiropractic in California is threatened by two bills coming up for consideration this fall, and those who wish to maintain their freedom of choice in the matter of healing systems should be wholeheartedly against both bills, it was declared by Frank V. The two bills which all friends of chiropractic must oppose are those known as the "Amendment bill," and the "Naturopathic bill," the speaker said. Also on the picnic program were little Miss Lola Harmon, petite dancer of Santa Ana, the Moreno children of Whittier, formerly of San Juan Capistrano, in dance numbers, and Mr. and Mrs. Sid Babcock, accordion and vocal number. Dr. James Workman called the gathering to order and introduced the various program numbers.

The picnic, which attracted a group of 200, was held at the Fred Schwendeman place, near the CCC camp, with a barbecue dinner as the piece de resistance, prepared by Henry Pankey and Dan Adams.

TAUSCH MADE PRESIDENT OF LIONS' COUNCIL

Judge Frank Tausch, of Anaheim, was elected president of the Lion's Council of Orange and San Diego counties last night, when a meeting of that organization was held in the Costa Mesa Woman's clubhouse. Associate officers elected to serve with Tausch were, Finney Packard, of San Diego, vice president; and Floyd Snyder of Anaheim, secretary-treasurer. Carl Harvey, the retiring president, expressed appreciation for support of members during the past year.

In the early part of the meeting, immediately following the dinner, the meeting was turned over to Leroy P. Anderson, president of the Costa Mesa club, for the entertainment program. Charles TeWinkle, program chairman for the evening, introduced Miss Neomi Sands, of Santa Ana, who sang "Only a Rose for You" and "A Gypsy Caravan", accompanied at the piano by Miss Helen Glancy, also of Santa Ana. Next "Boots and Her Buddy", Mildred and Floyd Theuret, radio artists, gave several novel selections in yodeling, Floyd accompanying on the guitar.

Fred Neuschutz of Whittier, deputy district governor, gave a resume of the recent fourth district Lions convention held at Santa Cruz. He said that a silver tea set and a set of silver tableware had been presented to Dr. Walter Dexter in appreciation of his work as district governor for the past year. He announced that it was decided to hold next year's convention at San Diego.

President Harvey introduced all county club presidents-elect who were present at the meeting. Dr. Charles Glenn Curtis is the new president of the Brea Lions; Henry Abrams, Costa Mesa; Donald Jordan, Garden Grove; Gordon X. Richmond, Orange; Dr. George Alexander Page, Anaheim; Justice Kenneth Morrison, Santa Ana. Ivan Swanger, of Orange, welcomed nine new cubs from the various clubs of the county into the council.

The Laguna Beach club has had the highest percentage of attendance of its members at the county council meetings during the past year of any club in the county, it was stated by John J. Holland, secretary-treasurer of the council, when he made his final report. Anaheim was in second place.

Women of the Friday Afternoon club served dinner to over 80 persons. Mrs. C. G. Huston was in charge in the kitchen and Mrs. Harry Thayer directed the dining room service.

BOARD THANKED FOR ACTION ON FLOOD PROBLEM

Two resolutions, both commending the board of supervisors for their action in submitting the Elliott plan for water conservation and flood control in Orange county to federal authorities were submitted to the sueprvisors this morning.

One of the resolutions was adopted by the water committee of the Associated Chambers of Commerce of Orange county. The resolution commended the board for endorsing the basic plan for flood control and water conservation as outlined in the Elliott report. A similar resolution from the Yorba Linda Water company was received.

Further commendation for the supervisors was expressed in the resolution in a statement expressing appreciation to the board for presenting the plan to the government, through the projects committee of the National Rivers and Harbors Congress.

The supervisors, it was learned, had authorized Flood Control Engineer M. N. Thompson to submit the plan to Francis Cuttle, of Riverside, who represents California on the permanent projects committee of the Rivers and Harbors Congress.

The Elliott plan calls for an expenditure of around $11,000,000 for flood control and water conservation works along the Santa Ana river in the lower basin.

BANKERS ASKED FOR ADVICE ON TAX PROBLEMS

Following the suggestion of Councilman A. F. LeGaye that export and competent financial advice was needed to cope with the problem of delinquent taxes and an impending liability on the city, the council last night agreed to ask the aid of the chief executives of the four banks in the city.

If the bankers accept the invitation to discuss the matter with the council, an informal meeting will be held in a few days. Those to be invited will include A. I. Mellenthin of the First National bank in Santa Ana, A. C. Hasenjaeger of the Commercial National bank, C. K. Dodds of the Bank of America and Frank Was of the Security First National bank of Los Angeles, City Attorney Clyde Downing and City Auditor Lloyd Banks.

Downing reported last night that he was still investigating the legal phases of the situation in effort to block the levying of a ruinous tax in the near future. He emphasized, however, that the liability was still on the city and would have to be met at some time, thereby meriting the attention of the council, bankers and citizens.

He explained the significance of the Lakeport supreme court decision, which holds the city liable for delinquencies in taxes on improvement districts issued under the 1915 act. There is now a delinquency of $219,000 and it will probably reach more than $400,000 by next year, he said.

Ways of meeting this expense include raising the tax rate from $1.35 to $1.45 for each $100 of assessed valuation, having an election on a bond issue to pay for the delinquencies over a period of years, or finding other relief.

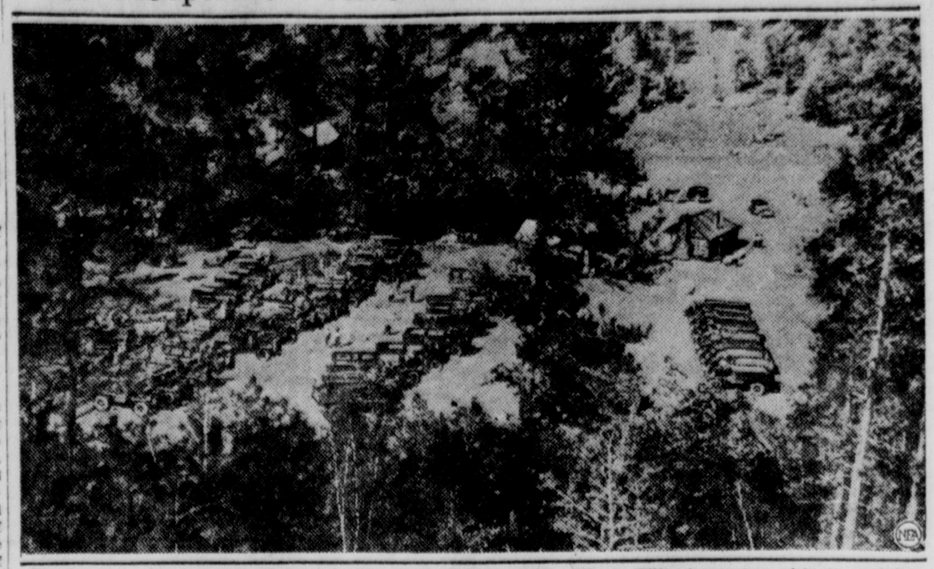
LeGaye approved Downing's investigation on legal phases of the question, but advocated the bankers' conference so that the financial procedure could be studied in case of an emergency.

Following Downing's statement that he was of the opinion that the board members could not be held liable if they failed to levy the tax rate, LeGaye emphasized the fact that not a single one of the 162 improvement districts had been formed during the administration of the present council.

He then declared that the cost of a bond issue to spread the expense over a period of years, could be entirely financed by using more business principles in the city government. He said that these reductions could be made without reducing salaries or curtailing salaries.

Following this plan, he said, the bonds could be sold if and when it was necessary to redeem the 1915 bonds. If business prosperity returned and property owners were able to pay up their back taxes, it would not be necessary to sell all the bonds and the districts would be paid off. He pointed out also that the interest rate on a bond issue would only be 4 or 4 1-2 per cent, whereas a rate of 6 1-2 per cent is now being paid on the 1915 bonds.

Stratosphere Takeoff Scene Is Hive of Activity



The busiest spot in South Dakota is Moonlight Valley, in the Black Hills, humming with the activity of preparation for the stratosphere flight to be made in late June or July by Maj. W. E. Kepner and Capt. A. W. Stevens. This picture shows the bowl from which the takeoff will be made, with the 35 trucks which hauled tanks of gas for the giant balloon.

INSTITUTE ON CITRUS TO BE HELD JUNE 30

Citrus growers of Orange county and Southern California will be given an opportunity on June 30 to learn of the work being done at the University of California at Los Angeles, where subtropical horticulture is being taught and some experimental research work on subtropicals is being conducted, it was announced today by Harold E. Wahlberg, representing the University of California in Orange county.

The annual summer institute arranged each year by the citrus growers department of the Farm Bureau, in cooperation with the Agricultural Extension service, will be held on Saturday, June 30, beginning at 9:30 a. m., instead of June 29 as first announced, Wahlberg said.

Features of the program will be "History of Work in Agriculture at the University," by A. J. McFadden of Santa Ana, and talks by Dr. L. D. Batchelor, director of College of Agriculture in Southern California; and Professor R. W. Hodgson, assistant director. There will also be a discussion entitled "A Chemical Picture of the Orange Tree" by Dr. S. H. Cameron, who has been conducting research work on the orange tree and who is said to be developing some very valuable information on the subject. In the afternoon there will be an opportunity for those in attendance to see the laboratory orchard and experimental plots on the new campus.

The University of California at Los Angeles may be reached by going west from Los Angeles to Westwood, turning north in the village of Westwood to the University campus.

Arthur Lopez, 18, and Lloyd Lopez, 19, both of San Juan Capistrano, started serving 10-day jail sentences yesterday on charges of disturbing the peace.

Bean Growers Happy Over Tax Ruling

Bean growers of Orange county today were reported as being jubilant over the fact that Secretary of Agriculture Wallace has issued an order recalling the processing tax on large size cotton bags.

John A. Murdy jr., chairman of the bean department of the Orange County Farm Bureau, received word yesterday from Chester H. Gray, Washington representative of the American Farm Bureau federation, that the processing tax on the large size cotton bags has been recalled.

"This," Murdy said, "should be good news to all bean growers in Orange county as it will make unnecessary a compensatory tax on jute bags.

"The California Farm Bureau federation has carried on a very vigorous campaign to have this ruling adopted, as it is believed that there is no justification for the tax on jute bags which would go to the benefit of the cotton growers, as it is rather a far-fetched theory to say that the lima bean growers of Orange county should be taxed for the benefit of the cotton farmers in the south," Murdy declared.

TAUSCH MADE PRESIDENT OF LIONS' COUNCIL

Judge Frank Tausch, of Anaheim, was elected president of the Lion's Council of Orange and San Diego counties last night, when a meeting of that organization was held in the Costa Mesa Woman's clubhouse. Associate officers elected to serve with Tausch were, Finney Packard, of San Diego, vice president; and Floyd Snyder of Anaheim, secretary-treasurer. Carl Harvey, the retiring president, expressed appreciation for support of members during the past year.

In the early part of the meeting, immediately following the dinner, the meeting was turned over to Leroy P. Anderson, president of the Costa Mesa club, for the entertainment program. Charles TeWinkle, program chairman for the evening, introduced Miss Neomi Sands, of Santa Ana, who sang "Only a Rose for You" and "A Gypsy Caravan", accompanied at the piano by Miss Helen Glancy, also of Santa Ana. Next "Boots and Her Buddy", Mildred and Floyd Theuret, radio artists, gave several novel selections in yodeling, Floyd accompanying on the guitar.

Fred Neuschutz of Whittier, deputy district governor, gave a resume of the recent fourth district Lions convention held at Santa Cruz. He said that a silver tea set and a set of silver tableware had been presented to Dr. Walter Dexter in appreciation of his work as district governor for the past year. He announced that it was decided to hold next year's convention at San Diego.

President Harvey introduced all county club presidents-elect who were present at the meeting. Dr. Charles Glenn Curtis is the new president of the Brea Lions; Henry Abrams, Costa Mesa; Donald Jordan, Garden Grove; Gordon X. Richmond, Orange; Dr. George Alexander Page, Anaheim; Justice Kenneth Morrison, Santa Ana. Ivan Swanger, of Orange, welcomed nine new cubs from the various clubs of the county into the council.

The Laguna Beach club has had the highest percentage of attendance of its members at the county council meetings during the past year of any club in the county, it was stated by John J. Holland, secretary-treasurer of the council, when he made his final report. Anaheim was in second place.

Women of the Friday Afternoon club served dinner to over 80 persons. Mrs. C. G. Huston was in charge in the kitchen and Mrs. Harry Thayer directed the dining room service.

BOARD THANKED FOR ACTION ON FLOOD PROBLEM

Two resolutions, both commending the board of supervisors for their action in submitting the Elliott plan for water conservation and flood control in Orange county to federal authorities were submitted to the sueprvisors this morning.

One of the resolutions was adopted by the water committee of the Associated Chambers of Commerce of Orange county. The resolution commended the board for endorsing the basic plan for flood control and water conservation as outlined in the Elliott report. A similar resolution from the Yorba Linda Water company was received.

Further commendation for the supervisors was expressed in the resolution in a statement expressing appreciation to the board for presenting the plan to the government, through the projects committee of the National Rivers and Harbors Congress.

The supervisors, it was learned, had authorized Flood Control Engineer M. N. Thompson to submit the plan to Francis Cuttle, of Riverside, who represents California on the permanent projects committee of the Rivers and Harbors Congress.

The Elliott plan calls for an expenditure of around $11,000,000 for flood control and water conservation works along the Santa Ana river in the lower basin.

BANKERS ASKED FOR ADVICE ON TAX PROBLEMS

Following the suggestion of Councilman A. F. LeGaye that export and competent financial advice was needed to cope with the problem of delinquent taxes and an impending liability on the city, the council last night agreed to ask the aid of the chief executives of the four banks in the city.

If the bankers accept the invitation to discuss the matter with the council, an informal meeting will be held in a few days. Those to be invited will include A. I. Mellenthin of the First National bank in Santa Ana, A. C. Hasenjaeger of the Commercial National bank, C. K. Dodds of the Bank of America and Frank Was of the Security First National bank of Los Angeles, City Attorney Clyde Downing and City Auditor Lloyd Banks.

Downing reported last night that he was still investigating the legal phases of the situation in effort to block the levying of a ruinous tax in the near future. He emphasized, however, that the liability was still on the city and would have to be met at some time, thereby meriting the attention of the council, bankers and citizens.

He explained the significance of the Lakeport supreme court decision, which holds the city liable for delinquencies in taxes on improvement districts issued under the 1915 act. There is now a delinquency of $219,000 and it will probably reach more than $400,000 by next year, he said.

Ways of meeting this expense include raising the tax rate from $1.35 to $1.45 for each $100 of assessed valuation, having an election on a bond issue to pay for the delinquencies over a period of years, or finding other relief.

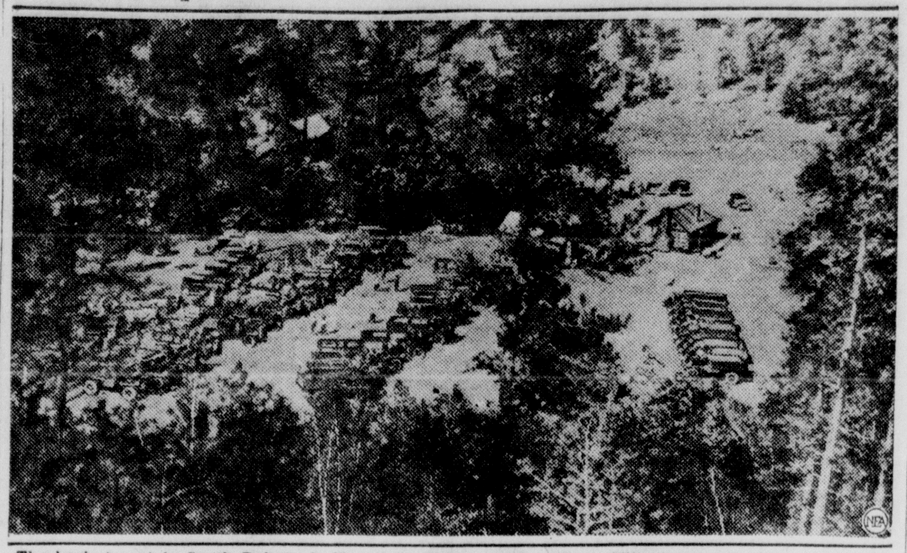
LeGaye approved Downing's investigation on legal phases of the question, but advocated the bankers' conference so that the financial procedure could be studied in case of an emergency.

Following Downing's statement that he was of the opinion that the board members could not be held liable if they failed to levy the tax rate, LeGaye emphasized the fact that not a single one of the 162 improvement districts had been formed during the administration of the present council.

He then declared that the cost of a bond issue to spread the expense over a period of years, could be entirely financed by using more business principles in the city government. He said that these reductions could be made without reducing salaries or curtailing salaries.

Following this plan, he said, the bonds could be sold if and when it was necessary to redeem the 1915 bonds. If business prosperity returned and property owners were able to pay up their back taxes, it would not be necessary to sell all the bonds and the districts would be paid off. He pointed out also that the interest rate on a bond issue would only be 4 or 4 1-2 per cent, whereas a rate of 6 1-2 per cent is now being paid on the 1915 bonds.

Stratosphere Takeoff Scene Is Hive of Activity



The busiest spot in South Dakota is Moonlight Valley, in the Black Hills, humming with the activity of preparation for the stratosphere flight to be made in late June or July by Maj. W. E. Kepner and Capt. A. W. Stevens. This picture shows the bowl from which the takeoff will be made, with the 35 trucks which hauled tanks of gas for the giant balloon.

INSTITUTE ON CITRUS TO BE HELD JUNE 30

Citrus growers of Orange county and Southern California will be given an opportunity on June 30 to learn of the work being done at the University of California at Los Angeles, where subtropical horticulture is being taught and some experimental research work on subtropicals is being conducted, it was announced today by Harold E. Wahlberg, representing the University of California in Orange county.

The annual summer institute arranged each year by the citrus growers department of the Farm Bureau, in cooperation with the Agricultural Extension service, will be held on Saturday, June 30, beginning at 9:30 a. m., instead of June 29 as first announced, Wahlberg said.

Features of the program will be "History of Work in Agriculture at the University," by A. J. McFadden of Santa Ana, and talks by Dr. L. D. Batchelor, director of College of Agriculture in Southern California; and Professor R. W. Hodgson, assistant director. There will also be a discussion entitled "A Chemical Picture of the Orange Tree" by Dr. S. H. Cameron, who has been conducting research work on the orange tree and who is said to be developing some very valuable information on the subject. In the afternoon there will be an opportunity for those in attendance to see the laboratory orchard and experimental plots on the new campus.

The University of California at Los Angeles may be reached by going west from Los Angeles to Westwood, turning north in the village of Westwood to the University campus.

Birthday Anniversary Celebrated During Club Dinner

The pretty grounds surrounding the H. D. McIlvain home at 2448 Riverside drive were setting the past week for an enjoyable covered-dish dinner at which members of Arbor Vitae club presided as hostesses, entertaining their husbands and friends as special guests.

A long table had been set for the serving of a delicious dinner buffet style. Bouquets of mixed flowers had been arranged to add to the natural beauty of the grounds. With the serving of the dessert course, Mr. McIlvain was surprised when his little granddaughter and grandson, Betty Jo and Keith McIlvain, set before him a large birthday cake lighted with candles. Guests likewise were surprised for they hadn't known that the occasion marked their host's anniversary.

Guests were invited indoors to flower-decked rooms for the remainder of the evening, with bridge interesting the group. Peter McIntosh won a prize for scoring high. Guest prize went to Mr. Morgan.

Club members and their husbands taking part in the affair included Messrs. and Mesdames H. D. McIlvain, C. Raymond Walter, G. N. Family Party Enjoys Birthday Surprise

When Mr. and Mrs. Henry Taylor of El Toro arrived Sunday to have dinner with Mr. Taylor's mother, Mrs. Martin V. Taylor, 820 Riverine avenue, they had a happy surprise, planned by their hostess as a celebration of Mrs. Henry Taylor's birthday anniversary.

She had everything in readiness for a birthday dinner, and the table which met their gaze when ushered into the dining room, was most inviting with its centerpiece of a big white birthday cake glittering with pink candles in rosebud holders. On either side were bud vases of roses, and covers were laid for several additional guests who suddenly made their presence known to the surprised honoree.

These included Mr. and Mrs. Felix Aubuchon of this city, and Mr. and Mrs. Earl McCrary of Los Angeles. Mrs. McCrary is a niece of the senior Mrs. Taylor, and Mr. McCrary is a nephew of Mrs. Aubuchon.

Charming Touch Given Luncheon Details by Chinese Motif

Receiving a group of Santa Ana and Long Beach friends at a contract bridge on Saturday afternoon, Mrs. J. Parley Smith chose The Corner House as the scene of her hospitality, entertaining her guests at luncheon in advance of the afternoon's games.

Lending a charmingly Oriental touch to details of the lunch hour, were decorations employed by the hostess, who chose a silver basket of meadow rue to cented the table, then used exquisite little crystal trees as place card holders to harmonize with graceful Chinese bowls of water lilies. These unique holders and the Oriental bowls had been brought to her from Tientsin, China, by her aunt, Mrs. Ruby Smith of Los Angeles, returning from a recent tour of the Orient.

Covers were placed for the hostess, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Clarence Nisson, Mrs. Fred Newcomb Jr., Mrs. W. H. Wright, Miss Edith Pithie, Mrs. John A. Tessmann and Mrs. George R. Wells, Santa Ana; Miss Ida Nolds, Miss Nancy Cleaver, Miss Helen Guest, Mrs. Harry Moore and Mrs. George Carpenter, Long Beach.

Mrs. Tessmann made high score in the ensuing session of contract, receiving first prize. Mrs. Wright and Miss Cleaver made identical scores as second high, and Miss Cleaver was fortunate in cutting for high, so received the pretty gift.

In serving refreshments of salted nuts, ice cream and fancy cakes with pastel frostings, Miss Scott was assisted by her mother, Mrs. Velpo Scott. Tables centered with tapers were further appointed in soft tints.

Sharing the event with Miss Scott were the Misses Gwen Griffin, Mary Elizabeth Emison, Dorothea Dixon, Lorraine Turk, Erlene Farmer and Messrs. Russell Abbey, Howard Quiggle, Jack Schilling, Roger McCune, Ray Johnson and Shelley Horton.

Young Couple Wedded In Bride Chapel

At a quiet ceremony read Sunday afternoon in the First M. E. bride chapel, Miss Martha Drake, charming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Karr of Ontario, became the bride of Dwight Ahern, son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Ahern of Irvine.

Only members of the immediate family were present for the beautiful marriage service read at 1 o'clock by the Rev. George A. Warmer, D. D., pastor of the church.

Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Ahearn will be at home to friends after July 1 at 208 A street, Tustin, where Mr. Ahern is employed.

Home Ceremony Unites Prominent Couple In Marriage

Various bridal traditions observed Saturday night, June 16 at the marriage of Miss Dorothy Lutz to William Kolkhorst added to the charm of the 8 o'clock ceremony, read in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Lutz, 411 East Washington avenue. Mr. Kolkhorst is son of Mrs. Sophia Kolkhorst, East Walnut street, Orange.

Willard Lutz, brother of the bride, greeted guests. At eight o'clock Mrs. Wesley Kolkhorst, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, took her place at the piano, playing accompaniment for her daughter, Miss Eleanor Kolkhorst as she sang "O Promise Me" and "I Love You Truly." Lohrengrin's Wedding March was played as a processional.

Bridal Party

Mr. Kolkhorst and a close friend of his family, Fred Howlett of El Centro, officiating minister, entered the room together, while Miss Lutz came in at another entrance on the arm of her father, John Lutz. The bride was very lovely in traditional white satin, fashioned princess style. Her shoulder length veil, caught with orange blossoms, fell in graceful folds from a cap arrangement. Especially lovely was her bouquet of gardenias and pink sweet peas tied with pink tulle. She had observed the tradition of "something old, something new and something borrowed and something blue" and carried the wedding handkerchief of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Willard Lutz.

As the bride and bridegroom reached the altar, they took their places beneath an archway of wedding bells. Potted palms had been banked as a background for large baskets of palest pink gladioluses. Tall cathedral tapers glowed from the large candelabra which Wryende Maegdenu club of Business Girls had loaned for the occasion. The bride is an active member of the organization. The two family groups stood throughout the ceremony, at the close of which the newly married couple knelt for prayer.

Refreshments were served by close friends of the bride, the Misses Louise Bryant and Dorothy Dresser, assisted by Mrs. Sue Bryant. The new Mrs. Kolkhorst cut the first piece of her wedding cake, and then turned the serving over to Mrs. Willard Lutz. The confection was topped with the same miniature bridal figures which other members of the Lutz family had used for their wedding cakes.

Honeymoon Plans

Mr. and Mrs. Kolkhorst left for an automobile trip along the Redwood Highway, with plans to return soon to Southern California and take up their residence in Orange where a home is all in readiness for them. For traveling Mrs. Kolkhorst donned a dark blue triple sheer suit with touches of white. Her taffeta hat and other accessories were in blue.

Guests were Mr. and Mrs. John Lutz, Mr. and Mrs. John Lutz jr., Mr. and Mrs. Willard Lutz, Miss Louise Bryant, Myron Dungan, Mrs. Sue Bryant, Miss Dorothy Dresser, Lawrence Lutz, Miss Jean Zabel, Santa Ana; Stanley Johnson, Donald Johnson, Laguna Beach; Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Kokx, Villa Park; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Howlett and sons, Le Roy and Irvin Howlett, El Centro; Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hoy and daughter, Beverly, Mrs. Sophia Kolkhorst, Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Kolkhorst and daughter, Miss Eleanor Kolkhorst, Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Kolkhorst, Ralph Kolkhorst and Miss Elsie Kolkhorst, Orange.

Mrs. Wade's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Scriven, of Montreal, Canada, who have been spending the past several months in the Southland with headquarters at Pasadena, are now guests in the Wade home, coming in ample time for Ann Terry's natal day. Many Artists to Aid In Benefit Concert

A musical event scheduled for Sunday afternoon, June 24 in the Greek theater, Griffith park, Los Angeles, is of deep interest to Santa Ana artists, since it is being planned as a benefit for Margaret Goetz, well known here as a friend of Madame Helen Modjeska, world famous tragedienne whose Forest of Arden home was once a Mecca for artists of the world.

Margaret Goetz, opera singer who for many years had her studio in Carnegie hall, was seriously injured last January in an automobile accident, and has not yet regained any degree of health. Friends and admirers among Southland musicians are arranging this concert to be given at 3:30 o'clock. Among those who will take part are Bascha Malinoff, soprano; Carl Omeron, tenor; Warren Lewis, baritone; Viola Ellis Walcker, contralto; Leslie Brigham, basso cantate; Marguerite Bitter, pianist; Josef Borissoff, violinist, Professor Hans Blechschmidt, and the Ellis club. This will be one of the rare appearances of the Ellis club in any program save those for its own active and associate membership.

Y. L. I.

Election of officers and appointment of state convention delegates were chief interests at the latest meeting of Capistrano Y. L. I. which followed the benefit dinner given by the chapter in K. C. hall on the evening of Flag Day.

This dinner was a pleasant session enjoyed by a hundred or more guests of the hostess institute. Decorations were ferns and small American flags. Many of the diners continued to the Flag Day program in the Bowl, but Y. L. I. members remained for the important business session.

Election resulted in the choice of Nellie Colombini as president to succeed Mrs. Rose Edwards who stepped into the post of junior past president. Other officers elected were Catherine Maag and Dorothy Gisler, first and second vice presidents; Antonia Sandon, recording secretary; Helen Hitt, financial secretary; Mary Louise Dierker, treasurer; Louvina Schade, marshal; Bernardine Markel, inside sentinel; Aline Turnbaugh, outside sentinel; Stella Engelman, organist; Marie Vosskuhler, Gladys Harrison, Frances Moorland, Gladys Whitten, Margaret Young and Stella Engelman, trustees.

Plans were made for attending the State Y. L. I. convention in Santa Cruz July 15 to 18, with Nellie Colombini and Mary Ellen Murphy named as delegates, Stella Engelman and Catherine Maag, alternates. Charming Touch Given Luncheon Details by Chinese Motif

Receiving a group of Santa Ana and Long Beach friends at a contract bridge on Saturday afternoon, Mrs. J. Parley Smith chose The Corner House as the scene of her hospitality, entertaining her guests at luncheon in advance of the afternoon's games.

Lending a charmingly Oriental touch to details of the lunch hour, were decorations employed by the hostess, who chose a silver basket of meadow rue to cented the table, then used exquisite little crystal trees as place card holders to harmonize with graceful Chinese bowls of water lilies. These unique holders and the Oriental bowls had been brought to her from Tientsin, China, by her aunt, Mrs. Ruby Smith of Los Angeles, returning from a recent tour of the Orient.

Covers were placed for the hostess, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Clarence Nisson, Mrs. Fred Newcomb Jr., Mrs. W. H. Wright, Miss Edith Pithie, Mrs. John A. Tessmann and Mrs. George R. Home Ceremony Unites Prominent Couple In Marriage

Various bridal traditions observed Saturday night, June 16 at the marriage of Miss Dorothy Lutz to William Kolkhorst added to the charm of the 8 o'clock ceremony, read in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mr. John Lutz, 411 East Washington avenue. Mr. Kolkhorst is son of Mrs. Sophia Kolkhorst, East Walnut street, Orange.

Willard Lutz, brother of the bride, greeted guests. At eight o'clock Mrs. Wesley Kolkhorst, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, took her place at the piano, playing accompaniment for her daughter, Miss Eleanor Kolkhorst as she sang "O Promise Me" and "I Love You Truly." Lohrengrin's Wedding March was played as a processional.

Bridal Party

Mr. Kolkhorst and a close friend of his family, Fred Howlett of El Centro, officiating minister, entered the room together, while Miss Lutz came in at another entrance on the arm of her father, John Lutz. The bride was very lovely in traditional white satin, fashioned princess style. Her shoulder length veil, caught with orange blossoms, fell in graceful folds from a cap arrangement. Especially lovely was her bouquet of gardenias and pink sweet peas tied with pink tulle. She had observed the tradition of "something old, something new and something borrowed and something blue" and carried the wedding handkerchief of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Willard Lutz.

As the bride and bridegroom reached the altar, they took their places beneath an archway of wedding bells. Potted palms had been banked as a background for large baskets of palest pink gladioluses. Tall cathedral tapers glowed from the large candelabra which Wryconde Maegdenu club of Business Girls had loaned for the occasion. The bride is an active member of the organization. The two family groups stood throughout the ceremony, at the close of which the newly married couple knelt for prayer.

Refreshments were served by close friends of the bride, the Misses Louise Bryant and Dorothy Dresser, assisted by Mrs. Sue Bryant. The new Mrs. Kolkhorst cut the first piece of her wedding cake, and then turned the serving over to Mrs. Willard Lutz. The confection was topped with the same miniature bridal figures which other members of the Lutz family had used for their wedding cakes.

Honeymoon Plans

Mr. and Mrs. Kolkhorst left for an automobile trip along the Redwood Highway, with plans to return soon to Southern California and take up their residence in Orange where a home is all in readiness for them. For traveling Mrs. Kolkhorst donned a dark blue triple sheer suit with touches of white. Her taffeta hat and other accessories were in blue.

Guests were Mr. and Mrs. John Lutz, Mr. and Mrs. John Lutz Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Willard Lutz, Miss Louise Bryant, Myron Dungan, Mrs. Sue Bryant, Miss Dorothy Dresser, Lawrence Lutz, Miss Jean Zabel, Santa Ana; Stanley Johnson, Donald Johnson, Laguna Beach; Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Kokx, Villa Park; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Howlett and sons, Le Roy and Irvin Howlett, El Centro; Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hoy and daughter, Beverly, Mrs. Sophia Kolkhorst, Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Kolkhorst and daughter, Miss Eleanor Kolkhorst, Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Kolkhorst, Ralph Kolkhorst and Miss Elsie Kolkhorst, Orange.

Tiny Daughter of Home Is Complimented on First Natal Day

Little Miss Ann Terry Wade, who on Saturday attained the dignified age of one year, found that her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Robert S. Wade, were quite prepared to give a special observance to the day in their home, 2388 Heliotrope Drive.

Mrs. Wade's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Scriven, of Montreal, Canada, who have been spending the past several months in the Southland with headquarters at Pasadena, are now guests in the Wade home, coming in ample time for Ann Terry's natal day. On the afternoon in question Dr. and Mrs. Wade also greeted Mr. and Mrs. Terry E. Stephenson, Mrs. Edmund West, Mrs. Fred C. Rowland, her daughter, Mrs. Russel Wilson and Mrs. Wilson's tiny daughter, Barbara Joan, and Miss Eleanor Crookshank. Mrs. Emma Prettyman and Miss Mary Kintigh also were to have been among the guests, but unable to be present, were represented by the beautiful birthday cake which they had baked and decorated for the occasion.

The cake with its single flickering candle, was keenly enjoyed by the small honor maid, and was served with ices and coffee to her admiring friends, all of whom brought tribute of birthday gifts. Ann Terry is the small namesake of Mr. Stephenson.

Many Artists to Aid In Benefit Concert

A musical event scheduled for Sunday afternoon, June 24 in the Greek theater, Griffith park, Los Angeles, is of deep interest to Santa Ana artists, since it is being planned as a benefit for Margaret Goetz, well known here as a friend of Madame Helen Modjeska, world famous tragedienne whose Forest of Arden home was once a Mecca for artists of the world.

Margaret Goetz, opera singer who for many years had her studio in Carnegie hall, was seriously injured last January in an automobile accident, and has not yet regained any degree of health. Friends and admirers among Southland musicians are arranging this concert to be given at 3:30 o'clock. Among those who will take part are Bascha Malinoff, soprano; Carl Omeron, tenor; Warren Lewis, baritone; Viola Ellis Walcker, contralto; Leslie Brigham, basso cantate; Marguerite Bitter, pianist; Josef Borissoff, violinist, Professor Hans Blechschmidt, and the Ellis club. This will be one of the rare appearances of the Ellis club in any program save those for its own active and associate membership.

Tickets are being sold at a very nominal price and Santa Anans wishing to aid in such a worthy cause and to hear the world famous artists who are giving their time and talents, may secure tickets through Clarence Gustlin.

Engagement News Told At Sunday Morning Breakfast

Entertaining Sunday morning with an 11 o'clock breakfast at the Doris Kathryn, Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Drake, 1059 West Sixth street, announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Helen Marie Drake to Dr. John G. Ferte, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Ferte of Los Angeles.

Cards revealing the romantic news were concealed in pansy corsages marking places at a long table lighted by tall white tapers. Pastel-hued flowers in a pretty arrangement formed a centerpiece.

A musical program added to the enjoyment of the occasion. Mrs. Richard Taylor (Hazel Smith) accompanied by Miss Mary Bruner, sang two numbers, one of which she dedicated to Miss Drake. Miss Rowena Newcomb, accompanied by Mrs. Robert Lowery (Justina Palmer) played violin solos.

A group of the bride-elect's school day friends had been invited to the delightful affair which Mr. and Mrs. Drake had planned for their daughter. In addition to Miss Helen Drake participants included Mesdames John Dayton (Virginia Powell), Robert Lowery, Norman Hicks, Edna Fowler, Grace Platt, Horace Leecing, E. F. Bruning, R. C. June Recreation Theme Applied to Meeting Of B. P. W. Club

Adhering to the recreation theme suggested by National Business and Professional Women's club as appropriate to June, Santa Ana club members last night enjoyed a social affair in connection with their dinner meeting in the Doris Kathryn.

Miss Lorraine French presided over the club session in the absence of the president, Mrs. Rose Walker, and aided June committee members in dispensing hospitality throughout the evening. Two guests were introduced, Mrs. Byron Walbridge and Mrs. Charles A. Riggs, who not only attends meetings frequently, but has expressed her interest in the organization by placing her home at the command of members for social affairs.

In advance of the introduction of bridge as the evening's entertainment, Miss French asked for reports on the recent district conclave in Ontario. Miss Martha Whitson and Mrs. Hazel Northcross gave animated accounts of various features of the affair.

When members sought bridge tables in an adjoining room, they found the recreation theme applied to clever tally cards on which were depicted scenes taken in various of the national parks. Miss Ethel McKeith of the hostess committee, assisted by Mrs. Marguerite Chapman awarded packets of fine stationery to Miss Damaris Beeman, Mrs. Byron Walbridge, Miss Lorraine French, Miss Artie Cleaveland and Mrs. Emmett Elliott, scoring high at their respective tables.

Miss Lena Thomas, July program chairman, announced that on Monday July 2, the club would observe guest night in order to permit interested friends to hear Mildred Bryant Brooks, Pasadena etcher, and see examples of her work. Mrs. Brooks is coming to the club through arrangements made by Miss Doris Robbins, now of Pasadena, but a charter member of the group.

The hostess' favors for her guests were corsage bouquets of gardenias. Mrs. Dayton was presented with a case containing favorite recipes of her assembled friends.

In the group with the hostess, Miss Riniker and her honor guest, Mrs. Dayton, were Mesdames C. Norman Hicks, Lyle C. Forman and the Misses Eleanor Crookshank, Mary Bruner, Marian Bruner, Helen Richards, Katherine Blank and Theodora Mueller.

DROP PLANS FOR SCHOOLS

BREA, June 19.—Daily vacation Bible schools, one sponsored by the Baptist and Nazarene churches and the other by the Congregational and Christian churches, have been postponed for this summer.

This action was taken after the sponsors had considered the situation in regard to the infantile paralysis epidemic, realizing that not many parents would allow their children to attend the schools.

ANN MEREDITH'S MIXING BOWL

EAT AND GROW SLIM
Luncheon

Chef's Salad:
1 large tomato sliced
1-2 cucumber, sliced
6 radishes, sliced
1-2 small head of lettuce
4 thin slices smoked sausage
French dressing.
2 slices zweibach, unbuttered
Pot of clear tea
Calory total, 175.

That's a lot of food for only 175 calories. And is the type of food which eliminates the dreaded "pink tooth brush." When I say that, I an assuming that dunking is out, and the crunchy zweibach is chewed, not dipped in hot tea.

Reserve 2 nice lettuce leaves for the plate. Shred the rest on the leaves, over the lettuce strew sliced radish and cucumber, arrange the tomato slices around the edge and dress the salad with 3 Tbsps. of mineral oil French dressing. Cut the slices of smoked sausage into match-like strips and strew over the top of the salad.

* * *

On hot days, iced tea will be more acceptable. Use saccharin tablets instead of sugar, and not more than one until you taste the tea.

* * *

Today's Recipe

Ice-Box Bread Mixtures
1 cup scalded and cooled milk
2 Tbsps. sugar
1 1-2 tsps. salt
4 Tbsps. melted vegetable shortening, or butter
1 yeast cake dissolved in
1-4 cup tepid water
2 eggs, well beaten
5 cups sifted all-purpose flour.

That's the basic recipe; do not attempt ice-box during the summer months, for more than four days.

* * *

Add shortening, sugar and salt to the scalded milk, set off the fire and cool until tepid. Crumble up the yeast cake and dissolve in the quarter-cup of tepid water. Add to the milk, together with the beaten eggs and enough flour to make a smooth batter, then work in the balance of the flour, turn the dough on the moulding board and knead lightly to mix.

To keep this dough, place it in an oiled bowl, brush the top with oil, cover tightly and keep on the bottom rack of the refrigerator.

* * *

Variations Using the Dough
Dutch Apple Cake

For a pan 6 by 10 inches take one-fourth of the dough. Knead lightly, then roll out to fit the pan. Place in pan, brush with melted butter and stand the cored, sliced apples (2 medium) in ranks over the dough. Sprinkle with sugar mixed with a little cinnamon, cover and let rise until light.

Rolled Cracked Wheat Loaf

For a small loaf take 1-4 of the dough, knead down, and roll out to a thickness of 1-2 inch. Spread the dough with soft butter and sprinkle thickly with cracked wheat cereal (uncooked). Roll up, place in an oiled bread tin, brush the top with milk and sprinkle with a little cracked wheat.

A Cinnamon Loaf can be made the same way, using cinnamon, sugar and butter over the blanket of dough.

Raspberry Jam Coffee Ring

Take a small quantity of dough, knead, then form into a thin roll, fasten the ends after arranging in the pan (round) and spread the roll with soft butter. Cover and let rise until light, then with the back of a spoon make depressions in the roll and put a little jam in each hole. Bake in a quick oven.

* * *

GUARD GROUP PREPARES FOR ANNUAL CAMP

ORANGE, June 19.—With entrainment less than three weeks away, National Guardsmen of Orange are busily preparing for the annual summer camp of the California National Guard, to be held at San Luis Obispo for two weeks this summer, when one of the largest camps in history is expected to be held.

Uniforms, rifles, mess equipment and other properties of the local company are being checked up and full equipment is being issued to each man in preparation for the camp outing. There are six vacancies in the company, Capt. A. M. Wunderlich announces, which will be filled before the evening of July 7, when the guardsmen leave for camp, going via Pacific Electric to Los Angeles and thence by train to the encampment grounds at San Luis Obispo.

Governor Frank F. Merriam is expected to visit the camp one day during the period and address the Guardsmen, representing the 160th and 185th infantry regiments, the 40th division air corps, and the 143d field artillery. A total attendance close to 4000 men is expected at the encampment.

NEW QUOTA FOR PETITIONS SET BY DRY FORCES

ORANGE, June 19.—Dry forces of Orange have exceeded the quota of names to local option petitions originally set and are now seeking to reach a new high quota of 1500 names, according to the Rev. Franklin H. Minck, chairman of the Ministerial association committee in charge.

When the petitions were first received, the ministerial group set what they thought was a high quota of 1000 names, and a group of men and women began work, covering the city in a house to house canvass. Soon the total passed 500 names, then the quota figure of 1000, and now there are in excess of 1100 names affixed to the petitions, the Rev. Mr. Minck stated today. He is being assisted by the Rev. H. F. Sheerer.

Further circulation of the petitions will be made during this week, in the hope of approaching the new goal of 1500 names, and then will be turned over to the county clerk for checking, along with similar petitions being circulated in other communities of the county and state.

If sufficient signatures are obtained in the state, the local option proposal will appear upon the November election ballot in an effort to secure a return of local option, so that each community may determine and carry out its own program for liquor regulation and enforcement, or complete prohibition.

June Recreation Theme Applied to Meeting Of B. P. W. Club

Adhering to the recreation theme suggested by National Business and Professional Women's club as appropriate to June, Santa Ana club members last night enjoyed a social affair in connection with their dinner meeting in the Doris Kathryn.

Miss Lorraine French presided over the club session in the absence of the president, Mrs. Rose Walker, and aided June committee members in dispensing hospitality throughout the evening. Two guests were introduced, Mrs. Byron Walbridge and Mrs. Charles A. Riggs, who not only attends meetings frequently, but has expressed her interest in the organization by placing her home at the command of members for social affairs.

In advance of the introduction of bridge as the evening's entertainment, Miss French asked for reports on the recent district conclave in Ontario. Miss Martha Whitson and Mrs. Hazel Northcross gave animated accounts of various features of the affair.

When members sought bridge tables in an adjoining room, they found the recreation theme applied to clever tally cards on which were depicted scenes taken in various of the national parks. Miss Ethel McKeith of the hostess committee, assisted by Mrs. Marguerite Chapman awarded packets of fine stationery to Miss Damaris Beeman, Mrs. Byron Walbridge, Miss Lorraine French, Miss Artie Cleaveland and Mrs. Emmett Elliott, scoring high at their respective tables.

Miss Lena Thomas, July program chairman, announced that on Monday July 2, the club would observe guest night in order to permit interested friends to hear Mildred Bryant Brooks, Pasadena etcher, and see examples of her work. Mrs. Brooks is coming to the club through arrangements made by Miss Doris Robbins, now of Pasadena, but a charter member of the group.

The hostess' favors for her guests were corsage bouquets of gardenias. Mrs. Dayton was presented with a case containing favorite recipes of her assembled friends.

In the group with the hostess, Miss Riniker and her honor guest, Mrs. Dayton, were Mesdames C. Norman Hicks, Lyle C. Forman and the Misses Eleanor Crookshank, Mary Bruner, Marian Bruner, Helen Richards, Katherine Blank and Theodora Mueller.

GUARD GROUP PREPARES FOR ANNUAL CAMP

ORANGE, June 19.—With entrainment less than three weeks away, National Guardsmen of Orange are busily preparing for the annual summer camp of the California National Guard, to be held at San Luis Obispo for two weeks this summer, when one of the largest camps in history is expected to be held.

Uniforms, rifles, mess equipment and other properties of the local company are being checked up and full equipment is being issued to each man in preparation for the camp outing. There are six vacancies in the company, Capt. A. M. Wunderlich announces, which will be filled before the evening of July 7, when the guardsmen leave for camp, going via Pacific Electric to Los Angeles and thence by train to the encampment grounds at San Luis Obispo.

Governor Frank F. Merriam is expected to visit the camp one day during the period and address the Guardsmen, representing the 160th and 185th infantry regiments, the 40th division air corps, and the 143d field artillery. A total attendance close to 4000 men is expected at the encampment.

NEW QUOTA FOR PETITIONS SET BY DRY FORCES

ORANGE, June 19.—Dry forces of Orange have exceeded the quota of names to local option petitions originally set and are now seeking to reach a new high quota of 1500 names, according to the Rev. Franklin H. Minck, chairman of the Ministerial association committee in charge.

When the petitions were first received, the ministerial group set what they thought was a high quota of 1000 names, and a group of men and women began work, covering the city in a house to house canvass. Soon the total passed 500 names, then the quota figure of 1000, and now there are in excess of 1100 names affixed to the petitions, the Rev. Mr. Minck stated today. He is being assisted by the Rev. H. F. Sheerer.

Further circulation of the petitions will be made during this week, in the hope of approaching the new goal of 1500 names, and then will be turned over to the county clerk for checking, along with similar petitions being circulated in other communities of the county and state.

If sufficient signatures are obtained in the state, the local option proposal will appear upon the November election ballot in an effort to secure a return of local option, so that each community may determine and carry out its own program for liquor regulation and enforcement, or complete prohibition.

ANN MEREDITH'S MIXING BOWL

EAT AND GROW SLIM
Luncheon

Chef's Salad:
1 large tomato sliced
1-2 cucumber, sliced
6 radishes, sliced
1-2 small head of lettuce
4 thin slices smoked sausage
French dressing.
2 slices zweibach, unbuttered
Pot of clear tea
Calory total, 175.

That's a lot of food for only 175 calories. And is the type of food which eliminates the dreaded "pink tooth brush." When I say that, I an assuming that dunking is out, and the crunchy zweibach is chewed, not dipped in hot tea.

Reserve 2 nice lettuce leaves for the plate. Shred the rest on the leaves, over the lettuce strew sliced radish and cucumber, arrange the tomato slices around the edge and dress the salad with 3 Tbsps. of mineral oil French dressing. Cut the slices of smoked sausage into match-like strips and strew over the top of the salad.

* * *

On hot days, iced tea will be more acceptable. Use saccharin tablets instead of sugar, and not more than one until you taste the tea.

* * *

Today's Recipe

Ice-Box Bread Mixtures
1 cup scalded and cooled milk
2 Tbsps. sugar
1 1-2 tsps. salt
4 Tbsps. melted vegetable shortening, or butter
1 yeast cake dissolved in
1-4 cup tepid water
2 eggs, well beaten
5 cups sifted all-purpose flour.

* * *

Add shortening, sugar and salt to the scalded milk, set off the fire and cool until tepid. Crumble up the yeast cake and dissolve in the quarter-cup of tepid water. Add to the milk, together with the beaten eggs and enough flour to make a smooth batter, then work in the balance of the flour, turn the dough on the moulding board and knead lightly to mix.

To keep this dough, place it in an oiled bowl, brush the top with oil, cover tightly and keep on the bottom rack of the refrigerator.

* * *

Dutch Apple Cake

For a pan 6 by 10 inches take one-fourth of the dough. Knead lightly, then roll out to fit the pan. Place in pan, brush with melted butter and stand the cored, sliced apples (2 medium) in ranks over the dough. Sprinkle with sugar mixed with a little cinnamon, cover and let rise until light.

Rolled Cracked Wheat Loaf

For a small loaf take 1-4 of the dough, knead down, and roll out to a thickness of 1-2 inch. Spread the dough with soft butter and sprinkle thickly with cracked wheat cereal (uncooked). Roll up, place in an oiled bread tin, brush the top with milk and sprinkle with a little cracked wheat.

A Cinnamon Loaf can be made the same way, using cinnamon, sugar and butter over the blanket of dough.

Raspberry Jam Coffee Ring

Take a small quantity of dough, knead, then form into a thin roll, fasten the ends after arranging in the pan (round) and spread the roll with soft butter. Cover and let rise until light, then with the back of a spoon make depressions in the roll and put a little jam in each hole. Bake in a quick oven.

* * *

FUN FOR THE WHOLE FAMILY

THE TINYMITES

STORY BY HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KING

The mouse kept jumping all around. "Oh, goodness, some way must be found to get that small pest out of here," the frightened maid cried out.

"I'm just as scared as I can be of mice. Will someone please help me?" Then Scouty smiled and said, "I'll think of some good way no doubt."

"Now, kindly keep your eyes on me, and some real action you will see." And then he stamped his feet, and made the mouse run out of sight.

* * *

The maid jumped right off of the chair and said, "Oh, thanks! That ends my scare. Now, tell me where you tots came from, and what you're doing here.

"I know I've never chanced to gaze at you before, although for days I've lived in this same house. Your story I would like to hear."

"Well," Dotty said, "we travel 'round to see whatever can be found. Each day we try to meet new friends. It's really lots of fun."

"Why, say, that's fine," the maid replied. "There is a new friend, right outside. I hear him singing, now. Don't frighten him, 'cause he might run."

* * *

They all peeked out the door and then a little lad yelled, "Hel-[illegible]," when wee Goldy waved and shouted, "What a dandy hobby horse!

"You sure know how to ride it, son, and I'll bet it's a lot of fun. Say, could I have a little ride?" The lad replied, "Of course!"

Soon Duncy shouted, "That's a thrill, but, say, that ol' horse just stands still. I mean, it doesn't move along. It just swings to and fro."

Warmer Weather Declared Due By Japanese Prophet

LAGUNA BEACH, June 19.—Akana Imamura, Japanese restaurant man of this city, whose weather predictions in the past five years have attracted wide attention, today predicted good weather for the Fourth of July. He added that it would be a bit cloudy in the early morning with a clear sky about 10 o'clock. He further stated that within a few days there would be an appreciable rise in the temperature with warm weather for the rest of the summer season.

Imamura, a native of Kyoto, the ancient capital of Japan, is an advanced student of comparative religion and occult sciences, including astrology. Because of the correctness of his weather predictions, he is spoken of as the successor of the late Gin Chow. His weather predictions are being published regularly in the California Daily, a Japanese language paper published in Los Angeles.

FARM CENTER, CHAMBER BACK SCHOOL PLANS

YORBA LINDA, June 19. — Members of Yorba Linda Farm center and chamber of commerce last night approved action of the grammar school board of trustees in planning for an auditorium, which were presented through S. N. Rosedale of the school board at a joint meeting.

The plans call for an auditorium that will cost approximately $12,000, built with SERA labor if the request of the president, J. A. Small, for such labor is granted.

Quincy Cutting of Los Angeles, representing teachers of Los Angeles, called attention to the small amount spent in schools compared to that spent for caring for law breakers, and also drew attention to the need of training students to use leisure time. He said that thousands of young people are roaming the streets and finding no work, and that since the old way of advising youth to find work is of no avail, for they cannot find work, youth must be trained to use leisure time wisely.

He brought also to the people a request that they assist teachers in getting a clause added to the teacher tenure law providing that teachers can be discharged even under tenure for certain conduct and for incompetency.

LeRoy Lyon told of the supervisors presenting the Elliott plan of flood control for government aid. R. D. Flaherty reported that the Orange County Farm bureau directors have approved the plan.

C. E. Simmons of the Yorba Linda Star asked the chamber of commerce to support a plan for asking the supervisors to allow $1000 and the manufacturers a larger sum for advertising Orange county manufactured materials in papers. The plan was endorsed by the Yorba Linda chamber.

P. J. Ton presided at the business meeting of the farm center, which followed the dinner. Announcements were made of pumping demonstration at 9 a. m., June 26, at Highway 101 and Vermont street, Anaheim; of a morning glory control demonstration June 28 at the Bortz ranch on Tustin avenue; of the meeting of the Imperial Highway association at Glen Ivy June 30 for dinner.

J. A. Logsdon suggested that it is about time for the business men of Yorba Linda to get together and try to establish a bank in the community. George Kellogg suggested that H. A. Caspari's recommendation of certain candidates for office was not advisable, since the chamber should stay out of politics.

G. A. Boyles of Fullerton showed pictures of the South Sea Islands.

CRIME FILMS HIT BY BEACH PASTOR

LAGUNA BEACH, June 19.—Echoes of a nation-wide campaign launched by different churches against the influences of objectionable motion pictures and magazines were heard in a sermon delivered Sunday by the Rev. Robert M. Hogarth, vicar of St. Mary's Episcopal church.

The sermon, calling attention to the evil influences of pictures featuring crime in various forms, frequently popularizing and making heroes of lawbreakers, was based on suggestions contained in a pastoral letter sent out by Bishop W. Bertrand Stevens of the Los Angeles diocese of the Episcopal church, calling attention to observance of Home Loyalty month, set for this June.

In his pastoral letter addressed to the clergy of the diocese, Bishop Stevens called attention to the service rendered by the Roman Catholic church in calling attention to the motion picture situation. The Episcopal bishop also pointed an accusing finger at the cheap magazines, which, he stated, "have much to answer for. Canada knows the harm they do, and has prohibited their importation into Canadian homes by putting a heavy tax on their importation."

COURSES OPEN TO PLACENTIA TRUSTEES TOLD

PLACENTIA, June 19.—When four of the five members of the Placentia School board met yesterday at the school to look at truck chassis in anticipation of purchasing two school busses, they were met by a group of men and women from Placentia, who asked that they tell what they intend now since the bond issue failed to carry for building a Valencia High school building.

Although the board was not meeting in regular session, the members, through LeRoy Lyon, president, pointed out to them there are several courses open. One course is for petitions to be circulated asking that an election be called on joining a union high school district. In this case, a majority of voters can carry the issue and a majority of the voters have to give their consent in the district the Placentia Union Grammar school district chooses to join. A second way is to call another bond election and try to vote bonds by a two-thirds majority of voters. The bond issue was defeated but although Commonwealth, Yorba, and Richfield district showed a decided reaction against a bond issue, the vote from Placentia was sufficient to show 62 per cent of the voters in a light vote cast favored the bond issue, it was stated. It takes two-thirds majority.

A third way is by direct taxation, which requires a two-thirds majority. Two other ways to raise the tax rate as much as is permitted in one year, five per cent, or to go to the state board of equalization and ask permission to raise the rate to 75 cents in order to accumulate money for building a high school.

The board did not indicate which way is to be opened to the voters. They meet again Friday at 1:30 p. m., to canvass election returns.

The committee that called on the board yesterday included S. James Tuffree, Louis Jacobsen, Mrs. A. L. Anderson and Mrs. Leon Hochstein.

In regard to the matter of busses, Lyon appointed Warren Bradford and Laurence Lemke to investigate further.

DONNA of the BIG TOP

by BEULAH POYNTER

©1934 NEA SERVICE, INC

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Donna Gabriel, circus performer, falls from the trapeze and is injured. To please her partner, Madeline Siddal, Donna goes to Madeline's home to recuperate, pretending to be the other girl. She is ashamed of this deception but keeps it up, even when Bill Siddal, Madeline's cousin, asks her to marry him. Amos Siddal, Madeline's grandfather who owns the farm, is blind. Mrs. Planter, housekeeper discharged by Donna, is her enemy.

Amos Siddal has a stroke.

In New Orleans Madeline goes into the cage with the Bengal tiger and is killed. Con is discharged and, unable to get work, decides to go to the Siddal farm.

From the nearby town he sends a note to Donna and she agrees to meet him the next afternoon. Mrs. Planter learns of this and writes an anonymous letter to Bill.

Donna tells Bill she is going to a neighbor's and sets out to keep the appointment with Con.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXXVII

Nothing could have fired Con David's desire to see Donna quite so much as her reluctance to meet him. After he had learned from Madeline that Donna had not been married to Bill Siddal at the time of his own marriage to Madeline, Con had convinced himself that, in spite of her repulses, Donna had really been in love with him. He assured himself that if he had remained single Donna would have become his wife.

Madeline had been right when she had said that Donna's great attraction for Con was due to the fact that she had refused his attentions so frequently. The element in the small boy that makes him want what is forbidden was strong in Con. While his principal reason for coming to Lebanon was to secure the property that would have been his wife's by inheritance, there was still a hope that the only woman who had ever caused his heart to beat more quickly would find him more attractive now and more desirable than in the days past.

It did not occur to him that Donna might fear him. What she had said over the telephone flattered his vanity. If she was afraid to meet him it must be true that her husband was jealous of him. If Siddal was jealous, he must know something about Con and he could have learned of him by only one means—through Donna. That meant she had not forgotten him.

Perhaps Donna was afraid to trust herself with Con because he might arouse an affection she was trying to crush. This thought pleased him greatly. As he shaved and dressed meticulously for the meeting he visioned Donna in the days when he had first known her. Small, lithe and exquisitely beautiful, he had thought her. The arrogant way in which she carried her head with its aureole of flaming curls, the perfect symmetry of her body, her daring in the ring, and her utter indifference to the admiration of men had all attracted him.

Though the two girls, Donna and Madeline, had looked much alike, there had been a distinction about Donna that always made her partner appear drab and colorless when the two were together. From the very beginning Con had doubted the statement that the girls were sisters, though no one else in the troupe had seemed to do so.

It did not seem credible to Con, who had spent almost his entire life under the big top,' that members of the same family should not only show such different traits of character but that one should be an acomplished aerialist, skilled in every trick of her profession, while the other, though not without ability, was obviously new to the circus.

Vividly he recalled the day when the two girls had joined the show. Renfroe's headquarters were in Virginia and until the season before Con had housed his animals with Renfroe's. The showman had been disappointed by two European performers who had failed to keep an engagement, and had answered an advertisement in a theatrical publication. Photographs accompanied the letter of application, and Renfroe had shown them to Con. "They're good-lookers, aren't they?" Renfroe had said. "The Gabriel sisters. I remember there used to be a Val Gabriel in your line, Con. Maybe you knew him. I think he was killed by a lion."

"Yes. He was a headliner. Wife was a trapeze performer."

"Wonder if these girls are his kids. Seems to me I heard he left a family."

Con had studied the pictures and had advised Renfroe to hire the sisters. Soon after that the girls arrived at headquarters, after cancelling some small-time vaudeville dates.

Though Donna had admitted the relationship to Val Gabriel, neither girl offered any other information about themselves. But their act had made good. The "big top" was small enough, the circus intimate enough so that audiences could take note of the girls' youth and beauty. Madeline and Donna would have succeeded on that score, even if they had been less clever.

From the first day of their meeting in the huge enclosed grounds of th headquarters Con had been definitely conscious of Donna. Though everyone was busy—and he most of all, with a couple of new cats to break in—he found moments in which he had endeavored to win her regard.

The fact that she had obviously sought to avoid him had piqued his interest, and by the time the circus opened two weeks later he had known that he was in love with her.

* * *

He supposed he was still in love with her and would always be. His marriage to Madeline, her death and his nervous reaction were only episodes, interludes between the really important events of his life.

He found himself as impatient to see Donna now as he had been impatient for the winter months to pass during the years he had known her, when he had counted the weeks and days until they would meet again.

Ambition leaped into flame once more. If Dona did care for him—even if her affection were but luke warm—he could convince her that she was wasting her beauty and talents in a place like Lebanon. A dead town and dismal farm. How had she been able to stand it as long as she had! Divorce was so easy these days. With Donna as his wife, they would be able to do anything! There was no limit to the success they might achieve!

Grandfather Siddal's money was forgotten for the time. Into Con's imagination floated all the rosy dreams he had once pictured for Madeline—an engagement with a European circus, visits to all the famous cities in the world, his name—and Donna's—featured above all the others. He would build a new act, more daring and more sensational than any the world had ever seen. And, above all, Donna would be with him. They would have their triumph together.

Perhaps the discouragement and hardships Con had known in past months had done something to his usual hard-headed common sense. He had faced disappointments for so long that now, for a time at least, he was seeing things as he wished them to be, forgetting everything that might balk his plans.

He was unaware of the glittering eyes of Mrs. Planter, hidden in the hallway but watching him eagerly, as he made his way to the office. None of the time Con had spent before the mirror was wasted on Mrs. Planter. Swiftly she took in the details of his appearance and even caught a whiff of the scented lotion he had used.

Out on the street, he inquired of a small girl who was on her way home from the butcher shop what direction he should take to reach the Baptist cemetery.

* * *

Receiving the information, he set out with a jaunty, care-free stride. He had noticed the first dancing snow flakes from the hotel window. They were coming down faster now—the great, feathery flakes filling the air. Con, who was in no mood to think of their beauty, pulled his up-turned coat collar more closely about his throat and bent his head against the wind.

The child had told him to walk six blocks and then turn to the left. The cemetery was a good 10 minutes' walk from the hotel. By the time Con arrived there it was snowing in earnest. A glittering mantle of white lay like a blanket over the mounds of earth, fir trees, sleeping rose bushes, monuments and tombstones in the old graveyard. A premature dusk had settled between the trees through which the wind howled as though a wandering soul, loosed from its tomb, were moaning its plea for a resting place.

He shivered with the cold and wet. He looked about for some sort of shelter and, to bolster up his spirits that had dropped with the eeriness of the place, lighted a cigaret. But the wet snow extinguished the flame, so he stood whistling dolefully, his body braced against a mausoleum, his hat pulled far down on his forehead.

There was not another person in sight and the stillness and loneliness began to get on Con's nerves. Weird stories he had read in the past, tales of murder and vampires, of disembodied spirits, flashed through his memory and did nothing to add to his cheeriness and comfort. What could be keeping Donna? Why didn't she come?

Then he saw her—a slim, hesitant figure wearing a close, dark hat over her bright hair and a rough tweed coat pulled about her. She moved cautiously, peering through the driving snow, stumbling a bit as her heels sunk into mounds of it.

Con did not move. He waited until she was within arms' reach. Then he stepped from the shadows and touched her arm. Donna screamed in a kind of terror and he laughed.

"It's me, Donna," he said. "Who did you think it was—a ghost?"

FARM CENTER, CHAMBER BACK SCHOOL PLANS

YORBA LINDA, June 19. — Members of Yorba Linda Farm center and chamber of commerce last night approved action of the grammar school board of trustees in planning for an auditorium, which were presented through S. N. Rosedale of the school board at a joint meeting.

The plans call for an auditorium that will cost approximately $12,000, built with SERA labor if the request of the president, J. A. Small, for such labor is granted.

Quincy Cutting of Los Angeles, representing teachers of Los Angeles, called attention to the small amount spent in schools compared to that spent for caring for law breakers, and also drew attention to the need of training students to use leisure time. He said that thousands of young people are roaming the streets and finding no work, and that since the old way of advising youth to find work is of no avail, for they cannot find work, youth must be trained to use leisure time wisely.

He brought also to the people a request that they assist teachers in getting a clause added to the teacher tenure law providing that teachers can be discharged even under tenure for certain conduct and for incompetency.

LeRoy Lyon told of the supervisors presenting the Elliott plan of flood control for government aid. R. D. Flaherty reported that the Orange County Farm bureau directors have approved the plan.

C. E. Simmons of the Yorba Linda Star asked the chamber of commerce to support a plan for asking the supervisors to allow $1000 and the manufacturers a larger sum for advertising Orange county manufactured materials in papers. The plan was endorsed by the Yorba Linda chamber.

P. J. Ton presided at the business meeting of the farm center, which followed the dinner. Announcements were made of pumping demonstration at 9 a. m., June 26, at Highway 101 and Vermont street, Anaheim; of a morning glory control demonstration June 28 at the Bortz ranch on Tustin avenue; of the meeting of the Imperial Highway association at Glen Ivy June 30 for dinner.

J. A. Logsdon suggested that it is about time for the business men of Yorba Linda to get together and try to establish a bank in the community. George Kellogg suggested that H. A. Caspari's recommendation of certain candidates for office was not advisable, since the chamber should stay out of politics.

WELCH NEW C. OF C. SECRETARY; FIREWORKS DISPLAY, PARADE, CONCERT ARRANGED FOR JULY 4

NEWPORT BEACH, June 19.—Harry Welch, well known resident of Orange county, and secretary of the Orange County Coast association, was appointed temporary secretary of the Newport Harbor Chamber of Commerce to fill the post left vacant by the resignation of George C. Macleod at a meeting of the directors of the organization yesterday.

The action was taken following the introduction of a resolution by J. A. Beek, empowering the president "to employ such secretarial and stenographic services as he may deem necessary at a cost not to exceed $150 a month, said money not to come from the city advertising fund." City funds were withdrawn from the chamber of commerce last month, it was explained, as an economy measure. Welch's salary will be paid from membership dues of the organization.

The new secretary formerly was secretary of the Orange County Harbor Chamber of Commerce which was affiliated with the Newport and Balboa chamber in 1927, forming the present group, of which Macleod was secretary. Previous to that time he was secretary of the Phoenix Chamber of Commerce. During his work with the Orange county harbor group he was active in the promotion of the first harbor bond issue. He has been active in the past successful campaign for funds for harbor development.

A. B. Rousselle, president of the chamber, announced the appointment of a committee consisting of Joe Beek as chairman, Irving George Gordon and Claude A. Pullen to arrange plans for a Fourth of July celebration in Newport. Tentative arrangements include fireworks celebrations from both the Newport and Balboa piers, a parade through the streets, and public band concerts for the evening. Eddie Moore, chairman of the entertainment committee, was appointed to arrange for a Newport entry in the Huntington Beach parade and celebration in connection with their silver jubilee July 4.

CRIME FILMS HIT BY BEACH PASTOR

LAGUNA BEACH, June 19.—Echoes of a nation-wide campaign launched by different churches against the influences of objectionable motion pictures and magazines were heard in a sermon delivered Sunday by the Rev. Robert M. Hogarth, vicar of St. Mary's Episcopal church.

The sermon, calling attention to the evil influences of pictures featuring crime in various forms, frequently popularizing and making heroes of lawbreakers, was based on suggestions contained in a pastoral letter sent out by Bishop W. Bertrand Stevens of the Los Angeles diocese of the Episcopal church, calling attention to observance of Home Loyalty month, set for this June.

In his pastoral letter addressed to the clergy of the diocese, Bishop Stevens called attention to the service rendered by the Roman Catholic church in calling attention to the motion picture situation. The Episcopal bishop also pointed an accusing finger at the cheap magazines, which, he stated, "have much to answer for. Canada knows the harm they do, and has prohibited their importation into Canadian homes by putting a heavy tax on their importation."

COURSES OPEN TO PLACENTIA TRUSTEES TOLD

PLACENTIA, June 19.—When four of the five members of the Placentia School board met yesterday at the school to look at truck chassis in anticipation of purchasing two school busses, they were met by a group of men and women from Placentia, who asked that they tell what they intend now since the bond issue failed to carry for building a Valencia High school building.

Although the board was not meeting in regular session, the members, through LeRoy Lyon, president, pointed out to them there are several courses open. One course is for petitions to be circulated asking that an election be called on joining a union high school district. In this case, a majority of voters can carry the issue and a majority of the voters have to give their consent in the district the Placentia Union Grammar school district chooses to join. A second way is to call another bond election and try to vote bonds by a two-thirds majority of voters. The bond issue was defeated but although Commonwealth, Yorba, and Richfield district showed a decided reaction against a bond issue, the vote from Placentia was sufficient to show 62 per cent of the voters in a light vote cast favored the bond issue, it was stated. It takes two-thirds majority.

A third way is by direct taxation, which requires a two-thirds majority. Two other ways to raise the tax rate as much as is permitted in one year, five per cent, or to go to the state board of equalization and ask permission to raise the rate to 75 cents in order to accumulate money for building a high school.

The board did not indicate which way is to be opened to the voters. They meet again Friday at 1:30 p. m., to canvass election returns.

The committee that called on the board yesterday included S. James Tuffree, Louis Jacobsen, Mrs. A. L. Anderson and Mrs. Leon Hochstein.

In regard to the matter of busses, Lyon appointed Warren Bradford and Laurence Lemke to investigate further.

DONNA of the BIG TOP

by BEULAH POYNTER

NEA FICTION ©1934 NEA SERVICE, INC

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Donna Gabriel, circus performer, falls from the trapeze and is injured. To please her partner, Madeline Siddal, Donna goes to Madeline's home to recuperate, pretending to be the other girl. She is ashamed of this deception but keeps it up, even when Bill Siddal, Madeline's cousin, asks her to marry him. Amos Siddal, Madeline's grandfather who owns the farm, is blind. Mrs. Planter, housekeeper discharged by Donna, is her enemy.

Amos Siddal has a stroke.

In New Orleans Madeline goes into the cage with the Bengal tiger and is killed. Con is discharged and, unable to get work, decides to go to the Siddal farm.

From the nearby town he sends a note to Donna and she agrees to meet him the next afternoon. Mrs. Planter learns of this and writes an anonymous letter to Bill.

Donna tells Bill she is going to a neighbor's and sets out to keep the appointment with Con.

CHAPTER XXXVII

Nothing could have fired Con David's desire to see Donna quite so much as her reluctance to meet him. After he had learned from Madeline that Donna had not been married to Bill Siddal at the time of his own marriage to Madeline, Con had convinced himself that, in spite of her repulses, Donna had really been in love with him. He assured himself that if he had remained single Donna would have become his wife.

Madeline had been right when she had said that Donna's great attraction for Con was due to the fact that she had refused his attentions so frequently. The element in the small boy that makes him want what is forbidden was strong in Con. While his principal reason for coming to Lebanon was to secure the property that would have been his wife's by inheritance, there was still a hope that the only woman who had ever caused his heart to beat more quickly would find him more attractive now and more desirable than in the days past.

It did not occur to him that Donna might fear him. What she had said over the telephone flattered his vanity. If she was afraid to meet him it must be true that her husband was jealous of him. If Siddal was jealous, he must know something about Con and he could have learned of him by only one means—through Donna. That meant she had not forgotten him.

Perhaps Donna was afraid to trust herself with Con because he might arouse an affection she was trying to crush. This thought pleased him greatly. As he shaved and dressed meticulously for the meeting he visioned Donna in the days when he had first known her. Small, lithe and exquisitely beautiful, he had thought her. The arrogant way in which she carried her head with its aureole of flaming curls, the perfect symmetry of her body, her daring in the ring, and her utter indifference to the admiration of men had all attracted him.

Though the two girls, Donna and Madeline, had looked much alike, there had been a distinction about Donna that always made her partner appear drab and colorless when the two were together. From the very beginning Con had doubted the statement that the girls were sisters, though no one else in the troupe had seemed to do so.

* * *

It did not seem credible to Con, who had spent almost his entire life under the big top,' that members of the same family should not only show such different traits of character but that one should be an acomplished aerialist, skilled in every trick of her profession, while the other, though not without ability, was obviously new to the circus.

Vividly he recalled the day when the two girls had joined the show. Renfroe's headquarters were in Virginia and until the season before Con had housed his animals with Renfroe's. The showman had been disappointed by two European performers who had failed to keep an engagement, and had answered an advertisement in a theatrical publication. Photographs accompanied the letter of application, and Renfroe had shown them to Con. "They're good-lookers, aren't they?" Renfroe had said. "The Gabriel sisters. I remember there used to be a Val Gabriel in your line, Con. Maybe you knew him. I think he was killed by a lion."

"Yes. He was a headliner. Wife was a trapeze performer."

"Wonder if these girls are his kids. Seems to me I heard he left a family."

Con had studied the pictures and had advised Renfroe to hire the sisters. Soon after that the girls arrived at headquarters, after cancelling some small-time vaudeville dates.

Though Donna had admitted the relationship to Val Gabriel, neither girl offered any other information about themselves. But their act had made good. The "big top" was small enough, the circus intimate enough so that audiences could take note of the girls' youth and beauty. Madeline and Donna would have succeeded on that score, even if they had been less clever.

From the first day of their meeting in the huge enclosed grounds of th headquarters Con had been definitely conscious of Donna. Though everyone was busy—and he most of all, with a couple of new cats to break in—he found moments in which he had endeavored to win her regard.

The fact that she had obviously sought to avoid him had piqued his interest, and by the time the circus opened two weeks later he had known that he was in love with her.

* * *

He supposed he was still in love with her and would always be. His marriage to Madeline, her death and his nervous reaction were only episodes, interludes between the really important events of his life.

He found himself as impatient to see Donna now as he had been impatient for the winter months to pass during the years he had known her, when he had counted the weeks and days until they would meet again.

Ambition leaped into flame once more. If Dona did care for him—even if her affection were but luke warm—he could convince her that she was wasting her beauty and talents in a place like Lebanon. A dead town and dismal farm. How had she been able to stand it as long as she had! Divorce was so easy these days. With Donna as his wife, they would be able to do anything! There was no limit to the success they might achieve!

Grandfather Siddal's money was forgotten for the time. Into Con's imagination floated all the rosy dreams he had once pictured for Madeline—an engagement with a European circus, visits to all the famous cities in the world, his name—and Donna's—featured above all the others. He would build a new act, more daring and more sensational than any the world had ever seen. And, above all, Donna would be with him. They would have their triumph together.

Perhaps the discouragement and hardships Con had known in past months had done something to his usual hard-headed common sense. He had faced disappointments for so long that now, for a time at least, he was seeing things as he wished them to be, forgetting everything that might balk his plans.

He was unaware of the glittering eyes of Mrs. Planter, hidden in the hallway but watching him eagerly, as he made his way to the office. None of the time Con had spent before the mirror was wasted on Mrs. Planter. Swiftly she took in the details of his appearance and even caught a whiff of the scented lotion he had used.

Out on the street, he inquired of a small girl who was on her way home from the butcher shop what direction he should take to reach the Baptist cemetery.

* * *

Receiving the information, he set out with a jaunty, care-free stride. He had noticed the first dancing snow flakes from the hotel window. They were coming down faster now—the great, feathery flakes filling the air. Con, who was in no mood to think of their beauty, pulled his up-turned coat collar more closely about his throat and bent his head against the wind.

The child had told him to walk six blocks and then turn to the left. The cemetery was a good 10 minutes' walk from the hotel. By the time Con arrived there it was snowing in earnest. A glittering mantle of white lay like a blanket over the mounds of earth, fir trees, sleeping rose bushes, monuments and tombstones in the old graveyard. A premature dusk had settled between the trees through which the wind howled as though a wandering soul, loosed from its tomb, were moaning its plea for a resting place.

"This is a hell of a spot to meet anyone," Con muttered aloud. "I hope she gets here pretty soon."

He shivered with the cold and wet. He looked about for some sort of shelter and, to bolster up his spirits that had dropped with the eeriness of the place, lighted a cigaret. But the wet snow extinguished the flame, so he stood whistling dolefully, his body braced against a mausoleum, his hat pulled far down on his forehead.

There was not another person in sight and the stillness and loneliness began to get on Con's nerves. Weird stories he had read in the past, tales of murder and vampires, of disembodied spirits, flashed through his memory and did nothing to add to his cheeriness and comfort. What could be keeping Donna? Why didn't she come?

Then he saw her—a slim, hesitant figure wearing a close, dark hat over her bright hair and a rough tweed coat pulled about her. She moved cautiously, peering through the driving snow, stumbling a bit as her heels sunk into mounds of it.

Con did not move. He waited until she was within arms' reach. Then he stepped from the shadows and touched her arm. Donna screamed in a kind of terror and he laughed.

"It's me, Donna," he said. "Who did you think it was—a ghost?"

LIQUOR CHARGE LANDS TWO IN COUNTY JAIL

ANAHEIM, June 19.—Too much indulgence in liquor Sunday night resulted in two men being sent to the county jail yesterday by Police Judge Frank Tausch. One man went to jail serving sentences on two counts drunk and drunken driving and the second was sentenced on a charge of being intoxicated.

Andre Mendez of Santa Ana whose automobile killed a dog belonging to Tony Hund was fined $150 with the alternative of spending 75 days in jail when he was found guilty on a charge of drunken driving filed against him by Hund. He decided to serve the jail terms on both charges and also had his operator's license revoked for six months.

Tony Flores, arrested Sunday night after a drunken brawl in which Ramon Valdez was slashed with a knife was sentenced to pay a fine of $50 or serve 25 days in jail. He took the jail sentence. Mrs. Flore Valdez, wife of the knife wielder, declined yesterday to sign a complaint against Flores until she gets further information about the fight in which her husband was injured and until he is released from the county hospital where he was taken by Anaheim police.

Council To Take Up Pier Repairs Wednesday Night

LAGUNA BEACH, June 19. — Further action in the fishing pier situation is expected at tomorrow night's regular city council meeting when a report on the condition of the pier structure and repairs effected is to be submitted with a view to modifying the closing order issued about two weeks ago.

Following a conference between the councilmen and Capt. O. B. Ayers, lessee of the pier, at which the latter is reported to have indicated a willingness to effect such necessary repairs as will make the pier safe for use by the public, there has been a limited traffic over the pier. Inquiries at the city hall revealed that members of the city council a few days ago visited the pier for the purpose of ascertaining what steps have been taken to insure safety to the public as ordered by the council at the regular meeting held two weeks ago.

MRS. ANNA DALL MAY CHANGE RESIDENCE

RENO, Nev., June 19.—(UP)—Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Dall, daughter of President Roosevelt, may transfer her Nevada residence from Lake Tahoe to Pyramid lake, it was indicated today.

Mrs. Dall appeared in Reno yesterday in company with Mrs. H. P. Dana, wealthy New Yorker whose residence is at Pyramid lake. The party drove off in an automobile before reporters could question the president's daughter regarding her plans to divorce her husband, Curtis Dall, New York broker.

Accompanied by her children "Sistie" and "Buzzie," Mrs. Dall went to a large cottage on the Nevada shore when she arrived from the east Sunday.

LOCATE MISSING EL MODENA GIRL

Miss Carmen Lievanos, 14-year-old El Modena girl, who was reported missing by her parents last week, has been located in Mexico, it was learned by sheriff's officers yesterday.

The girl went to Tia Juana with an El Modena man to get married but a Mexican judge would not perform the ceremony without her parent's consent. She then wrote a letter in Spanish to her parents, asking their consent, which was delivered by a stranger to the Lievanos home.

START FILMING FAMOUS STORY HERE TODAY

Production work on the filming of "Peck's Bad Boy," a Sol Lesser production for Pathe company, was launched today at the attractive colonial home of Dr. D. A. Harwood, 2467 Riverside Drive.

Santa Ana became almost a miniature of Hollywood last night and today as about 100 members of the cast, directors, technicians and camera men made this city their temporary headquarters. Hotels enjoyed an exceptional business, as did restaurants and other places.

Jackie Cooper, Jackie Searle, both juvenile favorites, with Dorothy Peterson and O. P. Heggie, well known character actors, headed the cast which came here for filming the picture, which is directed by Eddie Cline. Tomorrow Thomas Meighan will be here.

Weather today was satisfactory for Director Cline, who "shot" a large number of scenes for the picture. All of the exterior scenes will be taken here. Director Cline said many studios have started a policy of seeking realistic locales for filming their pictures, and the fact that Dr. Harwood's home is most typically colonial of any found in Southern California after weeks of search exemplifies the policy, he said.

Director Cline said that with favorable weather conditions, such as prevailed today, the filming of the exterior scenes for the picture would be completed by Friday noon. The Church of the Messiah, Episcopal and the Santa Fe depot also will be used in the scenes.

Police aided in keeping a large crowd of boys and girls, as well as adults, from spoiling scenes by too much noise and by being in line with the camera lens.

AGITATION REVIVED FOR SPLIT SEASON

(BY UNITED PRESS)

Pacific Coast league club owners plan to revive agitation for a split season when Hy Baggerly, president returns this week from the east.

Los Angeles, out in front with a practically insurmountable 14-game lead, is reported willing to divide the season into two sections, presumably after July 4. Other club owners also favor the plan because interest in the game has faded due to Los Angeles' long lead.

Council To Take Up Pier Repairs Wednesday Night

LAGUNA BEACH, June 19. — Further action in the fishing pier situation is expected at tomorrow night's regular city council meeting when a report on the condition of the pier structure and repairs effected is to be submitted with a view to modifying the closing order issued about two weeks ago.

Following a conference between the councilmen and Capt. O. B. Ayers, lessee of the pier, at which the latter is reported to have indicated a willingness to effect such necessary repairs as will make the pier safe for use by the public, there has been a limited traffic over the pier. Inquiries at the city hall revealed that members of the city council a few days ago visited the pier for the purpose of ascertaining what steps have been taken to insure safety to the public as ordered by the council at the regular meeting held two weeks ago.

START FILMING FAMOUS STORY HERE TODAY

Production work on the filming of "Peck's Bad Boy," a Sol Lesser production for Pathe company, was launched today at the attractive colonial home of Dr. D. A. Harwood, 2467 Riverside Drive.

Santa Ana became almost a miniature of Hollywood last night and today as about 100 members of the cast, directors, technicians and camera men made this city their temporary headquarters. Hotels enjoyed an exceptional business, as did restaurants and other places.

Jackie Cooper, Jackie Searle, both juvenile favorites, with Dorothy Peterson and O. P. Heggie, well known character actors, headed the cast which came here for filming the picture, which is directed by Eddie Cline. Tomorrow Thomas Meighan will be here.

Weather today was satisfactory for Director Cline, who "shot" a large number of scenes for the picture. All of the exterior scenes will be taken here. Director Cline said many studios have started a policy of seeking realistic locales for filming their pictures, and the fact that Dr. Harwood's home is most typically colonial of any found in Southern California after weeks of search exemplifies the policy, he said.

Director Cline said that with favorable weather conditions, such as prevailed today, the filming of the exterior scenes for the picture would be completed by Friday noon. The Church of the Messiah, Episcopal and the Santa Fe depot also will be used in the scenes.

Police aided in keeping a large crowd of boys and girls, as well as adults, from spoiling scenes by too much noise and by being in line with the camera lens.

AGITATION REVIVED FOR SPLIT SEASON

(BY UNITED PRESS)

Pacific Coast league club owners plan to revive agitation for a split season when Hy Baggerly, president returns this week from the east.

Los Angeles, out in front with a practically insurmountable 14-game lead, is reported willing to divide the season into two sections, presumably after July 4. Other club owners also favor the plan because interest in the game has faded due to Los Angeles' long lead.

In the various discussions concerning peace that are now being held and have been held in the last few weeks between the representatives of European nations, it seems that they are not reaching any particularly helpful conclusions.

The agreement by Italy that Germany shall be permitted to rearm, on condition that she give up any idea of an anschluss with Austria, may be very helpful to Italy, but with France it is an entirely different question. But this places Italy very definitely on the side of Germany, if Germany returns to the League of Nations, which Mussolini urged Hitler to do.

In fact, it is this arming of Germany which develops the fear in France, and which will precipitate the conflict. It is the history of the arming of nations that the potential enemy endeavors to strike at the time when it is strongest and the enemy is weakest.

This race of armaments always produces a nervousness on the part of the leaders of each nation to exercise judgment as to when that point of self-strength and opponent-weakness has been reached. There is no question but that if Germany should continue to arm and a battle must come between those two historic enemies, the sooner it is precipitated on behalf of France, the more likely, she feels, it will be that she could win.

Now we have a conference in London, in which America is sitting in listening. Ramsay MacDonald, British premier, delivered rather a lengthy address, the chief item of which was a proposition to sound out Japanese opinion on navy topics.

Nations, it appears, cannot be like individuals. When individuals have made contracts with people, and they find these people refuse to keep them, and utterly ignore any binding effect, they simply do not make contracts any more with those people. Japan is regarded in that attitude.

It would seem to us that the only thing that you can count upon, as far as Japan is concerned, is what she does today. You must judge of her, not by what she says she will be, or any agreement she enters into, but by what she actually does, and what she actually does is just as she pleases.

She pleases to continue to make encroachments in China, and the same in Russia, if she dares.

Certain it is that there are some things that are so well known concerning war and its entanglements that the nations will not be so blind-folded as they have heretofore been.

One is that ammunition and armament makers are now known to be stirring trouble up in each nation in order to sell their goods and make their profit. It is known that these armor and ammunition makers are internationalists, with an international agreement to give information to each other concerning developments in their line.

Many of the men hold stock in the various enterprises in the different nations, so that when war breaks out they will have made money out of the very messengers of death that destroy the youth of their own country.

In our judgment, the people are just about "fed up" on this, and they are nearly through with being fooled for the sake of the munitions makers' profits.

The other item of knowledge which has now come fully to the nations is that large credits granted belligerents will not be paid. While this ought to have been learned years ago, for very rarely has any nation paid its war debt to another, except at the point of the sword, yet it is now so clear that nations will have to carry on their conflict and produce their arms and armaments for themselves. It will be folly to give them credit from the outside.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S COMING TRIP

President Roosevelt is to break a tradition when he boards a cruiser sometime in July and sails over the Pacific to Hawaii. Hawaii is a good long way from Washington, and lots of things are apt to happen while he is at sea. It is reported that he will take no government officials with him, and that even the press men will be segregated on the destroyer which accompanies the cruiser.

The president wants to be alone, and far from the "madding crowd." He will work, and he will be in contact with affairs by radio. But so far as is humanly possible, he wants to enjoy a quiet vacation after the strenuous sixteen months since his inauguration. No president before him has gone so far away.

When Mr. Coolidge spent his summer among the Black Hills of the Dakotas, he was only 24 hours away from Washington. President Harding went to Alaska, but those were the days of normalcy just after the war, and before the post-war problems began to disturb the world.

In early days such a trip would have been impossible for the president of the United States. But with radio, as well as more rapid oceanic travel, the president can keep in touch with home constantly. When we recall how easy it was for the president to have his say to the economic congress in London last summer, the trip to Hawaii is not much of a venture. And think what it will mean to the Hawaiians who have never been off the islands, and probably will never see the mainland, to look into the face of their president, and to hear his voice speaking directly to them.

THE FUTURE OF LEGITIMATE DRAMA

The movie picture has done all sorts of things to the drama. Most of the great actors have transferred from the stage to the film. Not only is there more money in it, but there is a wider place for a career.

But the question is still an open one as to whether the stage is really done for. Katherine Cornell, one of our outstanding stage characters, has just returned to New York after a swing from coast to coast, playing with her company in scores of towns and cities along the way.

Her account of her experience is interesting and heartening for those who still believe there is a place for the legitimate drama. She reports large audiences everywhere, and the box office receipts were very rewarding. Everywhere, she states, she and her fellow actors were received with cordiality and high approval. So much was this the case that she has come to a new enthusiasm for the legitimate stage.

This may not be the case with the ordinary "barnstorming" company of earlier days. The movie has probably put such groups out of business forever. But for the type of actor such as Katherine Cornell, we believe there is still a large place. Edwin Booth, John McCullough, Ada Rehan, Edward H. Sothern, Julia Marlowe, Henry Irving, Sarah Bernhardt, and others of their class might look well on the screen. But who would not rather see them in the flesh treading the boards of the stage? No, the stage is not dead. For the great actors it still has a place.

RECREATION FACILITIES INCREASE

The National Recreation Association year book indicates a remarkable increase in recreation facilities for the enjoyment of the people. The pleasures of life are becoming available to more and more people. Last year outdoor playgrounds increased by 444 bringing the number of playgrounds to 7434. Close to 800 new baseball diamonds were built last year and 58 new bathing beaches. More than 500 new recreation areas and centers were opened. Only the number of municipal golf courses and swimming pools showed a slight decline, all other sports facilities were greatly enlarged. Aid from the Federal government made the expansions possible for most counties and municipalities were forced to cut down their recreational budget.

Here in Southern California, which is one of the nature's great playgrounds, we can hardly enthuse over the increase of playgrounds and the increase in recreational facilities as do those living elsewhere in the country where recreational opportunities are practically confined to a municipal playground, a pool hall or two, a movie house, and possibly, if the community is among the more fortunate, a library.

It is significant that H. A. Overstreet in his book "A Guide to Civilized Loafing" devoted a final chapter to the serious things of life which should have their place in leisure time, or, as he calls it "loafing" time. Among the serious things are peace, child welfare, and social problems. In the properly balanced life serious things will have their place in leisure time.

Is Liberalism Dangerous?

Christian Science Monitor

Liberalism is both a virtue and a fault. It is a virtue when it means improved standards of living, general security, and happiness. It is likely to be regarded as a fault when it threatens to disturb any considerable number of persons in the enjoyment of material wealth, possessions, or positions. There seems to be a certain amount of confused thinking on precisely where the virtues of liberalism merge into its faults. Much depends, apparently, on who is doing the thinking.

So when American women, in convention, are warned against "teachers in United States schools and colleges who, under the guise of liberalism, are undermining the American ideals of young people" one may justifiably wonder—and this is no trivial question—exactly who is to differentiate between the "guise of liberalism" and the reality of liberalism.

The thoughtful person can hardly fail to realize that many difficulties confronting the peoples of the world are to be attributed to a previous lack of liberalism—that is to say, to a lack of intelligent sympathy and generosity in considering the status or needs of the underprivileged and often unvocal white-collar and no-collar working classes. By persons of limited vision, who yet enjoy privileged positions, even the most altruistic critics have been labeled "radicals." Jesus was one of those so labeled and persecuted.

In our times the persecution goes on. The expression of non-conformist views has been firmly and effectually halted in Russia, Italy, Germany, Japan, and many other countries. Even in the United States such groups as the American Legion and the Daughters of the American Revolution rubber-stamp as "unpatriotic" and "un-American" most persons advocating peaceful or conciliatory problems, while many business groups are equally quick to oppose the distribution upon a more equitable basis of wealth and opportunities.

The D. A. R. "blacklist" of 1928 still serves as an index to the views of this group. That "blacklist" included the names of such "dangerous radicals" as Jane Addams of Hull House; Dean Roscoe Pound of the Harvard Law School; Sherwood Eddy, erstwhile Y. M. C. A. executive; Professor Irving Fisher of Yale; Stanley High, sometime editor of the Christian Herald; William Allen White, Dr. David Starr Jordan, and others of equal standing.

Now the national defense chairman of the D. A. R. warns against "subversive teachers" in schools and colleges, and advocates their "elimination." Of course no one wants teachers to attack the Government in the classroom, but neither do intelligent citizens wish to eliminate liberal teachers who are "subversive" only by a definition which would bar Jane Addams and William Allen White. One remembers instances in which able educators have been driven from the schools by just such patrioteering and quite without regard for the possible soundness of the ideas involved.

Is one never to be permitted to hope that generous liberalism ultimately will carry humanity to better things without the drag of a fear-born reaction? True liberalism makes for progress. The name of liberalism is no more abused by those who, through hatred of any change, miscall liberalism "radicalism."

More Truth Than Poetry

GIVE A BUG A BAD NAME

I used to think that dragon flies
Were born somewhere in distant skies,
  Malicious things
  With filmy wings
And fierce ferocious features.
When I went out, by day or night,
I used to shiver with affright
  Lest I might meet
  Upon the street
A covey of the creatures.

No insect, hornet, wasp or bee
Looked half so terrible to me;
  When one would sail
  Across the trail
Wild horror used to fill me.
I shuddered when they fluttered near
And suffered agonies of fear;
  I really thought
  If I were caught
The buzzing bugs would kill me.

But science says those ugly things
Have neither fangs nor claws nor stings;
  That roosters, hens,
  And even wrens,
And humming-birds will eat them;
They're not a menace in the least
To any form of bird or beast;
  They're mild and tame,
  But just the same,
I shudder when I meet them.

STILL A SCARCITY

The government complains that big bills have gone into hiding. Even little bills are not crying out in the streets for people to pick them up and give them a home.

Thoughts On Modern Life

EMBATTLED DEMOCRACY

Dictatorship has had democracy on the run throughout the world since the war.

I am singularly unmoved by the hysterical fears of some that democracy is endangered in the United States by any subtle attack by political theorists bent upon sovietizing us.

I am convinced, however, that democratic self-government might well disappear from this continent in the next decade if we fail effectively to deal with the economic problem.

The destiny of democracy on this continent will depend entirely upon our success or failure in solving the economic problem.

If we can now move with reasonable rapidity towards a soundly based and widely distributed economic well being, essential democracy is not likely to be seriously challenged in America for a generation to come.

But whether we are to succeed or fail in solving the economic problem is still on the lap of the gods. For all our brave whistling in the dark we are still far from out of the woods.

Anything less than a complete thawing out of the fountains of enterprise, more or less frozen for the last five years, will put the American tradition of democratic self-government in definite jeopardy.

If, when the roaring mountain stream of federal spending and federal subsidy begins to dry up at its source, the basic enterprise of the nation remains sluggish or stalled, the American millions will lend a ready ear to drastic alternatives.

If recovery comes too slowly a growing impatience with the traditional forms and functions of government will manifest itself.

If we achieve a fair measure of recovery but, in the achieving, perpetuate the old iniquities and inefficiencies of the pre-depression order, recovery will be transient and insecure, popular satisfaction will be short-lived, and democracy's judgment day will only be postponed.

Democracy is not invested with any inevitable immorality. Democracy has died before in history. And if we fail to deal decisively now with the economic problem democracy may, as I have said, disappear from the face of this continent as the masses, in despair and under demagogic leaderships arising to batten on their despair, surrender to the delusion of dictatorship.

All the more reason why, regardless of party, we should unanimously pitch in on the problem of engineering a prompt and adequate recovery!

Our Children

HELPING OTHERS

Dear Children:

It is a fine thing to have friends and to feel friendly. It is a dreadful thing to feel unfriendly and grudging and mean. One can't get along without friends. Loneliness makes you feel ugly and unhappy and unfriendly. The way to have friends is to be a friend. The more people you befriend the more friends you have and the happier and the easier your life is going to be.

I am telling you this story because of what I have seen lately. One of our boys was going about the school with a scowl on his face, a hunch in his back and a chip on his shoulder. Going downstairs he met two boys carrying piles of books. He was on the landing. Now a friendly boy would have stood aside on the landing and waited for the boys with the loads to pass but this one dashed on, bumped each boy with a sharp shoulder as he passed, spilled the books they were carrying and rushed on his heedless way.

The two boys looked after him, displeasure in every line of their faces, and then began picking up the books so as to get out of the way of the classes that were soon to come down the stairs. "Nice fellow, that, isn't he?" "Yeah, some nice boy, he is. He's asking for a punch in the jaw and he's likely to get it if he keeps on asking." "Aw, what's the use. Let him go. We don't have to notice him."

That's what happens to the unfriendly boy. He is left alone when he isn't punched in the jaw. There is more than one way of landing on a fellow's jaw and the one that says, "Let him alone. We don't have to notice him." Being left alone is a severe punishment.

You may not think so at first but wait. Wait until you find yourself left out of everything. Nobody asks you to play on the team, or take part in the show. Nobody walks home from school with you. Nobody calls for you in the morning or at lunch time. You are left to go your way alone. When you get into trouble n body helps you. You have to get out the way you got in and nobody has any sympathy for you. This is a cold world when ou have no friends.

But when you have friends what a pleasant place it is. The sun shines brighter and warmer, work goes smoothly, play comes gayly. You share secrets and laughter. What a jolly feeling it is when you laugh with a friend. And how good it feels to lend your strength to another and share in his work and his success. There isn't a finer joy in life than that and you can win it, know it every day just by being helpful.

Watch to see where you can lend a hand. Cheer up a lonely one. Help a failing one. Give a lift to one carrying a burden whenever you meet him and the whole world will be a friendly place and you will live among friendly faces and loving hearts. Just be helpful.

Yours, A. P.

In the various discussions concerning peace that are now being held and have been held in the last few weeks between the representatives of European nations, it seems that they are not reaching any particularly helpful conclusions.

The agreement by Italy that Germany shall be permitted to rearm, on condition that she give up any idea of an anschluss with Austria, may be very helpful to Italy, but with France it is an entirely different question. But this places Italy very definitely on the side of Germany, if Germany returns to the League of Nations, which Mussolini urged Hitler to do.

In fact, it is this arming of Germany which develops the fear in France, and which will precipitate the conflict. It is the history of the arming of nations that the potential enemy endeavors to strike at the time when it is strongest and the enemy is weakest.

This race of armaments always produces a nervousness on the part of the leaders of each nation to exercise judgment as to when that point of self-strength and opponent-weakness has been reached. There is no question but that if Germany should continue to arm and a battle must come between those two historic enemies, the sooner it is precipitated on behalf of France, the more likely, she feels, it will be that she could win.

Dictatorship has had democracy on the run throughout the world since the war.

I am singularly unmoved by the hysterical fears of some that democracy is endangered in the United States by any subtle attack by political theorists bent upon sovietizing us.

I am convinced, however, that democratic self-government might well disappear from this continent in the next decade if we fail effectively to deal with the economic problem.

The destiny of democracy on this continent will depend entirely upon our success or failure in solving the economic problem.

If we can now move with reasonable rapidity towards a soundly based and widely distributed economic well being, essential democracy is not likely to be seriously challenged in America for a generation to come.

But whether we are to succeed or fail in solving the economic problem is still on the lap of the gods. For all our brave whistling in the dark we are still far from out of the woods.

Anything less than a complete thawing out of the fountains of enterprise, more or less frozen for the last five years, will put the American tradition of democratic self-government in definite jeopardy.

If, when the roaring mountain stream of federal spending and federal subsidy begins to dry up at its source, the basic enterprise of the nation remains sluggish or stalled, the American millions will lend a ready ear to drastic alternatives.

If recovery comes too slowly a growing impatience with the traditional forms and functions of government will manifest itself.

If we achieve a fair measure of recovery but, in the achieving, perpetuate the old iniquities and inefficiencies of the pre-depression order, recovery will be transient and insecure, popular satisfaction will be short-lived, and democracy's judgment day will only be postponed.

Democracy is not invested with any inevitable immorality. Democracy has died before in history. And if we fail to deal decisively now with the economic problem democracy may, as I have said, disappear from the face of this continent as the masses, in despair and under demagogic leaderships arising to batten on their despair, surrender to the delusion of dictatorship.

All the more reason why, regardless of party, we should unanimously pitch in on the problem of engineering a prompt and adequate recovery!

Our Children

By Angelo Patri

HELPING OTHERS

Dear Children:

It is a fine thing to have friends and to feel friendly. It is a dreadful thing to feel unfriendly and grudging and mean. One can't get along without friends. Loneliness makes you feel ugly and unhappy and unfriendly. The way to have friends is to be a friend. The more people you befriend the more friends you have and the happier and the easier your life is going to be.

I am telling you this story because of what I have seen lately. One of our boys was going about the school with a scowl on his face, a hunch in his back and a chip on his shoulder. Going downstairs he met two boys carrying piles of books. He was on the landing. Now a friendly boy would have stood aside on the landing and waited for the boys with the loads to pass but this one dashed on, bumped each boy with a sharp shoulder as he passed, spilled the books they were carrying and rushed on his heedless way.

The two boys looked after him, displeasure in every line of their faces, and then began picking up the books so as to get out of the way of the classes that were soon to come down the stairs. "Nice fellow, that, isn't he?" "Yeah, some nice boy, he is. He's asking for a punch in the jaw and he's likely to get it if he keeps on asking." "Aw, what's the use. Let him go. We don't have to notice him."

That's what happens to the unfriendly boy. He is left alone when he isn't punched in the jaw. There is more than one way of landing on a fellow's jaw and the one that says, "Let him alone. We don't have to notice him." Being left alone is a severe punishment.

You may not think so at first but wait. Wait until you find yourself left out of everything. Nobody asks you to play on the team, or take part in the show. Nobody walks home from school with you. Nobody calls for you in the morning or at lunch time. You are left to go your way alone. When you get into trouble n body helps you. You have to get out the way you got in and nobody has any sympathy for you. This is a cold world when ou have no friends.

But when you have friends what a pleasant place it is. The sun shines brighter and warmer, work goes smoothly, play comes gayly. You share secrets and laughter. What a jolly feeling it is when you laugh with a friend. And how good it feels to lend your strength to another and share in his work and his success. There isn't a finer joy in life than that and you can win it, know it every day just by being helpful.

Watch to see where you can lend a hand. Cheer up a lonely one. Help a failing one. Give a lift to one carrying a burden whenever you meet him and the whole world will be a friendly place and you will live among friendly faces and loving hearts. Just be helpful.

Yours, A. P.

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

GIVE A BUG A BAD NAME

I used to think that dragon flies
Were born somewhere in distant skies,
Malicious things
With filmy wings
And fierce ferocious features.
When I went out, by day or night,
I used to shiver with affright
Lest I might meet
Upon the street
A covey of the creatures.

No insect, hornet, wasp or bee
Looked half so terrible to me;
When one would sail
Across the trail
Wild horror used to fill me.
I shuddered when they fluttered near
And suffered agonies of fear;
I really thought
If I were caught
The buzzing bugs would kill me.

But science says those ugly things
Have neither fangs nor claws nor stings;
That roosters, hens,
And even wrens,
And humming-birds will eat them;
They're not a menace in the least
To any form of bird or beast;
They're mild and tame,
But just the same,
I shudder when I meet them.

STILL A SCARCITY

The government complains that big bills have gone into hiding. Even little bills are not crying out in the streets for people to pick them up and give them a home.

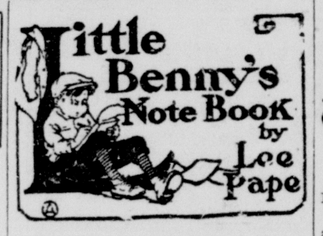
Little Benny's Note Book by Lee Pape



Me and pop was eating breakfist and pop finished his coffee and looked as if he felt better instead of werse, seeming like a good time to ask him again about the kitty Puds Simkins is going to give me if I'm aloud to have it, on account of the Simkinses cat having 7 and being too many for one house unless they stayed little, which they wouldn't, and I said, How about that kitty Puds Simkins promised me, pop?

I trust it's in good health and spirrits, though I must confess I haven't had time to drop in to see it yet, pop said. In fact, life beieng what it is, I shall proberly go rite on without ever seeing it, he said.

Meening he still hadn't changed his mind about leeving me have it, and I said, Well, gosh, pop, G, jimminy.

Is that one of the Slavick languages, it's quite musical, pop said, and I said, Kittins are useful.

Really? Elucidate, pop said.

Meening how, and I said, Well, for one thing they catch mice, and pop said, and for other things, they catch fleas, and as for mice, there never has been a mouse in the house except the defunct one that was found in your pockit one memorable evening.

Sounding like enough about mice, and I said, Well, they're useful other ways, too, and pop said, Be explicit.

Meening how, and I said, They use up exter left over milk instead of leaving it waiting around getting sour, I said, and pop said, Your neffew my grandson accounts for all the surplus milk in this family, in fact his demand exceeds our supply.

Meening little Willie always asking for a drink of milk when he comes around, and I said, Anyways there's lots of other ways they're useful, and pop said, Develop the theory.

Meening how, ony I couldn't think of any more ways, and pop folded his paper and went down to his office, being the end of the subjeck for today but not forever.

Stephen Chalmers, former European correspondent for the New York Times, and later appointed by that paper to accompany Theodore Roosevelt on his strenuous jaunts, had decided to make his home in Santa Ana or some part of Orange county. Chalmers was author of a number of books of fiction published by Doubleday, Page and Company, the latest of which, "The Greater Punishment," was just off the press.

The California Adobe and Concrete Construction company, composed largely of Anaheim men, including Thomas Crawford and Henry M. Adams, had completed purchase of five acres of adobe land on Main street, Los Angeles, near Slausen Junction, in readiness to put their bricks on the market. The work was expected to be in full blast within 30 days.
